Paris Falls to German Army

Reynaud Makes 'Final' Plea for U. S. Aid

Secrecy Veils U. S. Arms Transfers To Allies

Treasury, War, Navy Personnel Under Gag Rule To Prevent Sabotage

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The Administration threw a veil of secrecy over transfers of surplus Army and Navy munitions to the Allies yesterday, reportedly because of fears that sabotage might interfere with deliveries.

War, Navy and Treasury personnel were ordered not to divulge any information regarding the transfers. This action was said to have been requested by the Allied commission.

It was taken as a joint Senate-House conference approved legislation authorizing the President to trade in surplus Army guns to manufacturers for resale to the British and French. Written into a defense bill in the Senate, the proviso provoked heated debate and furnished the first Congressional test of President Roosevelt's "aid-the-Allies" program.

Gets House Right of Way

Earlier, legislation serving notice on Germany and Italy that the United States will oppose any attempt to claim territory in the Western Hemisphere owned by a European nation they may defeat in war was given right of way for an early House vote.

In approving the munitions trade-in authority, the conference committee also agreed on other disputed provisions of the defense measure. It would remove the limit on the total of Army planes and pilots, empower the President to embargo war materials and waive certain legal restrictions to speed arms production.

One section permits War Department employes other than those engaged in "nonmilitary activities" such as rivers and harbors work, to receive additional pay for overtime. Time and a half would be paid to such employes during a national emergency declared by the President, in accordance with regulations to be promulgated by the Secretary of War.

The fact that the authority asked by President Roosevelt to trade in surplus guns on new ones has not actually been voted is not holding up the delivery of any such equipment to private manufacturers for resale to the Allies. The President already has authority to turn back airplanes and munitions and power to sell other equipment outright.

263 Planes Transferred

Deliveries of large quantities of Army guns already have been made to the United States Steel Export Co., which is turning them over to the Allied mission at cost for shipment to Europe. A total of 263 Army and Navy planes have also been made available to the Allies.

Lists of additional equipment which the Government has declared surplus have been turned over to the mission, but their contents were withheld.

Senate Votes $50,000,000 Allied Relief

Action Taken Only 48 Hours After President's Request

The Senate unanimously voted yesterday a $50,000,000 war relief fund requested by President Roosevelt as a part of the "material resources" he promised the Allies Monday night.

Senator Adams (Democrat), Colorado, succeeded in attaching the proposal to the relief bill already passed by the House after a brief explanation.

This automatically increased the total of the bill to $1,123,000,000.

Under terms of the Adams provision the war relief funds must be spent in the United States to buy agricultural, medical and other supplies for Europe's war refugees.

The President's request was formally acted on by the House only 48 hours after it was communicated to the two chambers.

The Senate rejected a WPA-favored proposal to consolidate the 48 State relief offices into 15 regional ones, a move which it was estimated could save $1,200,000 and eliminate 700 employes.

An Unprecedented Move

House Passes Bill to Deport C. I. O. Leader Bridges, 330-42

Seven-Line Measure Rewritten on Floor Voted Despite Charges of Vociferous Minority That It Is Unconstitutional

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

In an unprecedented move, the House yesterday passed by vote of 330 to 42 a bill ordering the immediate deportation of Harry R. Bridges, C. I. O. maritime labor leader.

The measure, first on record to require the ousting of a particular individual, swept through the House with apparent ease, despite charges of a handful of opponents that it is unconstitutional. It now goes to the Senate.

Rewritten on the floor through motion of Representative Van Zandt (Republican), of Pennsylvania, former head of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the seven-line bill was strengthened to force removal of Bridges "forthwith" and "notwithstanding any other provision of law." The bill states that "Congress deems hurtful" the presence of the C. I. O. leader in this country.

In a session marked by unusually large attendance, Democrats vied with Republicans in denouncing Bridges, an Australian subject, as a "trouble-maker," a former "member of the Communist Party," "a leader of the fifth column," and so forth.

On the other hand, from a small, but vociferous minority—which included one or two Republicans, a few Democrats and Representative Marcantonio (American Labor), of New York—came the warning that "the Bill of Rights and civil liberties are going out the window" and that "the Constitution is being punctured full of holes."

Meanwhile, the Associated Press reported from Atlanta that Ellis Arnal, attorney general of Georgia, was urging adoption of an amendment to the Federal Constitution which would deprive aliens of the "privileges and immunities" now guaranteed to alien and citizen alike.

House passage of the Bridges bill yesterday was interpreted as a direct slap at Secretary of Labor Perkins, who has refused to accede to various requests for his deportation.

In debate on the bill, Representative Marcantonio, asserting "this is the first time in the history of this country when a man is convicted without being given an opportunity to defend himself," asked unani-

British Poured Into Battle Beside French

Fight to Hold Seine Flank; Men, Guns Stream Over Channel

(Message to French, Page 13)
By the Associated Press

London, June 13.—Britain drew direly needed reinforcements for France from her own home defenses tonight and let fly with both land and air power in the supreme effort to turn the Nazi tide on the continent.

With every available fighting man, gun and tank pledged to "death or victory" beside the weary French, military sources reported fresh British troops already are there—hurled into the Seine River line.

"Thousands" more, their numbers and route guarded closely, were on the way as the London press urged that even untrained divisions incompletely equipped be rushed to the continent.

With troops pouring out of England, school children were hustled from London to the country, church bells were silenced except to warn of parachute invasion, and a government spokesman said some "danger areas" might have to be cleared entirely of civilians.

[The United Press reported that the British public, fearing that France's fateful hour is at hand, called for 1,000,000 more men for the fighting ranks and demanded that every man unemployed in essential services be called up for a "broomstick army" similar to the one of 1914.

[There were widespread demands

Finland to Pay War Debt to U. S. On Schedule

Uncle Sam wrote to 12 European governments yesterday to remind them about that little matter of war debt payments due June 15 and, as usual, got only one promise to pay: from Finland.

With $12,000,000,000 still due from war debtors, the State Department sent out letters asking for the semi-annual installments, arrears and interest, which add up to $223,889,505.

Hjalmar J. Procope, Finnish Minister, announced that he would personally deliver the installment of $159,288 to Treasury Secretary Morgenthau tomorrow, the due date.

The Baltic republic has never missed a payment, even meeting its obligation last December 15, when her fighting legions were attempting to repel Soviet invaders.

Montgomery Houses Rifled

(Picture, Page 12)

Mrs. Virginia Blatt, 31-year-old wife of a District government electrical engineer, was released under $2,000 bond by Bethesda, Md., police yesterday after her arrest in connection with the looting of three "exhibit homes" in nearby Montgomery County.

A former player with the Philadelphia Athletics baseball team was held meanwhile at Eighth Precinct Station as an alleged accomplice.

Mrs. Blatt, who lives at pretentious Spring Lawn estate on Bradley boulevard and Burning Tree road, Kensington, was arrested after her husband, Robert C. Blatt, discovered two floor lamps and a vacuum cleaner in an auto in front of his home.

Thinking his home, valued by police at $25,000, was being robbed, he notified Montgomery County police, the officers said. A subsequent investigation led to Mrs. Blatt's arrest when the goods were identified as stolen from the exhibit homes, police reported.

Police said they recovered from the Blatt residence household articles valued at more than $500, including 20 pictures, 3 tables, 5 chairs, 2 mirrors, 9 large and small rugs and several bedspreads.

The looted homes are at 221 Glenwood road, 7101 Massachusetts avenue and 59 Knowles street, police reported.

The alleged accomplice has been held for investigation since he was arrested Tuesday by Detective Sergts. M. B. Moore and Eugene Lambert and Precinct Detective G. S. Saunders.

The man was taken into custody at his home in the 3600 block of Quesada street northwest after he was traced, officers said, through a library card found at the Primrose street house. A check at the library revealed the card had been taken out by an applicant interested in a book dealing with old coins, detectives reported. Several old and potentially valuable coins had been stolen from one of the burglarized homes, police said.

Too Old to Fight? Army Officer, 60, Routs 2 Burglars

The Army is never too old for a fight, and although Col. Hugo E. Pitz, of the Quartermaster General's office, is 60, he threw two housebreakers through the front screen door of his home at 141 Somerset place northwest last night.

Colonel Pitz was awakened by his wife, who heard a noise in an adjoining bedroom. Colonel Pitz entered the room unarmed and found two men ransacking drawers. Wading in with both fists, he chased them downstairs.

One may be badly injured from a "blow on the button," according to Colonel Pitz. "The main thing I discovered is that my wife's lungs are fine," said the Colonel. "She woke up all the neighbors for miles around."

New Nazi Drive Perils Maginot Line

Would Be Pushed Against West Wall In Maneuver Like That in Flanders

Ralph W. Barnes

Berlin, June 13.—As the battle along a wide front on three sides of Paris was raging today, the Nazi high command made the significant claim that German forces, driving a wedge southward through the province of Champagne, had reached and taken Chalons-Sur-Marne, on the middle section of the Marne River, 25 miles southeast of Rheims.

If this wedge, now pointing like a dagger toward the heart of eastern France, were to be pushed forward successfully, it might be employed to turn the Maginot Line from the rear.

In a sense, such an operation would resemble that which trapped powerful Allied armies in western Belgium and the northern tip of France a few weeks ago. The French defenders of the Maginot Line would be caught as if in a vise, between the fortifications of the West Wall and the forces covering the west.

Separate Peace Denied

[The United Press reported from Berlin that rumors that France might have a separate peace with Germany were received with the greatest reserve in authoritative circles there.

["There is no reason to believe that a separate peace with France will be forthcoming," one reliable informant said.

[Asked if Germany was trying to make a separate peace agreement with the French, the informant replied: "There can be no comment on that matter at this time."]

Million Men in Line

Incidentally, there have been hints here that the Germans might attempt to cross the upper reaches of the Rhine into France near the Swiss frontier and drive possibly through the so-called Belfort Gap. Such an operatoin might or might not involve Switzerland. In any case, if a wedge could be hammered through in this area, it might be directed toward the one which, according to the claim, has reached Chalons-Sur-Marne.

The two wedges, if they were pushed forward as suggested, might be described as double doors, closing on the million or more French who man the Maginot Line in depth.

The German forces, according to Nazi claims, are pushing steadily southeastward into the Argonne Forest—the direction almost exactly

Bulletin

The German army is "inside the gates of Paris," Ambassador William C. Bullitt informed the State Department early today.

"The city was quiet," Bullitt's message said. He telephoned Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, United States envoy to the Polish government now at Tours, France. Biddle relayed the message to Washington.

Bullitt, who has remained at his post in Paris, sent the notification at 7 p. m. Paris time, but it was nearly 1 a. m. Eastern standard time before Biddle got word to the State Department.

Tours in Peril

By the Associated Press

Tours, France (Friday), June 14.—As the German army pressed into Paris tonight some of its vast numbers struck south toward the Loire Valley and the main routes leading toward this emergency capital. The desperately fighting and weary French armies had already decided not to attempt to defend their capital, menaced in front and from both flanks.

But the German offensive of 1,800,000 men apparently was now directed not only at the old capital, but at Tours, in whose environs the government is carrying on and where, even tonight, the cabinet declared that the fight would go on to the end, however bitter.

Nazis Pour Across Seine

The French high command's night communique acknowledged that German motorized columns had begun to "pour over" the three bridgeheads of Louviers, Les Andleys and Vernon on the Seine, in a great triangle, the nearest point but 40 miles from Paris.

They were around Pacy-sur Eure and Evreux, a region commanding the great highways leading to central France.

Both Evreux and Dreux—the latter about 100 miles north of Tours and 35 miles west of Versailles—were declared to have been bombarded by the Germans.

This new German action was directed toward a region rich in metal industries and the "chateau country" of France.

On the east, the communique said, other divisions were crossing the Marne on a 12-mile front from Chateau-Thierry to Dormans, plunging forward in the direction of Montmirail, which is about 15 miles south of the river.

'Call to the World'

(Reynaud Texts, Page 16)
By the Associated Press

Tours, France, June 13.—Premier Paul Reynaud made a "final" appeal tonight to President Roosevelt for "clouds" of aircraft and challenged Americans to "declare themselves against Nazi Germany."

"We know what a high place ideals hold in the life of the great American people," he said in a broadcast to his country while the German invaders struck down on both sides of Paris.

"Will they hesitate yet to declare themselves against Nazi Germany?"

In announcing his second plea to Mr. Roosevelt for aid—the first, asking all aid short of an expeditionary force having been made public today—the premier declared:

"It is necessary that clouds of airplanes come from across the Atlantic to crush the evil power that has descended over Europe."

Not Yet Received Here

[President Roosevelt received press and radio reports of the appeal and White House Secretary Stephen T. Early authorized this statement:

["The text of Premier Reynaud's statement has not yet been received here. But everything possible is being done to forward supplies to France."

[Beyond this statement, there was no comment.

[It appeared to indicate, however, that Mr. Roosevelt feels the United States has gone to the aid of the Allies as far as it can under the circumstances.

[Earlier the White House had made public the appeal of Reynaud, dated June 10, the day of the President's Charlottesville speech, in which he pledged all material aid to the Allies.]

"We wait with hope in our hearts."

". . . I call to the world," Reynaud said.

"I must tell them of the heroism of our soldiers—these soldiers who for six days and nights have been fighting, broken by marching and fatigue, but that is not the end of the war. It is not the end of our fatherland.

"France's soul is not broken. The world must know it. Every free man must know that France's army, the vanguard of liberty, has sacrificed herself."

He explained that his final appeal to the United States was for "all legal aid."

"It is France's life which is at stake," the premier went on.

"The fighting is getting more pain-

'Fifth Column' Activities Of Italian Consulates Exposed

Copyright by New York Times

New York, June 13.—Italian consuls general in this country, working under orders from Premier Mussolini, it became known today, are seeking to promote Fascism in this country by ideological propaganda, in schools, newspapers, magazines and through radio. A campaign to enroll members in Fascist and pro-Fascist organizations of various kinds, open and camouflaged, is being conducted as part of the consuls' activities.

These activities became known as Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine distributed this morning copies of a 25-page mimeographed confidential memorandum to the borough commanders, inspectors of the criminal alien, sabotage and bomb squads. The distribution of the memorandum, with instructions to act and make arrests wherever and whenever necessary, was made at a conference of the police officials in the office of Assistant Chief Inspector John J. Ryan at police headquarters, immediately after the regular lineup.

Police action here was said to be part of a Nation-wide drive to check anti-national defense moves.

The memorandum gave in detail the results of a lengthy investigation into Fascist activities carried on in this city and elsewhere. According to the authorities these activities were carried on with the approval of the Italian consulate officers, the latter working under the mantle of diplomatic immunity.

It was said the investigators were able to obtain copies of governmental instructions to the consulates to disseminate propaganda.

Italian organizations were instructed to preach fascism, enlist all possible aid for it, and try as effectively as possible to bring in new with the

Stay-on-Job Sentiment Gains in House

Senate, However, Speeds Tax Bill, Hopes to Adjourn

With indications multiplying in the House that adjournment may be postponed beyond the scheduled date of June 22, Senate leaders yesterday reaffirmed their hope that Congress may yet quit according to plan.

"We may as well be candid about it—I don't think we can adjourn as planned," said Speaker Bankhead at his press conference yesterday morning, with House Majority Leader Rayburn at his side.

But late in the afternoon, Senate Majority Leader Barkley said he saw no reason why pending business could not be wound up by the end of next week. And Chairman Harrison, of the Finance Committee, went ahead with plans to get the emergency tax bill before the Senate Monday, with an eye to completing action on the measure in time for adjournment the following Saturday.

However, there is apparently strong sentiment in the constituencies against Congress going home during the war crisis; and according to one estimate the Administration would be beaten by 50 votes in the House on a motion to adjourn.

Representative Rayburn analyzed the adjournment movement yesterday with the caustic comment:

"A great many gentlemen talk against adjournment, but it would be my opinion that a great many of them, if there were a secret ballot, would vote to adjourn by an overwhelming majority. Under the circumstances, however, I think I may state that in all probability all gentlemen will have all the time to stay in Washington this summer that they desire." (An adjournment motion would undoubtedly call forth open record vote.)

Recess More Likely

If the Senate voted to adjourn and the House refused, the President would have the constitutional power to send Congress home; but this eventuality is not considered probable. It is thought that a recess during the Republican convention is more likely.

But whether or not Congress adjourns next week, the tax bill will probably come out in more or less its present form, with the addition of the Byrd amendment cutting Federal nondefense expenditures by 10 per cent. There is a strong movement for a general overhauling of the tax structure; but, according to one of its sponsors, Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, the law could probably not be satisfactorily rewritten before October.

Suggestions for new taxes totaling several hundred million dollars a year were advanced by various members of the Senate Finance Committee at hearings on the tax bill yesterday. Few if any of these proposals are expected to be included in the pending measure, however.

The proposed half-cent a gallon increase in the gasoline tax might be raised to a full cent, bringing in an extra $112,000,000, suggested Senator Barkley.

Many Taxes Proposed

The possibility was brought forward of taxing soft drinks a cent a bottle, to obtain a new $76,000,000 in revenue, and of taxing all theater admissions from 10 cents up (instead of from 40 cents, as under the pending bill), to bring in $60,000,000 additional.

Under another proposal, the income tax exemption of married persons would be lowered from the present bill's figure of $2,000 to $1,800—a broadening of the base that might yield $35,000,000 a year.

Senator Brown (Democrat), of Michigan, mentioned the possibility of taxing everybody $5 who files an income tax return—and the pending bill is expected to bring in 8,000,000 new returns. Another committee member suggested imposing a head tax on everyone, in addition to all other taxes.

McKellar Predicts Hull's Name To Be Offered for Vice Presidency

Convention Will Be Asked to Nominate Secretary on Third-Term Ticket Unless He Requests No Action, Senator Declares

By Robert C. Albright

The name of Secretary of State Cordell Hull will be presented to the Democratic National Convention for the Vice Presidential nomination on a third-term ticket unless he specifically requests that it not be.

This prediction was made yesterday by Senator Kenneth McKellar, stalwart Tennessee Democrat, who has repeatedly called on the President to seek a third term.

McKellar voiced the opinion that the Tennessee Democratic delegation to be chosen June 20 will go to the convention as a unit for "Roosevelt and Hull" unless the Secretary of State, who remains aloof from the campaign, turns thumbs down.

"We couldn't name a stronger ticket," said McKellar.

Vinson Boosts Ticket

Other Hull supporters who have recently called at the White House have proposed this ticket combination to the President. In each instance where a third term or a running mate was suggested the President responded only with a smile—his present form of reply to the unanswered query.

While McKellar off the Senate floor was urging the Roosevelt-Hull slate, across the Capitol Representative Carl Vinson, of Georgia, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, plugged for the ticket. Vinson said Georgia wanted Hull to run with Roosevelt. A White House visitor Wednesday, Vinson conferred with McKellar yesterday.

Efforts for Hull were revived amid a flurry of Vice Presidential activity based on the now general assumption that the President won't run. Inner New Dealers have been urging selection of Associate Justice William O. Douglas with friendly eyes turned as well to Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina.

Chairman John Hamilton, of the Republican National Committee, meantime loosed a final blast at the third term before leaving for Philadelphia where Republicans will debate a platform next week and assemble in convention June 24.

Hamilton declared "there is very grave danger to our democratic institutions in the prospect of a third term and all that it implies in the trend toward totalitarianism in this country."

"The people must look to the Republican Party if the peace of the Nation is to be preserved," he added.

He charged the Democratic Administration has mishandled the defense program "in the face of months of warning and of a full knowledge of the country's unpreparedness to meet an emergency."

Terming this convention the most important in the party's history, he predicted it would run for five full days instead of the customary four because of the more than ten nominating speeches expected, with four seconding addresses for each. Omitting demonstrations, he said nominating speeches with a 30-minute elimination will consume over 680 minutes.

Hamilton announced the convention resolutions committee will assemble in Philadelphia Monday to organize, devote the next day to deliberations with key members of the Glenn Frank committee, and hear "various groups and individuals" beginning Wednesday. He said he knew of no plans to delay framing a foreign policy plank.

On Monday the arrangements committee will meet to complete convention details, and on Wednesday the national committee will open sessions on delegate contests.

Tentative Schedule

The tentative convention schedule calls for:

Opening session Monday, June 24, to set up committees and to hear keynote speech by Gov. Stassen of Minnesota at night.

Tuesday—Speech by House Minority Leader Martin, permanent chairman; reports of committees, and address by former President Hoover at night.

Wednesday—Platform report of the resolutions committee and election of a new national committee, with nomination speeches commencing at night. Nominating speeches continue over two days and balloting will follow.

Three candidates for the Republican Presidential nomination—Senator Taft, of Ohio; Frank Gannett, of Rochester, N. Y., and Senator Bridges, of New Hampshire—yesterday set up convention headquarters in Philadelphia.

The Gallup Poll

Large Majority in Survey Favor Purchase Of Allied Territory Near Panama Canal

By Dr. George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 13.—A Nation-wide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion finds substantial sentiment in this country for purchasing the British, Dutch and French possessions in the area of the Panama Canal.

GALLUP

This proposal was first put forward by the Scripps-Howard newspapers as a means of providing money for the Allies to buy war materials without reopening the issue of loans and war debts, and also as a means of protecting the approaches to the Panama Canal. In order to remove any hint of imperialism, the sponsors of the proposal suggest that Latin American republics be invited to join with the United States in the purchase.

81% Favor Plan

To determine what sort of reaction the American public might have to this proposal, the institute conducted a cross-section survey asking this question:

"If the Allies need more money for running the war, would you be in favor of the United States and other American republics buying the British, French and Dutch possessions in the area of the Panama Canal?"

Those expressing an opinion voted as follows:

Would favor purchase 81%
Would oppose purchase 19

Approximately one voter in every six (16 per cent) expressed no opinion.

The possessions involved are the British Bermudas and Bahamas off the East Coast of the American mainland; British Jamaica, south of Cuba; the Windward and Leeward Islands; the Dutch Islands of Curacao and Aruba, close to the canal; the British, French and Dutch Guianas on the South American mainland and Trinidad just off the coast, and British Honduras in Central America north of the canal.

Many of these possessions, it is pointed out, are of strategic value in the defense of the canal. According to the sponsors of the suggestion to purchase the territory, the United States could afford to pay a good price for them—enough to provide the Allies with a considerable sum for arms, airplanes and war supplies.

Today's study is the second dealing with the public's attitude toward Allied possessions in the vicinity of the Caribbean. Last week a survey found that, if Germany defeats the Allies, a large majority of American voters—84 per cent—say they would be willing to fight if necessary to keep the Nazis out of British, French and Dutch territory around the canal.

Both surveys indicate that the public is acutely aware of possible danger to the country if these Allied outposts in the Western Hemisphere fall into German hands. The majority are willing to buy them, or if necessary to fight for them—a reassertion by the public of the Monroe Doctrine.

'Must Finance Allies'

The reasons for the majority sentiment in today's poll, as given by voters themselves, are chiefly that buying the Allied possessions would be a measure of self-defense and protection for the canal, that "we must finance England and France in every way if they are to win," and that if the United States does not buy the possessions, and Germany wins, "the Nazis may exact those possessions and then we'd have the dictators in our backyard."

Voters opposing the purchase, on the other hand, say that the United States has enough territory to take care of now, that a purchase might bring us into conflict with Germany over the possessions, and that our national debt is large enough now without contracting other debts.

Armies Will March Soon, Fascists Predict as French Bases Are Raided

British Claim 62 Prisoners in Fight On Libyan Frontier

By the Associated Press

Rome, June 13.—Italy waged war or fought off attacks with her air and sea forces in half a dozen scattered zones tonight, and Fascists predicted their armies, too, would be on the march before long.

On the third day of inconclusive war making, King Victor Emmanuel called upon all the peoples of the new Roman Empire to put everything they have into the conflict, "for the cause of justice and Italy's own independence."

French Bases Bombed

The Italian high command reported that in addition to bombing Malta, the Italian air force had made forays on two of France's great naval bases, Bizerte, in Tunisia, and Toulon, in France.

In the Libya and Ethiopian theaters of war, Italians said, British air raids were fought off.

The Milan newspaper, Corriere Della Sera, declared that the entrance of the Italian army into action, presumably against France, was imminent.

The government computed Italy's first war casualties from air bombardment at 14 dead and 39 wounded at the north Italy industrial city of Turin and 10 dead in Ethiopia.

Of those killed in Turin by British bombs yesterday, it was said, one soldier and two women were among the 13 civilians killed. Seventeen women, mostly housewives, and an 11-month-old child were listed among the wounded.

Two Ships Torpedoed

Many victims were reported to be workmen, indicating the bombs fell in an industrial area of suburban Turin where airplane and armament factories are located.

At sea, the Italians announced, their submarines torpedoed an enemy cruiser and a tanker of undisclosed nationality. A small Italian minesweeper was acknowledged sunk by British bombing planes at Tobruk, Libya.

In a revision of the army command, Gen. Ubaldo Soddu, formerly undersecretary for war, became vice chief of the general staff under Marshal Pietro Badoglio.

The envoys of three countries which have fallen before Germany, Italy's partner in war, left Rome by train for Switzerland, possibly indicating a breach of relations with Italy. They represent Norway, Denmark and the Netherlands. The Belgian envoy will leave later this week.

The return of the Russian Ambassador, Nikolai Gorechin, here was hailed as an indication of improved relations between Italy and Russia.

A radio announcement said the Minister from Ireland had informed Foreign Minister Ciano that Eire would remain neutral.

opposite that taken by American troops in the Allied offensive which ended in the Armistice of 1918—form the eastern flank of the wedge which has its tip at Chalons-Sur-Marne.

In its dailiy bulletin, the supreme command reported that, since the new offensive in France began eight days ago, more than 100,000 prisoners have been taken. Included in this number are more than 26,000 French and British troops, which, it is now stated, surrendered yesterday after having been trapped in the coastal area about St. Valery-En-Caux.

"Rapid Progress"

Apart from Chalons-sur-Marne, the supreme command failed today to mention the names of cities or towns captured in advances reported. The bulletin announced that "operations along the whole front have made rapid progress," and the German forces have fought their way southward across the Marne at many points—apparently between Chalons-sur-Marne and the point at which the river is joined by its tributary, the Ourcq.

Although yesterday it was announced that the armies driving southward between the coast and Paris had crossed the lower Seine at many points, no specific reference is made to these operations in the bulletins today. Nor are any further details divulged regarding the operations north and northwest of Paris. Yesterday the supreme command claimed that in the northwest, in the lower Oise Valley, German "divisions" had approached to within 12 miles of the capital.

The bulletins of the day ignore the French claim to have staged a successful counterattack in the fortified area north of Paris.

The experience of the past few weeks has shown the inadvisability of assuming that the failure of the supreme command to provide full details every day of the progress of the offensive means that a serious setback or even a halt has been experienced. Tonight's French war bulletins make it clear that the German advance southward across the lower Seine is progressing at various points.

Two-Fold Purpose Seen

As far as the difficulty of the situation for Paris itself, it would not be unreasonable to assume that German forces which face the fortifications of the capital have been halted, at least temporarily, by those defenses.

British Bomb Italian Base At Asmara, Take 62 Prisoners

By Philip Taylor
United Press Staff Writer

Cairo, June 13.—A strong aerial bombing of the Italian military base at Asmara and the capture of 62 Italian prisoners—the first of the war—by British troops, who crawled across desert sands and cut through barbed-wire entanglements were reported officially tonight.

British Blenheim bombers struck deep into Italian East Africa and bombed military objectives along the railroad from Djibouti to Addis Ababa.

[The Associated Press reported from Cairo that an official broadcast advised all persons able to leave Alexandria to do so—"now."]

The British land forces were said to have crawled across the western desert and hacked through barbed-wire the Italians had strung 250 miles along the Egyptian-Libyan frontier.

British troops comprising a light tank unit swept through a section of the barbed-wire and pounced on an Italian patrol which apparently was caught by surprise, it was said.

It was announced that native prisoners also were taken in the raid. Three machine guns were captured.

The skirmish occurred Wednesday night and was the first land operation since Premier Mussolini declared war.

[The British East African command reported that south of Ethiopia, enemy planes had bombed Moyale on the Kenya frontier with slight damage in two attacks and that early today three planes bombed Wajir (El Sadi), just over the Kenya border from Italian Somaliland, slightly wounded two British fliers.

[Enemy planes appeared over Nairobi, Kenya, Tuesday night, but did not drop any bombs, it was stated.]

You know, Fathers are taken pretty much for granted . . . you more or less expect them to be around when the pinch comes. But what of Father's side? Who knows, except Father himself, how much he appreciates the little things of life. Fathers are not as a general rule sentimental . . . but the picture above just about expresses the deep regard he has for his family . . . the side he has difficulty in expressing.

And so next Sunday, the nation honors Fathers all over the country . . . honors them for what they are . . . for what they have done. Make this your opportunity to express your regard . . . with a gift from Woodward & Lothrop he will sincerely appreciate . . . on

Defense Group Plans Survey Of Production

Nation-Wide Inventory To Seek Data on Making War Goods

An emergency inventory of the Nation's power to produce goods of every type useful in war and peace will shortly be undertaken by the Defense Commission, it was learned yesterday.

"Factory by factory, town by town, farm by farm we are going to study this Nation's power to produce," an official source said.

"What we need to know is how many tanks we can make, how many planes, how many gas masks, how many guns, how much powder, how many ships and similar information along every line."

In charge of the study will be Robert R. Nathan, chief of the division of national income statistics for the Department of Commerce. Formal announcement of Nathan's appointment will be made shortly, it was understood. At the Defense Commission he will be associated with Leon Henderson, who is in charge of the price features of rearmament.

Staff Enlarged

This development came shortly before Edward R. Stettinius, jr., member of the commission in charge of raw materials, announced addition of these members to his staff:

W. Averell Harriman, New York, chairman of the board of Union Pacific Railroad Co., to act as liaison between Stettinius and Ralph Budd, also a commission member, on questions of transportation of raw materials.

Walter S. Tower, New York, president of the American Iron and Steel Institute, as consultant on steel industry matters.

Edward R. Weidlein, director of Mellon Institute, Pittsburgh, consultant on the chemical industry. Harriman formerly was chairman of the Department of Commerce's business advisory council.

Marion B. Folsom, treasurer, Eastman Kodak Co.

Blackwell Smith, member of the law firm of Wright, Gorden, Zachry & Parlin.

Served in World War

Both Tower and Weidlein served on national boards during the World War, the former as a trade expert for the United States Shipping Board, and the latter as chemical expert on the War Industries Board.

Plans to put plane, war tank, gun and munitions manufacture on a mass-production basis unrivaled in history were mapped yesterday at discussing prospective transfers of Army-Navy surplus munitions to the Allies were said on high authority to result from fears that attempts might be made to destroy them while in process of delivery.

Defense Commissioners Meet at White House

The heated debate on foreign policy which has occurred daily in the Senate since Mr. Roosevelt set forth his help-the-Allies-short-of-war program at Charlottesville was renewed late yesterday.

Pepper Criticizes Vargas

Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, declared the recent statement of President Vargas of Brazil, praising the totalitarian way of life, indicates that he "is as one" with Europe's dictators, or that he recognizes that a large number of Brazilians are pro-German.

Pepper urged Senators to "speak out against Hitlerism" and "back up President Roosevelt" lest their "appeasement policy" encourages the Latin-America countries to begin to appease the dictators and ignore the United States.

"Where are the advocates of appeasement going to make their stand?" he asked, directly his remarks to Senate opponents of the President's policy, "if not on the Rhine, or in France, or Brazil, where will they stand?"

Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, criticized Pepper for "linking an American president with the dictators," before he has the full facts. He urged that Pepper use more caution and wait until Vargas' full statement is available in the United States. Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, also slapped back at Pepper, calling him a "warmonger."

Fish Presents Bill

The "green light" on legislation declaring the United States will oppose any territorial change in the Americas was voted by the House Rules Committee after Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, told the group the United States should go to war, if necessary, to defend the Monroe Doctrine.

Fish, a bitter critic of much of the Administration foreign policy, backed the bill and was chosen by the House Foreign Affairs Committee to present it to the rules body.

Other defense developments yesterday included:

Acting Secretary of the Navy, Lewis Compton placed orders totaling $9,368,287 for machinery to modernize three old submarines and to equip six new submersibles, a submarine tender and two seaplane tenders.

Battleship Launched

The 35,000-ton battleship North Carolina was launched at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Its sister ship, the Washington, slid down the ways at Philadelphia June 1.

Announcement was made that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will make another radio address on American foreign policy tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. His subject is "Our Drift Toward War."

The House Judiciary Committee unanimously approved a bill to permit the F. B. I. to tap wires in cases where the national defense may be jeopardized.

There was a report that Col. Lindbergh, who met with a group of legislators Wednesday, had told them that the United States could not be successfully invaded "in our lifetime."

He was quoted as saying that he had spent six months in Greenland looking for a site for a commercial air base and found that country so unsuitable that it was preposterous to think that any invading country could establish military air bases there.

To make an invasion of the United States possible from the south, he said, the invading nation would first have to establish not only air bases, but also machine shops and manufacturing plants in Latin America. All present at the conference agreed, it was said, that such an encroachment could not be tolerated by the United States.

It was said, too, that Lindbergh told the group he thought that if France gave in to the Nazis, the latter would be able to block the British fleet outside the English Channel and facilitate an invasion of England.

Meanwhile, other officials took the following actions in the national defense program:

Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, told a press conference that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would lend corporations between $100,000,000 and $250,000,000 for purchase of stockpiles of strategic raw materials. A bill now in its final Congressional stages would give him this power.

Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau said, at a press conference, that he would not favor giving corporations a proposed 20 per cent depreciation allowance on new plant capacity unless this be coupled with an excess profits tax. He indicated no desire for action at this session on the excess profits proposal, but said he was not against enacting it now.

For an hour and 40 minutes the Nation's top-ranking defense advisors sat in the White House canvassing means to speed the country's vast preparedness program. When they emerged, they declined to discuss what had transpired.

Seek Information

The inventory is dictated by the fact that no accurate information is now available on the real productive capacity of the Nation in many lines, it was learned.

The War Department, under supervision of Assistant Secretary Louis Johnson, has cross-indexed hundreds of firms whose products are closely linked to manufacure of actual combat equipment.

But there the information stops. Officials say they have no thorough picture of the Nation's power to produce. Lack of this information, they disclosed, may be a handicap in the work of William S. Knudson and Stettinius, production and material members of the commission.

Almost every field of national activity, every man's job, will be surveyed by Nathan, it was learned. The study will extend to power, railroads and even to the food-producing ability of the Nation's farms.

British Stop Navicerts To Mediterranean Ports

The British and French embassies announced yesterday that "in view of the present situation in the Mediterranean" no more navicerts would be issued for shipments to Italy, Spain, Portugal, Switzerland, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Greece, Bulgaria, Rumania and Turkey.

"Navicerts already granted must be regarded as invalid."

Navicerts are statments certifying to the British contraband patrol that exports so covered do not come within British contraband restrictions.

'Stop Hitler Now' Move In U. S. Stirs Nazi Press

Berlin, June 13 (AP).—The German press, commenting today on the "Stop Hitler Now" movement in the United States remarked:

"That is easy to say several thousand kilometers from the Marne. "Weygand (French generalissimo) would like to carry through, too, but he will not make it any more."

The "Stop Hitler Now" movement in the United States is being carried on by newspaper advertising and otherwise by the "Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies." William Allen White, Emporia, Kan., newspaper editor and author, is national chairman.

Roosevelt Signs Bill for Teachers' Sabbatical Leave

President Roosevelt yesterday signed a bill authorizing public school teachers of Washington to take sabbatical leave at part pay, and a measure to amend the District code relative to the definition of first degree murder.

The latter, which extends first degree murder to a killing performed during the perpetration of a felony, clarifies the District code by eliminating the word "purposely" in the definition. Heretofore, difficulty has been encountered in charging a person with first degree murder if he kills another accidentally or incidentally while committing a felony.

Narvik Over-rated, New Attache Says

Ore Sent by Rail Since September Via Sweden, He Reports

COMDR. RIISER-LARSEN

Narvik has not been a vital ore port to Germany since the beginning of the war in September, Commander Hjalmar Riiser-Larsen said last night on his arrival here to be naval attache at the Norwegian Legation.

"Narvik's importance has been greatly overrated," said Commander Riiser-Larsen. "Iron ore has been going to Germany by rail through Sweden since the beginning of the war."

The naval officer, who fought during the German invasion of his country and who was second in command in Roald Amundsen's Arctic expeditions in 1925 and 1926, arrived in this country after traveling in 29 vehicles. He said he traveled in "everything from oxcart to airplane," but would not divulge his route since Norwegians are still escaping by the same means.

The British and French expeditionary forces sent to Norway Commander Riiser-Larsen termed "not strong but very efficient." Their chief weakness was a lack of planes because all airfields had been captured by the Nazis, he said.

"I believe the German invasion was a complete surprise to the French and English," he continued. "If they had expected it, they could have more easily stopped the German transports."

To "political betrayal" instigated by "that Red," Quisling, and not to any betrayal by army or navy officers, he blamed his country's downfall.

Flying Club to Get Charter Tonight

The new Flying Club of National University will be chartered by the National Aeronautic Association at a dinner at the University Club at 8 o'clock tonight. Rear Admiral John Henry Towers, Navy air leader, will be the guest of honor. The club was formed to aid national defense by fostering interest in flying and has 50 members.

Girl Scouts Give Program for D.A.R.

Girl Scout Troop 1 put on a program depicting the origin of Old Glory and the Union Jack as a feature of the last meeting this season of Thomas Nelson Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. The meeting was held last night at the home of Mrs. Robert E. Johnson in Clarendon.

The chapter pledged additional aid to restoration of the ballroom in Gadsby's Tavern in Alexandria.

Allies' Envoys to the Vatican Become 'Voluntary Prisoners'

By the Associated Press

Vatican City, June 13 (AP).—The French ambassador and British minister to the Holy See today became voluntary prisoners, closely watched to forestall any spying on Italy, within the walls of the 13-acre Vatican City for duration of the war.

They will be unable to leave their refuge in the sovereign state within Rome. A competent source disclosed the antiespionage guard on the diplomats, Count Vladimir D'Ormesson and Sir Francis D'Arcy Osborne.

All their visitors will be examined closely.

The two will continue use of diplomatic mail privileges, which means inviolability from Italian eyes, the informant said.

Meanwhile, L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican newspaper, published an account of how it would be forced to eliminate war news completely from its columns.

Italian authorities refused to allow circulation of French and British war communiques, which L'Osservatore has been printing.

The paper failed to appear yesterday when authorities decided to suspend publication for duration of the war. But they finally decided at noon today to continue with the publication as a strictly religious paper, although its masthead still carries its description as a "political religious daily."

Vatican life goes on with customary medieval calm.

Fuel for Vatican automobiles has been rationed for several months. Food rationing has not been started for the more than 700 inhabitants, half of whom are ecclesiastics. They are obliged, however, to reserve food supplies at the sole Vatican City grocery store at the start of each month so a check can be kept on consumption and hoarding prevented.

Three Vatican City bars again are dispensing drinks to those allowed within the city.

Although museums and libraries are closed, the public still is admitted on explanation of necessary business and upon identification under close scrutiny.

The Pope continues to receive daily news reports from all parts of the world, compiled for him mostly from radio broadcasts and dispatches of his diplomatic representatives.

Just what do we mean by FOOD DEPARTMENT STORES?

No need to paint a word picture of a department store, even to the most occasional shopper. Today, it is the first port of call for the great majority of shoppers, who realize that there they select from not one, but many nationally accepted high-quality lines; from fresher merchandise that is assured by speedier stock turn-over; from an all-inclusive item variety due to the complete, full-size departments devoted to each major commodity.

Apply these same principles to food merchandising and you have—and have only—the GIANT Food Department Stores!

Reynaud Makes 'Final' Appeal to U. S. To Rush Aid as Paris Falls to Germans

ful, but we have the right to hope that the day will approach when our cause will prevail.

"The day will come and must come."

Reynaud said the French government quit Paris because it was necessary to "prevent Hitler from suppressing the legal government and declaring to the world that France has no government except a puppet government.

"Whatever may happen in the forthcoming days," he continued, "Frenchmen will remember the task of their nation and will unite around the wounded fatherland until the day of resurrection.

"The day of our resurrection will come," he added.

"I have seen arrive from the battle men who had not slept in five days, harassed by airplanes, fatigued by long marches and heavy combats.

"These men, whose nerves the enemy thought broken, had no doubt about the final issue of the war. They had no doubt about the future of the fatherland."

The earlier Reynaud message to Mr. Roosevelt given out today, asked the President to tell Americans that "we are resolved to sacrifice ourselves in the struggle we are leading for all free men."

He thanked Mr. Roosevelt for "generous aid in arms and aviation."

The date of the first Reynaud statement coincided with the Italian declaration of war and President Roosevelt's Charlottesville address promising material aid to the Allies.

[In Washington, Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said the President's Charlottesville speech on the same day of the Reynaud appeal was a coincidence and that it formed an answer to the appeal.]

French Troops Evacuate Paris

and forward and at times within 12 miles of the city's outskirts, "at least" 12 Nazi divisions attacked between Senlis and Betz. This followed a French counter-attack which threw the Nazis back 5 miles, or to about 25 miles from mid-Paris.

The cabinet's session here was attended by Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Britain and Lord Halifax, Britain's foreign secretary.

Paris wore a brave face even as the Nazi offensive pushed ever closer.

On the low-nanging clouds in the west the reflection of fires could be seen, but on the Champs Elysees the cafes still were open and there were strollers on the avenues.

The French decision not to try to fight the invader in the streets of the city itself was made during the day.

Instead, it was proclaimed to all the world that they would fall back if necessary to the south and dig in there again; and if ousted there would fight on even in their American possessions—such as French Guiana in South America, the islands of Martinque and Guadeloupe in the West Indies, and St. Pierre and Miquelon off Newfoundland.

Paris was declared to be an open city—and thus, under international law, one not subject to bombing—in a last effort to save its priceless treasures and its buildings of the ages.

[In Washington, the State Department announced that, through U. S. Ambassador William C. Bullitt the French had advised Germany that all troops had been removed from the city.]

Without such a declaration, the Germans had made clear, Paris might be broken under a rain of bombs as was Warsaw.

With the force of 120 divisions, many of them fresh troops, the Nazis stabbed on into the weary French, who have had never a moment of relief since the beginning of the battle on the Somme.

Fighting still was going on bitterly scarcely a dozen miles from Paris' outskirts. Desperate French counter-attacks just north of the capital, around Beaumont, were acknowledged to have gained ground only against lessening German pressure in that locality.

But French informants put the main invading forces at about 36 miles from the citys' gates.

They acknowledged the establishment of a German bridgehead on the south bank of the Marne, near Chateau-Thierry, about 45 miles from Paris; that the Nazis were driving on toward the vital port of Le Havre, and had taken historic Reims with the smashing force of great groups of tanks and armored cars.

House Passes Bridges Bill

mous consent to read into the record a lengthy letter from Bridges.

When objections were made, Marcantonio observed that the House was proceeding to a "legislative lynching." The objections were withdrawn and Marcantonio was allowed to read the letter, in which Bridges claimed that the attempt "to railroad me out of the country" was being used to prevent conclusion of a contract between longshoremen and employers on the West Coast.

Representative Miller (Republican), of Connecticut, legless veteran of the World War, denounced the Bridges bill as paving the way for measures to deport any unpopular people—such as "alien mothers-in-law." Miller's motion to send the measure back to committee was shouted down in a deafening roar of "noes."

No other country in the world would tolerate an "agitator" like Bridges, said Representative Fish (Republican), of New York. "The time has come," he declared, "to find out whether Bridges or Congress runs this Government."

The House Judiciary Committee yesterday approved a bill, sponsored by Representative Celler (Democrat), of New York, to permit the Justice Department to tap wires in its investigation of suspected activities.

British Pour Troops, Guns Into France, Battle on Seine

that the government extend conscription to all males from 18 to 55 and if necessary drill them in civilian clothes and with broomsticks in village commons and city streets until rifles, clothing and barracks are available.]

Home Defense to Home Guard

Press and public agreed that home defense must be left to the home guard. The army is needed in France.

Germany claimed 20,000 captured. And of German statements that "incalculable amounts" of war supplies were seized, one British source commented: "Whatever the interpretation of this word, the quantity of material taken was not enormous."

British pilots dived into antiaircraft fire to keep up for the third day their steady pounding at far-flung enemy positions in Norway.

"Blind bombing" through a North Sea fog, they reported an attack on two German destroyers and direct hits on ships and land batteries at Bergen, Norway, Harbor, and on hangars and runways of an airdrome at Vernes, Norway. German ground crews were machine-gunned by the diving planes.

Naval aircraft fliers claimed they blew a German speedboat out of the water and damaged other ships and ammunition barges in the German-held French port of Boulogne.

Streaking out of bases in Egypt and Kenya, on the African east coast, British and South African bombers spilled explosives onto ships in Italian ports of Libya and Eritrea and struck inland at Italian-conquered Abyssinia. They reported direct hits on airdromes and troop centers at Diredawa and other Abyssinian cities, and raids on Macaaca, Asmara and Gura along the Eritrean Red Sea coast.

Informed sources said about 300,000 men of 28 would be registered for military service Saturday, and that many more of 29 would register June 22.

The "fifth column" cleanup has interned 10,896 German and Austrian sympathizers and some Italians and the House of Lords was told by a member that "one or two" lords should be arrested.

"I am glad the government have imprisoned a well-known person who, I understand, had been nominated gauleiter (German provincial governor) for England, and a member of the House of Commons who, I understand, was nominated gauleiter for Scotland," said Lord Marley, the Labor peer. He added:

"There are one or two members of your lordships' house who also should be similarly treated, notably those who have been so closely personally connected with Herr Hitler through their families or otherwise."

He did not name names.

Secret Session Tuesday

The House of Commons was told there would be a postponed secret session next Tuesday to discuss the war program.

The war came home harder to anxious London. Parents watched 20,000 children, all name-tagged, wave good-by from trains taking them to country refuges. Another 100,000 will follow in the next six days. All carried gas masks and lunch.

That will leave in London nearly 330,000 more children whose parents failed to register them early.

German and Italian air forces struck at Britain on scattered fronts.

Antiaircraft guns drove off German planes seen in the early morning over England's southeast coast.

Five Arabs were killed and six wounded in an air raid on Aden, British protectorate across the lower end of the Red Sea from Italian Eritrea. One bomber, presumably Italian, was reported shot down.

Raids were reported over British East African territory. Wajir, in the upper Nile country near Juba, was bombed. A communique said two R. A. F. airmen were injured slightly and one plane damaged. An air raid alarm Tuesday night over Nairobi, seat of government in the British Province of Kenya, proved false. Nairobi is 350 air miles from Abyssinia.

No penetration of British, French or Italian colonial territory in Africa by ground troops was reported.

Butter in Warsaw Costs $3.50 Lb., Pastor Writes

Butter at $3.50 a pound, meat at $2 a pound and 60 cents for the equivalent of a quart of coffee are some of the wartime prices in Warsaw, Poland, according to a letter received by Dr. Robert C. Warfield, of Rockville, Md., from his son, the Rev. Gaither P. Warfield, superintendent of the Methodist Church in the Warsaw district.

Milk cannot be had at any price except for children up to 10 years of age, the letter states, and adds, "Life would be much easier if food prices were not so high and, in some cases, food so scarce."

The Rev. Mr. Warfield has been in Warsaw since 1924. His wife is a native of Poland.

The Post Visits Alfred M. Laforest, Typical Washington Father

UM-M-MPH! Daddy Laforest stand only 5 feet 5 inches in stocking feet, but he can make two armloads of the four little Laforests—Aubin and Stephen (front), Mary Caroline and Antoinette (rear)

"DADDY TAKES US RIDING IN HIS CAR," Mary Caroline wrote in her winning letter. And here's the proof. "We help him work around the yard and Sunday is pay day and he pays us and lets buy ice cream . . . Daddy gave us all nick names. Butch is Aubin. Tony is Antoinette, Dutch is Stephen and I am Irish," wrote Mary Caroline

Every Day Is Father's Day For Typical Washington Dad

Here he is, Washington's typical father—Alfred M. Laforest.

Nominated by his daughter, Mary Caroline, 8 years old, Laforest emerged on top from among a huge field of candidates whose qualifications were so uniformly good it was extremely difficult selecting a winner in The Post's Father's Day Contest.

The victor is 34, 5 feet 5 and weighs 170. He, his wife, four children and wife's parents live in a plain but comfortable house at 1737 W street southeast. Dad is a builder and remodeler, in business for himself.

Honorable mention goes to Karl Plitt, a jeweler, of 6309 Delaware street, Chevy Chase, Md., and William F. Austin, an insurance man, of 1310 Longfellow street northwest.

Plitt had formidable support. He was nominated separately by his wife, because "our children think he couldn't be beat and I must agree;" by his son, Frederick, 20, a senior at American University, who thinks "there isn't another dad in town who gives so freely of his time, help, energy, love and advice;" by his mother-in-law and by several friends of the family.

It was Austin's twins, Patsy Lee and Billy, who were born on Father's Day in 1937, who put him in the race, abetted by their mother.

"Our dad gives us and mommy every minute of his time when he is not at work," Mrs. Austin wrote in the twins' behalf. "He plays with us in the yard, teaches us stunts, and takes us for rides in the car to the zoo and the beach. He is trying to teach us self-confidence in the water so that we will be able to take care of ourselves . . . If every boy and girl's dad had the smile our dad has there would be more sunshine in their homes."

Following is the letter, unabridged, received from Mary Caroline Laforest which led to her daddy's being chosen winner of the Father's Day Contest:

"Gentlemen: My mother told me The Washington Post is trying to find an average father and that I should write you a letter about my Daddy and tell you some of the things he does.

"Well, I guess he works most of the time but sometimes he plays with us. He is real strong and can throw us up in the air and catch us, then he lies on the floor and we try to hold him down. Butch holds one arm, Tony holds the other arm, I sit on his feet and Dutch sits on his stomach.

"Daddy gave us all nicknames. Butch is Aubin, Tony is Antoinette, Dutch is Stephen and I am Irish. I will be in the fourth grade next year, Tony will be in the second grade and Butch will start to kindergarten. Dutch is only two years old.

"Daddy takes us riding in his car sometimes. He took Tony and me to the circus last month and when I was first in class he gave me a dollar. We help him work around the yard and Sunday is payday and he pays us and lets us buy ice cream.

"He is very strict with us and when he spanks it really hurts, but he hasn't spanked me in a long time because I do what he tells me. Daddy won't let me read the funny papers until he has read the paper. He takes off his shoes and his shirt and sits in the living room and reads the paper. He always has to ask Butch or Tony or me to find his slippers and get the ash tray.

"We love our Daddy and think he is sure to be selected by The Washington Post. You look at his picture (it was enclosed in the letter) and you will see I am right.

"Yours very truly, Mary Caroline Laforest, 1737 W street southeast."

A native of St. Louis, Laforest came to Washington to live in 1917. He will have been married ten years in November. He sold insurance before going into the contracting business a few years ago. He has blue eyes, a thin mustache, smokes cigars, enjoys a friendly game of poker, has a dog called Brownie, attends St. Teresa's Church and gets along fine with his mother-in-law.

Incidentally, it was noticed, after the winner and honorable mentions had been decided upon, that all three dads share their homes with their mothers-in-law.

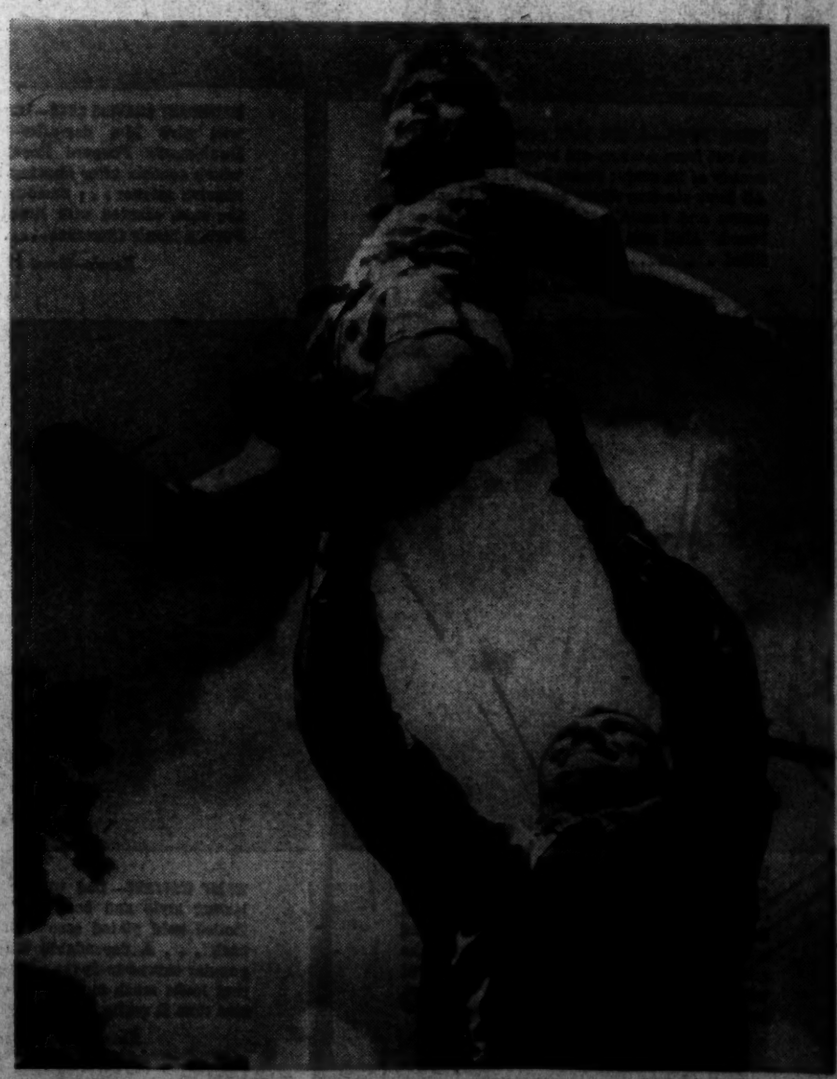
"WAKE UP, POPS, TIME TO GO TO WORK." Butch is dad's favorite alarm clock

THE SIX LAFORESTS, including mother, who was mighty proud her husband was chosen Washington's ideal father

These Dads Won Honorable Mention

"CAMERA! ACTION!" Daddy William F. Austin, who won honorable mention in the Father's Day contest, directs the twins, Patsy Lee and Billy, in a gripping backyard scene. Patsy Lee and Billy were born on Father's Day in 1937

THEY THINK HE'S THE BEST DAD IN TOWN—Karl Plitt, a downtown jeweler, had stanch support from his two children, Marjorie and Frederick (shown), his wife, mother-in-law and several friends of the family, all informing the Father's Day editor their candidate is the best



Post Staff Photos—McCoy.

"UP YOU GO!" This is Aubin, whom pop calls Butch. Wrote Mary Caroline about her father—"He is real strong and can throw us up in the air and catch us . . ."

FATHER'S DAY IS NEXT SUNDAY

DAD Deserves HIS DAY

DOESN'T this picture bring back memories . . . it does to us. Recall the Sunday Dad took you hiking up the river to Great Falls. That was the time you lost your new Official Boy Scout Knife that cost one whole dollar. (Dad surprised you the very next day with another one.)

Dad hasn't changed much through the years. Still the same unassuming fellow. Still thinking of the "kids" first. And that's why we have Father's Day. It's the most important event of the year for America's Dads. So important we wouldn't want to see Dad's expression if next Sunday, June 16th, slipped by and his well deserved gifts were not forthcoming!

Turks Assail Italy, but Sign Nazi Trade Pact

London, 'Not Surprised' Socony Tanker Sunk By Sub, Italians Say

By the Associated Press

Ankara, June 13.—Turkey signed a pact with Germany today for the exchange of 14,000,000 American dollars' worth of tobacco for spare machinery parts, but Turkish officials said the treaty had the approval of their Allies, Britain and France, and represented no lessening of the alliance.

The Allies, it was said, do not object to Turkish tobacco going to Germany, nor to Turkey getting machines and parts from Germany which she cannot get elsewhere. Most of the parts are for the national railways.

Officials said the products were ready to be shipped and probably would be entirely moved within the next two weeks.

The deal thus was interpreted as a sign that Turkey thinks it not likely she will be involved in the new Mediterranean war in that time.

Alliance Reaffirmed

The country reaffirmed its purpose to stand by the French-British alliance, and the press punctuated this decision with scathing attacks upon Italy, although the cabinet has concluded that for the present it is not wise to take an active part in the conflict.

Preparations for any contingency were rushed, including the systematic calling of more men to the colors.

American officials of the Socony Vacuum Co. still lacked confirmation of a report one of their tankers, flying a British flag, had been sunk, presumably by an Italian submarine.

Until the new treaty with Germany was explained, considerable confusion was caused among Near Eastern diplomats, who wondered if Turkey was not drifting loose from her French and British alliance.

Diplomats flocked to the Turkish foreign ministry to learn the import of the German trade accord, the fruit of months of patient negotiation by German Ambassador Franz von Papen, the Reich's troubleshooter diplomat.

German quarters said the pact showed Turkish disappointment at British failure to deliver goods under trade agreements, as other nations had discovered her failure to deliver military assistance.

Turkish trade with Germany has been at a standstill for several months since Turkey allied herself with France and Britain. Scores of German technicians and experts were sent home from Turkish navy yards a few months ago. Hundreds of German businessmen have packed up and gone home.

Earlier, in a communique, the Italians had reported the sinking by torpedo of a 10,000-ton "British" tanker.

Turkey yesterday made it known that she is "standing by" in the Mediterranean war, but is in a state of readiness if the conflict becomes active in the Balkans or the neighboring Near East.

The Turkish press, probably inspired, printed strong attacks on Italy. Deputy Hussein Djahid Yaltchin, an authoritative spokesman, wrote that Italian assurances to Turkey were "valueless" and "convey the impression of a new trap of chicanery."

Other papers prominently displayed President Roosevelt's remark about Italy plunging a knife in the back of a neighbor.

French Accept Private Plane From American

Copyright by New York Times

France, fighting desperately against tremendous odds, is prepared to throw even private American planes into military action against her enemies, it was revealed yesterday. This became known when Col. Rene Weiser, French air attache, disclosed that the French government has accepted the donation of a six-seater Lockheed airplane from Henry A. Hammill, of Austin, Tex. A pilot will be sent to Austin to fly the plane to an embarkation point.

Asked whether light private planes of this type are also being purchased, a spokesman at the office of the air attache said that "of course, we are trying to buy every type available." He added that such planes are useful for training purposes" and even for military missions."

In official circles it was disclosed that a list of private airplanes owned in this country has been made available to the Anglo-French purchasing mission by this Government.

["The idea behind this move," Hammill told the Associated Press in Austin, "is that other plane owners throughout the country will do the same. There are at least 25 planes I know of in Texas alone that are just sitting in hangars and not being used."]

New York, June 13 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Charles R. Reynolds, retired surgeon general of the United States army, expressed the opinion today that America would enter the war with men as well as materials unless the Allies scored an immediate victory.

Speaking at the 17th annual Charter Day meeting of the Society of New York Hospital, Gen. Reynolds asserted that speculation on American involvement must give way to "immediate preparedness for actual war and what this implies."

"We are so far in now that we will have to go the limit, as the Allies cannot win without our support," he said.

Bullitt Helps Avert Paris' Destruction

American Ambassador William C. Bullitt was the medium through whom France arranged to avert destruction of the city of Paris by the Germans, the State Department disclosed yesterday.

At the request of Gen. Dentz, commander of the Paris area, the Ambassador, it was announced, notified the German government, through the American embassy at Berlin, that French troops were being withdrawn and that Paris had been declared an "open city," not subject to bombing since it no longer had any military objectives.

Envoy to Remain

Bullitt and members of his staff will remain at the imperiled French capital as the sole representatives of the diplomatic corps, all other embassy and legation staffs having departed.

Bullitt's message to Berlin read:

"Paris has been declared an open city. Gen. Hering, military commander of Paris district, is withdrawing his army which has been defending Paris. All possible measures are being taken to assure the security of life and property in the city. The gendarmerie and police are remaining and the firemen also remaining to prevent fires. Gen. Dentz is remaining as commander of the Paris area but without any troops—simply with the gendarmerie and the police.

"Ambassador Bullitt is remaining in Paris with the military and naval attaches of the embassy, the counselor of the embassy and six secretaries of embassy as the representative of the diplomatic corps. Mr. Bullitt hopes to be of any assistance possible in seeing to it that the transfer of the government of the city takes place without loss of human life. This entire communication is made at the personal request of Gen. Dentz."

Attack Without Orders After 10 Days, Nights Of Incessant Fighting

Copyright by New York Times.

Tours, France, June 13.—Following Premier Reynaud's letter to President Roosevelt if the average French soldier had read Shakespeare he would thus paraphrase King Henry the Fifth's famous monologue:

"You gentlemen of America now abed may think yourselves accursed if you do not help us with material to fight here."

But certainly he would not have time to describe the nature of that fighting.

From accounts reaching here, only veterans of the last war can conceive the conditions. On some portions of the front men have been in the thick of it for ten days and ten nights with no prospect of being relieved, no possibility of injecting new units into the firing line because the actions are rear-guard actions, no letup in the 24 hours, no rest, no sleep and few occasions to eat or drink—men with a ten-day growth of beard, unwashed, unkempt, grimy, many bleeding from minor wounds, but still fighting.

Divisions are reduced to ever smaller proportions. An officer of the general staff today admitted that the French losses are serious, but he added that notwithstanding this fact small individual units contact the enemy of their own initiative without waiting for orders. Answering a query from this correspondent the officer indicated that by small units he meant battalions and companies—even platoons.

This sufficiently described the undaunted spirit of the French soldier in this emergency. When a second lieutenant or a first sergeant charges into the enemy masses at the head of some hundred men or so there can be no greater example of courage or devotion. For the Germans they attack in this manner have never been in line more than three or four days on end—the enemy's numerical superiority permits regular relief of divisions. It is scarcely conceivable that such men could ever be beaten, but there comes a time when even they cannot continue to face odds rising in some places to as much as ten to one.

For it must be remembered that the German soldier is a good fighter, as the French have always recognized; indeed, that very fact increases their valor.

The same view does not hold for the Italians. The average French soldier has nothing but contempt for Premier Mussolini's troops. It has been instilled in their minds by the stories of veterans who crossed the Alps in the last war to retrieve the rout from the Piave—for despite official euphemisms it was, indeed, a rout.

Britain Pledges Her Utmost Aid to France Reaffirms Solidarity 'in This Solemn Hour'

London (Friday), June 14.—The British government sent a message to the French government today pledging that "Great Britain will continue to give the utmost aid in her power."

The message said:

"In this solemn hour for the British and French nations and the cause of freedom and democracy to which they have vowed themselves, His Majesty's government desire to pay to the government of the French Republic the tribute which is due to the heroic fortitude and constancy of the French armies in battle against enormous odds.

"Great Britain will continue to give the utmost aid in her power. We take this opportunity of proclaiming the indissoluble union of our two peoples and our two empires.

"We cannot measure the various forms of tribulation which will fall upon our peoples in the near future. We are sure that the ordeal by fire will only fuse them together into one unconquerable whole.

"We renew to the French Republic our pledge and resolve to continue the struggle at all costs in France, in this island, upon the ocean and in the air wherever it may lead us using all our resources to the utmost limits and sharing together the burden of repairing the ravages of war.

"We shall never turn from the conflict until France stands safe and erect in all of her grandeur, until the wronged and enslaved states and peoples have been liberated and until civilization is free from the nightmare of Nazism.

"That this day will dawn we are more sure than ever. It may dawn sooner than we now have the right to expect."

29-Year-old Member In Winchester Council

Special Dispatch to The Post

Winchester, Va., June 13.—Thomas Kremer, president of the Winchester Junior Board of Trade and Washington & Lee graduate, will be the "baby" of Common Council. Kremer, 29 years of age, is the youngest person elected to the office in a number of years.

In Middleton, the entire roster of incumbents including Mayor Fred J. Larrick and six councilmen were reelected without opposition, there being but 20 votes cast. In Stephens City, the only other Frederick county town in which there was an election, Mayor Lomax Parker was reelected. All save two councilmen were retained, the newcomers being David Petrie and Joseph Clevenger.

Anniversary

Today marks the opening of the eighth year of a regime under which this editorial page has been conducted in singularly happy circumstances.

The policy which has animated this page since June 12, 1933, when the present management took over The Post, is neither revolutionary nor unique. It has consisted merely in a constant endeavor to insure that comment on the affairs of the day shall be well-informed, honest, reasonably well expressed, and vigorous whenever the issue under consideration seems to demand vigorous treatment.

Yet, simple though these objectives are, they are not easy of attainment. It is not always possible to be well informed on highly complicated and controversial issues. It is not vigorous, but merely offensive, to express opinions strongly if those opinions are shallow and ill-founded. Newspaper pressures are inimical to that artistry of writing which depends upon critical and leisurely contemplation. Even the basic objective of honesty becomes involved and difficult when intelligent judgments conflict with a sincerity as pronounced as their diversity.

For seven years, however, the goal established for this page in 1933 has been consistently sought. And many of our readers seem to think that the quest has met with a measure of success. At least it can be promised that the endeavor will continue.

The individual is transient. The ideal is permanent. There will always be a coming and a going among those who seek to transform ambition into accomplishment. But if the ambition is simple and clear, the circumstances for its fulfillment favorable, this will make little difference.

It is permissible on our anniversary to reflect that the anonymity of the editorial is symbolic of cooperative and impersonal endeavor, reflecting the personality of no one man but that of an institution which also matures and develops with the passing years.

Taxing Defense Issues

Secretary Morgenthau proposes to subject the new national defense issues authorized by the pending defense bill to Federal income taxation. He is also urging Congress to abolish tax exemption for all future issues of Federal, State and local governmental issues.

This is a reform measure which the Administration has long had in mind. The huge volume of outstanding Government issues, wholly or partly tax exempt, has afforded the wealthy a legal avenue of escape from payment of income taxes. Obviously every increase in income tax burdens adds to the attractiveness of tax-exempt issues, and tends further to discourage investment of capital in taxable private enterprises.

The present emergency emphasizes the importance of closing such avenues of escape to privileged elements in the community. However, there is doubt as to the constitutionality of a plan to subject State and local issues to Federal income taxation. Furthermore, the States are bitterly opposed to such proposals, having come to rely upon tax exemption as a means of facilitating and reducing the cost of their borrowing operations.

Desirable as it seems, therefore, to block off this avenue of escape from the Federal income tax, it seems doubtful whether it can be done by statutory enactment alone or whether it should be done without further study of the possible effect on State and local finances. No such objections can be raised to the taxation of the Federal Government's own issues. There is nothing to prevent the Government from resorting to such taxation except its reluctance to abandon the system so long as the States enjoy tax-exemption for their issues.

At the end of the last fiscal year it was estimated that the Federal Government had outstanding $12,800,000,000 of wholly tax exempt issues and $27,000,000,000 of partially exempt issues, while the States and localities had $19,600,000,000 of obligations outstanding, the income from which was entirely exempt from Federal income taxation. However, the volume of State and local issues had changed but slightly during the preceding seven years, whereas the mounting Federal indebtedness had vastly increased the outstanding volume of wholly and partly exempt Federal issues during the same period.

If, therefore, the Federal Government is prepared to subject the income from its own issues to taxation in the future, the most important current avenue of escape for tax evaders will be closed. This is an opportune time to inaugurate the new policy regardless of what action is taken respecting State and local issues.

At The Vatican

The failure of his long and persistent efforts to keep Italy out of the war has placed Pope Pius XII in a painful and perhaps dangerous situation. Today, eleven years after the Lateran Treaty, he seems again "the prisoner of the Vatican" but in a sense not applicable to his immediate predecessors. In theory a temporal sovereign still, his sovereignty is so circled by the bayonets of Mussolini's soldiers that his status seems suddenly almost that of a captive.

That is to say the political independence of the Vatican rests mainly upon the continued willingness of Mussolini to respect both spirit and letter of the treaty. But this, as the Pope himself has sadly said, is a world in which rulers ruthlessly violate their "plighted words" whenever it seems to them expedient.

Under the restoration of the temporal power the Papacy had obtained in Italy such prestige and popularity as it had scarcely known for a century. But in the long run this popularity, constantly exercised in the interest of peace, proved an insufficient counterbalance to the ambition of the dictator and the necessities of conquest.

Thus Mussolini's declaration of war places the Pontiff in a most poignant dilemma. As a temporal sovereign he is under the necessity to preserve the neutrality of the Vatican State and to maintain diplomatic relations not only with Italy but also with those powers now locked in life and death conflict with Italy. Thus the Vatican is certain to seethe, as long as the conflict lasts, with frantic diplomatic activity and with rival propagandas.

Meanwhile, it is impossible that the Pope, as the moral leader of Christendom, can now adopt a passive role in a war that is more a conflict of philosophies than a conflict of nations. Upon the course and issue of this conflict may depend the survival of Christianity itself. Nor can the Pope ignore the abysmal miseries wrought upon so many millions of his people in so many Catholic nations of Europe.

In this cruel situation what course can the Pope now pursue? Shall he remain silent until he has reason to feel that his voice can once more be heard above the roar of battles and the moans of the dying? Shall he continue to speak out as bravely as before against the barbaric gospels that have destroyed countless bodies and souls? Might he thereby invite upon his person such indignities as were visited by the conqueror Napoleon on Pius VII? Or must he trust that a new Christian world of justice and charity must one day rise out of the new barbarian darkness as our dying Western World once rose, with the guidance of the church from the long night of Europe?

These perhaps are some of the questions to which the sorrowful Pontiff seeks the divine answers as he kneels in his chapel.

Why Not Lower?

As passed by the House the national defense bill reduced the personal exemption allowed married persons for income tax purposes from $2,500 to $2,000 and lowered the exemption for single persons to $800.

The Senate Finance Committee is now considering further reductions in the married persons' exemption to $1,800. If there is to be genuine democratization of the income tax, the exemptions should be even lower and the exactions somewhat higher.

Never before has the public manifested such remarkable willingness to be taxed to support the peacetime needs of the Government. The popular enthusiasm for cooperating in the task of strengthening national defenses offers an unexcelled opportunity for undertaking to broaden the income tax base. It is not taking unfair advantage of people with small incomes to strike this blow for tax reform while sentiment is favorable.

In the long run a broadly based income tax that includes small wage-earners and salaried people is an advantage to the less well-to-do classes. For there are distinct limits to the amounts of revenue that can be extracted from persons in the high income brackets. Beyond a certain point the law of diminishing returns sets in, as higher taxes precipitate flights to tax exempt issues or discourage the process of accumulation which produce large taxable incomes.

Thus mounting costs of government fall increasingly upon the great masses of the people whether they realize it or not. They must either pay more to the Government in the form of indirect taxes or contribute directly in the form of income taxes. In the latter case their payments are adjusted with reference to their ability to pay. In the former case the tax collector makes no distinction between persons.

However, people with small incomes cannot be expected to make very large direct contributions to the Treasury. The chief value of their contribution lies in the fact that they become aware of the financial burdens upon individuals resulting from Government spending. The broader the tax base, therefore, the larger becomes the number of people who have an interest in curbing nonessential outlays and a growing feeling of participation in governmental affairs.

Our Big Job

Senator Wheeler's warning that he would break with the Democratic Party if it is "going to be a war party" came in the midst of a debate in which the President was severely criticized for provocative statements deemed likely to involve this country in war.

Certain extreme assertions made on the floor of the Senate should be discounted as intended for political effect. But no such charge can be brought against Senator Wheeler, who but recently indicated his belief that President Roosevelt would be renominated and would accept the nomination.

Senator Tydings certainly has no personal axe to grind in warning the country that before we begin to talk about war, we should be equipped to go to war. "Our big job," he rightly says, "is to get ready for national defense." That is a simple statement of our major objective which some people seem in danger of forgetting.

Warnings from outstanding Democrats of the caliber of Messrs. Wheeler and Tydings cannot be lightly dismissed. To urge restraint in utterance at this time does not imply lack of sympathy with the nations fighting for preservation of their democratic institutions. Nor does it brand the critic of indiscreet utterances or acts as a short-sighted isolationist.

It merely shows an understanding of the dangerous folly of a type of loud speaking that provides an excuse for hostility toward us without in the least benefiting those whom we wish to aid.

Rise Of Mr. Willkie

The phenomenal rise of Wendell Willkie's popularity makes a stiff contest for the Republican Presidential nomination increasingly more likely. One month ago Willkie was supported by 3 per cent of the voters interviewed in the Gallup poll. Today he is the choice of 17 in every 100. The poll now ranks him second only to Thomas E. Dewey.

Moreover, Mr. Willkie has captured the public's fancy to that extent with little organized political backing and without hewing to any previously recognized political line. Rivals and party leaders may well examine how he did it.

It was conceded that Mr. Willkie's personality had political power if it could be put before the public. Once started, he has proved a vigorous campaigner. The use of the radio and the awakened desire for information have aided him. It is probable, however, that the roots of his success are deeper.

Mr. Willkie himself may have put his finger on the explanation when he said, in Washington this week that "the intensity of the war program has increased the possibility of defeating the New Deal, because the American people want to put competence in government."

His statement has meaning within the party as well. Rightly or wrongly, events have transferred some attention from the record which gave Dewey his early lead. In 30 days, according to the poll, the gang-buster has dropped in favor from 67 per cent to 52. Of that lost 15 per cent Mr. Willkie has acquired 14.

These statistics have practical import, whether or not the nominating convention pays attention to the shift and any further changes which may occur before June 24.

To Spank or Not?

From the Des Moines Register

Dr. Dafoe says the little Dionnes still have never been spanked. Instead, if one of them is naughty, she is put in a room by herself, while her sisters point their fingers and say "Ah, ah!" The room contains a chair, a table, and a book. Dr. Dafoe does not tell us what the book is; but it must be a persuasive one, for the room is never occupied for more than a few minutes at a time.

There are probably not many children, even today, who have reached the age of 6 without having been spanked. But the tendency is away from physical chastisement. The advantages of withholding spanking are still debated. Some of us know infant egotists who might be the better for a little laying on of hands. But the alternative method works with others.

It would be pleasant if the obstreperous adult members of society could simply be isolated in a quiet room to think it over with a book. The idea even has international possibilities.

More On Japan

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Anent Mr. Walter Lippmann's criticism of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for its policy in dealing with Japan, I venture to call his attention to certain facts which he appears to have overlooked:

Japan's military clique is quite as ambitious and fully as ruthless as Hitler ever thought of being. Japan has reached that phase in her evolution where she is bent upon conquest—and she bars all rules.

It was Japan who introduced the policy of bombing seaports prior to a declaration of war. It was Japan who ruthlessly invaded China and destroyed millions of helpless and innocent civilians. It was Japan who seized Hainan Island, sank an American gunboat and fired upon its helpless crew; slapped the faces of American women and generally played the bully in the Orient.

To attempt to "appease" Japan is as futile as would be an attempt to reason with an octopus. She will take what she wants when she can.

If Mr. Lippmann isn't careful, some facetious person or persons will be presenting him with an umbrella. My own humble opinion is, that if Senator Pittman's committee erred at all in its dealings with Japan, it was on the side of leniency.

EX-SOLDIER.

Washington, June 7.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of June 6, Walter Lippmann puts forward the proposition that the United States should leave Japan to her sphere of influence in Asia, and, in the same breath, directs the United States to saving European civilization.

Now, when it is a question of saving civilization, what brand of civilization does he have in mind? Is he intent on saving civilization in Europe, while sacrificing it to an aggressor in Asia?

The following sentence from Lippmann's article lets the entire litter of kittens out of the bag: "The Japanese, already suffering from the Chinese war, would be engaging and exhausting themselves still further and make themselves vulnerable to the only great power, namely, Russia, which can strike by land and by sea and by air at the very heart of the Japanese Empire."

Is it that Mr. Lippmann is afraid, not of Japan, not of Germany, not of Italy, but, namely, of the Soviet Union?

M. BERNARD.

America Must Act

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The outlook for the future of the United States and civilization everywhere has never been challenged before as it is today. The forces of darkness in Europe and on the world front are strengthening their position day by day. Nation after nation has succumbed before the all-devouring monster of cruelty and aggression.

Unless the tide of battle can be turned, and quickly, soon London, Paris, Liverpool and dozens of other great cities will be threatened with annihilation or surrender. Surrender of the heart of the British and French empires and their combined fleets, undamaged and intact, will be the price of saving these cities from utter ruin! To protect these cities we should immediately end every fighting and bombing plane we can spare to the Allies without thought of their cost to us as taxpayers or when they may be paid for, because they are fighting our battle now.

If the record of Holland, Belgium, Poland and Norway means anything—after a few weeks of similar destruction who can be certain that they would not give in to almost any terms? If by such terms the Allies were forced to surrender the greater part of their fleets and physical equipment for production of armament, how much more precarious would the future of the United States and all civilization be? Right now the Americas are wide open to attack and utterly unprepared to meet an already organized and powerfully equipped aggressor or combination of aggressors. It must be remembered that nothing will impress the devotees of aggression—no amount of appropriations for defense, or physical armament on hand in a prospective victim country—if there is not a vast, well-trained and organized army, navy and air force in the field ready to use these and strike!

AURIEL BESSEMER.

Washington, June 5.

A Permanent Peace?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The following observation may be considered premature, but I don't think so:

Suppose, as the trend now appears to me, we aid the Allies, either with materials or by waging open warfare. Then, let us suppose, victory is won for the Allies—what then?

Can the American people be confident that our political statesmen have the intelligence and farsightedness to make, or effectively assist the Allies in making, a permanent peace? Also, a peace in which we not only have a passing interest, as in the last war, but one in which we reserve the right to see that it is carried out in letter and spirit from that time on.

In other words, the question is this: If we are to be drawn into European affairs after war has begun why are we not in them beforehand? If we are to fight these wars why shouldn't we play a major part in making or avoiding them?

If the foregoing suppositions become reality shall we again sit at the conference table when peace is made, and then wash our hands of the whole affair? We did this the last time, and here we are again after 20 years going into another war (or a continuation of the last one). During these 20 years we have done nothing to avoid this war or to lessen its intensity, and I am satisfied that the Allies would not have welcomed our intervention if we had acted.

I do not say that our failure to be in this thing from the start is our fault or the fault of the Allies. I do feel, however, that if I must fight the same person time after time, I should at least have the privilege before the fight begins to slap his face and start the ball rolling, or to give him a helping hand and avoid the struggle.

I will leave to better writers than myself the telling of what happened after the last war. Suffice it to say that our "Political Brain Power" was conspicuous by its absence, otherwise that would have been the end of the war and not merely an armistice.

It will take more space than this letter to comment upon the lack of statesmanship in Congress today. We can only hope that this will be remedied by the time thousands more of our men are laid to rest in foreign battlefields and another Unknown Soldier unknowingly becomes a martyr, for we are going into this thing, all opinion to the contrary notwithstanding.

VOICE IN THE WILDERNESS.

Washington, June 8.

Who Wins Wars?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It would be well if some of "Those in Authority," as well as many column writers, were to recall the excellent statement in the recent report of the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs, urging the United States, in forming a defense policy, to reject any thought of intervention in European wars. To quote:

"Can anyone see how we could possibly accomplish anything worth the sacrifices of human lives, of resources, and possible loss of our free institutions, that would be demanded of us by our participation?"

Were the lessons of 23 years ago all in vain?

In 1917 we undertook the noble adventure of "making the world safe for democracy" by drafting our young men to go overseas and defeat the kaiser in a final war that was "to end war."

Their bodies have moldered in cemeteries that are again plowed by shell fire, and the kaiser lives the life of an elderly country gentleman, protected in Holland.

Is it possible that any responsible adult is again seriously urging a repetition of that futility?

When Maury Maverick was asked, "Who really won the first World War?" he replied, "Who won the San Francisco earthquake?"

How strange it is that apparently only a small proportion of the human race has learned the elementary lesson that since the beginning of mechanized warfare no one has ever won any war, except the buzzards and the worms.

THERESA H. RUSSELL.

Washington, June 9.

A French View

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read the letters signed "Briton" and "American." Also Mr. Lindley's column.

American people object to being judged by undiplomatic "Britons" at a time when this country is ready to give support to the Allies. How can they avoid being judged, not by "Britons" alone, but by the world?

The topic of "Briton" about planes' high prices and release of new models has been widely printed all winter in the newspaper of the world.

The President and a great many Americans, through a number of noble deeds, have acquired the admiration of the world, also the deep gratitude of the French people. But the ones in this country who force these fine men into "dealers' clothes" are severely judged, particularly in France, at a time when the password on the battlefields is "Advance or die on the spot."

FRENCH.

Washington, June 9.

Supports Defense

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The awakening of the United States, including all the Americas, to arm against a possible attack from the outside deserves the wholehearted support of the American people. Only an impregnable navy, a powerful air armada, and a well-equipped army can demand respect from any belligerent nation as nothing else can.

Meanwhile, the New World should help the Allies stop the brutality and ruthlessness of the invader by furnishing them with weapons necessary for their immediate defense. This is human as an act of righteousness, since the whole world knows how much needless damage the enemy has already done to neutral and innocent peoples. Send the Allies every reasonable ammunition of war that they can buy, and at the same time strengthen rapidly our home defenses.

Pearl

Pearl, aged 16, is a city child. Pearl's ancestors have always lived in cities; she would have to go back nearly to Adam to find one who was occupied with agriculture.

Sometimes, in the hot summer, one of the boys drives up to the curb in front of the three-story brick house, sandwiched between a garage and a row of small shops, the only home Pearl remembers. Pearl and the boy drive out into the country. There are mountains sticking up in the distance and there are rivers and woods and small villages with lawns and bright flowers. Some people think the silver ribbons which are rivers or the blue haze on the hills worth driving out to see, and this strikes Pearl as amusing. Because Pearl knows what is really pretty. When I say to Pearl sometimes, "There was a full moon last night," she replies that she didn't notice. But she is curiously aware of the street lights with their globes like milky opals.

There was a wedding at the church on the corner one night. Pearl knows that it was be-yootiful! The bride was all filmy white, and there was a coronet of lace and flowers on her young brow. The bridesmaids were visions of allure. There were saucy flower girls whose short skirts stuck out like those of a ballet dancer. The men were superb, wearing plenty of gleaming white, for it was a hot-weather ceremony. It was marriage "a la Hollywood." Pearl's eyes have a kind of infatuated glaze which shuts out reality as she thinks about it.

There are other things which Pearl knows are pretty—show-windows full of sparkle and color, dresses, jewelry, cosmetics and shoes, especially shoes. Pearl would like to own a hundred pairs. When she has an afternoon off, she looks at shoes and tries on many pairs before she buys one pair which seems so little out of such an abundance.

A beauty shop is pretty, too, with lines of mirrors and fittings of chromium. Pearl spends much time in the shop in her block. She knows the girls and when they are not serving customers they practice on her. She has had her hair "done" in every possible style, in bangs, bobs, curls and in cool, sculptured waves. She has looked in turn like Bette Davis, Vivien Leigh and the Duchess of Windsor. Though she hums the tune, "The Wind and the Rain In Your Hair," the words have no meaning to her. If she thought about the idea, she would not like it.

Pearl does not care for country flowers or vegetables which grow in dirt and have to be picked in the hot sun, so different from those she knows. She likes the cunning little baskets of peas and beans in the "barrows" on the street, the flowers made into "corsages" with silver foil and ribbon. Not that she ever owned a corsage bouquet, but like the wedding it is interesting because it may happen to her any day.

In Pearl's few visits to the country she disliked the animals. Not much interested in them at any time, she finds them worse "on the hoof" so to speak. Rough dogs, bulls that bellow, and even the horse, upset the pattern of her thought. (If horses amounted to anything, why did people bother with cars?) Sometimes she looks with interest at the displays of riding togs in the shop windows. She sees the suave boots, the riding pants, and sometimes she reads about life in the "hunting set." She thinks she would like to be seen, so attired, holding a fine hunter by the bridle, but she would then think of the horse not as an animal but as a costume accessory. In the same way, Pearl thinks of bathing suits and tennis shorts, not as comfortable clothes in which to play but as another way to increase her charm.

Driving through little villages, with their pansy beds and rows of ruffled hollyhocks, Pearl sees groups of young people playing croquet or tennis. Nothing can ever make these people seem real to Pearl. The young people she knows sit on the steps of the houses. There are small yards without much grass, surrounded by metal fences. The boys and girls try the latest dance steps on the pavement. They walk around the block to the "movies." Like all youngsters, they are always eating frozen custard, cones, hot dogs, "barbecue."

There is no thrill in the country; excitement is the breath of life to Pearl. All she has to do in the city is to sit on the steps and wait and something always happens. Sometimes it is only a fight among the boys. Then she can be fiercely partisan and tell the new cop on the beat just who hit whom. But the best excitement comes from the apartment house across the street. Fortunately it is easy to see what goes on there. Beautiful girls jump out of windows, husbands and wives settle their differences publicly, the man with the cold gray eyes is probably a gangster, and the huge bulge on his hip must be an automatic. Police patrols roll up and remove rowdy parties. Mothers plead with wayward children and children plead with wayward mothers. Pearl likes the cinema, but sometimes it seems like a waste of money when she can see so much at the apartment that is free.

Pearl believes that the city is permanent. It has always been. It always will be. That is why she likes it. As for herself, her feelings come and go. Sometimes she is happy. Sometimes she cries because everything goes wrong and the corsage bouquets and the wedding are slow in coming. Then she can step out into the rich life flowing in the street. This does not change.

Pearl does not like the war pictures which show cities torn and wretched. Because she knows that cities are not like that. The city assuages and it is gay. Not that she says this. Her word for it is "swell."

The Choice

Total Defense Or Surrender

UNLESS WE SEE with crystal clearness what we are preparing to defend ourselves against, all our defense plans will be partial and even futile.

THE UNITED STATES of America is menaced in its independence, freedom and institutions, as are all other states, however organized, by an international revolutionary movement, spreading itself by the sword and by the methods of criminal conspiracy. This revolutionary movement has, under the command of a single leader, the resources, political, diplomatic, economic and military of a great nation—the German—which has already taken a large part of Europe under its "protectorate." It has also subjugated by fear all the small states east of the Rhine, has paralyzed, or perhaps won over to itself a second revolutionary power, Russia, which temporarily at least is assisting it in limited ways, and has persuaded Italy to join it in open war on what is left of Europe and Europe's empires and dominions, which are world-wide.

Armed power is only one weapon of this conspiracy, the aim of which is the subjugation of the world.

This is what we are up against.

NOW, A DEFENSE program against such a movement requires more than guns, battleships, airplanes and submarines. The total war requires the total defense. The total defense means the coordination of the military, political, and economic means under a government representative of the whole people, and under a defense plan that can be executed by a board with complete authority.

It is necessary to have a Government representative of the whole people—that is to say of both major political parties—because otherwise such a defense plan can easily be used to intrench one party in permanent power. It is necessary to have a defense executive with authority, because without authority, the necessary coordination is impossible. Congress must be responsible for the plan and the objectives, but a board of the most disinterested and competent men, free of minor political partisanship, must have the power to put that plan into operation, with the greatest dispatch and the greatest freedom.

I AM PRESUMING that we wish to oppose this movement. If we do not wish to do so, there is no sense in any armament program whatsoever. We are threatened by no other force in the world today, nor will we be throughout this epoch. We can, if we wish to do so, come to terms with that force, as the Premier of Brazil seems to have indicated his willingness to do. Coming to terms will not only cost us America as we have known it, but it will cost us America as most of us can dream it. Inasmuch as the overwhelming majority of Americans now wish to oppose that force, and a strong minority of patriots will continue to oppose it with their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor, an official coming to terms will open us to the serious risk of internal strife. But so, also, will a half-hearted and incomplete opposition, for in the twilight of a dubious and divided policy the conspiracy to destroy the country from within will flourish and gather strength.

PRESUMING THAT WE wish to oppose it, we should immediately give unqualified and unlimited support to the Allies, by every political, economic and military means, making their cause our own and preparing to help defend it with their armies and their navies as long as they can hold out, clearly aware that every ounce of the enemy's strength that they dissipate is an advantage for us.

We must, at the same time, make that opposition complete, within and without. We cannot successfully fight Nazism with Nazis and their fellow travelers in our midst and treated as friends, and that includes the Communists. We cannot wage war with any enemy except on something like equal terms. This is a lesson to be learned from the experience of Czecho-Slovakia, Norway, Holland, Belgium, England and France.

It is now three years since the Nazi government openly announced at Stuttgart, at a meeting of "Germans living abroad" and through the mouth of the Foreign Minister himself that "whoever lives abroad as a German is working primarily in the interest of the German fatherland."

The Dies Committee knows, first, that the homeland of every nonnaturalized German, not a provable refugee, is not the United States but Germany; that the homeland of every Communist is not the United States, but Russia. It knows, furthermore, that Nazis and Communists are organized here along exactly the authoritarian lines on which they are organized in their own countries. And Italian-Americans are being organized in the same way. It knows that although no anti-Nazi American can set foot in Germany, although the presentation of no foreign viewpoint has been permitted in Germany since the beginning of this regime, the Nazis have been and still are granted every privilege and freedom to organize and to propagandize in the United States.

If we intend to oppose this force, we shall need a committee of internal safety, composed of the best minds and characters in Congress or outside, as part of the Council for Defense, who will frame a policy and design legislation to deal with a long-existing situation which at any moment can become acute and serious.

And this is needed, furthermore, because if it is not done we shall be caught between warring vigilante movements which will burst out in futile and preposterous persecutions, and possibly even warfare.

BUT, FINALLY—and this is most important of all—we can only oppose the demonic destructive force which threatens us and the world by an equally vivid and virile force in the realm of ideas and practice. The greatest danger here is not from any fifth columns, but from the impotency of all of the thousands of other columns, from our failure to deal with our most pressing problems, and to translate the ideals of freedom and democracy into terms of work, bread and honorable conduct.

Cruelly apparent has been the degeneration of the ideas of Washington, Hamilton, Jefferson, Madison and Lincoln into an archaic scramble of competing selfishness,

THOMAS JEFFERSON
"The Prophetic Voices in America Have Gone Unheeded"

a jungle of privileges and a babel of ideas. A free and democratic way of life has not yet been designed for the twentieth century. Democracy has become merely a debating platform—not a faith and a creed. The prophetic voices in America have gone unheeded.

But the civilization of Babbitt is finished.

One can only oppose a destructive revolution with another revolution—the revolution of honest and responsible democracy and ethical and creative civilization.

That revolution is going to win—some day, some time. But our generation can win it, and win it here, even if there is only a minority today who have faith and the will to the deed.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

A Shyster Spirit

A FEW YEARS AGO President Roosevelt addressed Congress on the subject of tax evasion, and in that speech referred angrily to "clever little schemes" having "the color of legality" by which a few rich men dodged the payment of their just dues as members of the American community.

It is not a pleasant thought to dwell upon just now, but the truth is that the spirit of the New Deal has been the very spirit that the President abhorred in that denunciation. It is a shyster spirit and very similar to that of the three European dictatorships.

There is a shysterism in the Labor Act, for example, which is included in the "social gains" which the President has promised to maintain, knowing that it can't be maintained if the country is to make a national effort for armament and must vanish if war comes, and shouldn't be maintained as is, anyway. The Labor Act is falsely, because incompletely, described as labor's magna charta. It is but it isn't, and everybody in the Administration knows it isn't.

It does guarantee labor's right to organize, but it also compels people to join unions who don't want to join. That compulsion is as bad as the permission is good, but the Administration refuses even to discuss the denial of important rights, the impositions and the sabotage of industry that are enabled by the Labor Act, much less to consider these wrongs.

THE DEBATE which immediately followed the President's remarks on "clever little schemes" for the evasion of taxes revealed that in the matter of devising clever little schemes having the color but certainly not the odor of legality the United States Treasury had nothing to learn from any millionaire. In fact, the Treasury set the example of trickery and low cunning in the application of the tax law and, presumably, continues to.

These and the shyster scheme to pack the Supreme Court are domestic affairs, however, and less disquieting than the approach to international problems in the same spirit.

It is supposed to be the prerogative of Congress to declare war, but if a President in the exercise of the powers reposed in him creates a situation in which there is no alternative, then Congress has been deprived of its most solemn right and responsibility by a clever little scheme.

When the Germans and Italians were making war in Spain under a pretense of neutrality that was revolting to honesty the people of this country correctly loathed the hypocrisy of Hitler and Mussolini and were sorry for people who had to live under men so wicked.

Yet when the second World War broke out this country, by a clever little scheme, detained a big German passenger vessel in a very apparent effort to enable the British to capture or sink her. However we may feel about neutrality or the rights and wrongs of the war, the fact is that we did try to help the Allies catch that ship, which was unneutral conduct by our Government, although it did have the color of legality.

AND NOW we are furnishing planes and are preparing to furnish old weapons to the Allies through a trick the like of which the Treasury Department would never permit in an income tax case which fools nobody, least of all the American people. These steps commit the United States to a status of nonbelligerency which was a new hypocrisy invented by the dark and cynical mind of Mussolini, a position somewhat closer to war than neutrality, which is still the legal position of the country.

Possibly this country should be nonbelligerent rather than neutral, or should be in the war on the side of the Allies, but it happens that Congress is still in session and still charged with the duty and armed with the authority to make such decisions. Congress is not making the decisions. They are being made by the President and his advisers, and the excitement of the time is practically nullifying the Presidential campaign in favor of a third term for Mr. Roosevelt.

If Congress abdicates or is taken out of the play by clever little schemes at this stage of the game there is little reason to count on government by the regular methods if war should come.

Miss Millay Pleads in Verse For Aid to Allies

New York, June 13 (AP)—Edna St. Vincent Millay, the poet, today offered a poetic plea for American aid to the Allies.

Writing from her home in the Connecticut Berkshires, where she is ill, the poet distributed an anti-isolationist poem entitled, "Lines Written in Passion and in Deep Concern for England, France and My Own Country."

Assailing beliefs that this country was insulated from the European conflict, the poet pleaded in her last stanza:

"Oh, build, assemble, transport, give,
That England, France and we may live,
Before tonight, before too late,
To those who hold our country's fate
In desperate fingers, reaching out
For weapons we confer about,
All that we can, and more, and now!
Oh, God! let not the lovely brow
Of Freedom in the trampled mud
Grow cold! Have we no brains, no blood,
No enterprise—no anything
Of which we proudly talk and sing,
Which we like men can bring to bear
For freedom, and against despair?
Lest French and British fighters deep
In battle, needing guns and sleep,
For lack of us be overthrown,

REP. SMITH
Ernest Lindley finds it "strange" that William Green, A.F.L. president, accepted many of the Smith committee's amendments to the NLRA

Smith-Green Axis

By Ernest K. Lindley

Strange Domestic Alliance

THE WAR is more exciting and more terrible but not much stranger than some of the things that are happening on the home political front. Among the stranger developments at home is the new Smith-Green axis: the alliance between the chairman of the special House committee which investigated the National Labor Relations Board and Act and the president of the American Federation of Labor.

To understand how strange this alliance is it is necessary to recall only that in March of this year a majority of the Smith committee proposed some 15 or 20 amendments to the NLRB. This majority consisted of the chairman, Howard Smith, a right-wing Virginia Democrat, and the two Republican members. The other two Democratic members vigorously dissented from all but a few of the majority's proposals.

The American Federation of Labor said:

"Some of these (Smith) amendments are practical and constructive. However, it is the opinion of the American Federation of Labor that the amendments offered by the Smith committee as a whole strike in a destructive way at vital fundamental principles of the Labor Relations Act."

Mr. Green suddenly has embraced Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith altered or struck out four amendments to which Mr. Green objected. But Mr. Green accepted many other of the Smith amendments which he formerly opposed and which probably every friend of organized labor still opposes. In the aggregate, these amendments which Mr. Green accepted would impair, if not cripple, Labor Magna Carta.

ONE OF THE REMAINING Smith amendments seems to open the way for a full review of the facts by the Circuit Courts of Appeals—to which the NLRB's decisions in unfair labor practice cases may be appealed. The phraseology is similar to the corresponding passage in the Walter-Logan bill as it passed the House. The long-standing rule is that the findings of fact by administrative agencies, if supported by substantial evidence, shall be accepted by the courts. Any important breach in this practice is likely to destroy the usefulness of administrative agencies. One of the main purposes in creating them is to enable the facts in specialized lines to be ascertained by experts.

Another Smith amendment would eliminate the economic division of the NLRB. The economic division is essential to the operation of an agency which deals with matters having broad economic effects. This is really a blow at the Brandeis brief—by which courts have been encouraged to step down from the realm of abstract theory and to interpret laws with more regard for the facts of life.

A third would require that the trial examiners follow the formal rules of evidence wherever practicable. This is fine for the lawyers, who can fill up pages of record, waste everybody's time, and clog the machinery of Government—chiefly for the benefit of their own pocketbooks—by arguing whether or not strict rules of evidence are practicable. The policy of the NLRB has been to adhere as closely as possible to the formal rules of evidence. Perhaps the board already has erred too much on the side of legal formalities. One of the major complaints of Dr. William Leiserson, the member of the NLRB most experienced in labor matters, is that the NLRB machinery has been and is too much under the control of lawyers.

A fourth exempts from the protection of the board some of the lowest-paid labor in the United States—cannery workers, for example—who would benefit most from union organization.

A FIFTH SEPARATES the administrative machinery of the Board from its so-called judicial functions. Arguments can be made on both sides of this question. But it is interesting to note that even the supporters of the Walter-Logan bill, which as passed by the House would make hash of the administrative agencies of the government, rejected such a separation of functions as unsound.

A sixth would prohibit the NLRB from investigating alleged unfair labor practices that occurred more than six months prior to the filing of a complaint. The Board's custom is to go back more than six months only in unusual cases. It so happens, however, that one of the most astounding cases that has come before it would have been beyond reach if there had been a six-month statute of limitations. That is the Dallas Ford Case. The NLRB has made no decision but an intermediate report, made public, presents uncontested evidence that in 1937 labor leaders appearing in Dallas were beaten up and run out of the city by company-hired strong-arm men. An A. F. of L. organizer had one eye gouged out. Union organizers made no headway. They weren't allowed to stay long enough. This situation did not come officially to the board's attention until two years later, when some of the private thugs who were fired told ther story.

There are other Smith amendments which Mr. Green has accepted.

Mr. Green's purpose is frankly set forth by his friends. He wants, first, to give his craft unions as much legal protection as he can against competition from industrial unions. Secondly, he wants a new NLRB more obedient to the special demands of the craft unions. He had hoped to obtain these concessions through the Norton amendments to the National Labor Relations Act.

The Administration, everyone knew, was really opposed to any changes in the law at this session. Finally, Mrs. Norton acknowledged, in effect, that while she had put her name to certain amendments she really did not favor any changes at this session.

Mr. Green, accordingly, allied himself with Mr. Smith. A. F. of L. spokesmen say that he did so to force action of some kind from the House and to induce the Senate to bestir itself. In the Senate, they explain, Mr. Green hopes to slough off more of the objectionable Smith amendments which he has temporarily accepted.

In every alliance, there is a horse and a rider. In the Rome-Berlin axis, for example, Hitler is obviously the rider and Mussolini, if not a horse, at least a smaller beast of burden.

In the Smith-Green axis it may not be certain what Mr. Green is, but Mr. Smith looks like the rider.

Britain "Digging In"

Hour of Dire Peril

By Raymond Daniel.
Copyright by New York Times

London, June 13.—Events of the past few weeks which saw British troops driven from Norway and Flanders have shaken this nation from the attitude of smug complacency which dominated it during the first few months of static warfare in which the blockade and the empire's resources were expected to bring an almost bloodless victory.

Tonight the enemy stands at the gates of Paris and the British realize that when the capital of their ally across the narrow English Channel falls, the Nazi hordes will be battering at their coast. Belatedly but confidently, they are girding themselves to fight on alone, if need be, until as Prime Minister Winston Churchill said, "In God's good time" the New World comes to the rescue of the Old.

In this hour of peril the Old World democracies of Britain and France are definitely looking to the United States for succor. This is one of the most striking developments of the past few days; whereas recently American aloofness from the conflict had been accepted unquestionably, there are today open efforts to enlist the help of Washington and enlist it quickly before it is too late. Of this trend Premier Paul Reynaud's appeal to President Roosevelt for a public declaration of support short of an expeditionary force is but one of many signs and portents.

In view of the close and intimate collaboration between this country and France in everything from military to financial and even cultural affairs, it is inconceivable that the French premier could have sent that appeal to Mr. Roosevelt, much less made it public, without at least the cognizance of Downing Street. Nor is it likely that Reynaud's appeal would be released for publication unless it was regarded here and in France as salutary for French morale, which is being sorely tried.

Militarily the prospect is very grim and diplomatically it is not much better. Turkey, the potential ally of France and Britain now that Italy is at last in the war, is under terrific pressure from Russia to remain outside the hostilities and the Turks are showing a desire to interpret their treaty of mutual assistance with the Allies in a legalistic fashion. Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Spain, meanwhile, has declared herself "non-belligerent," thus taking Italy place as the unknown quantity in Europe's precarious balance.

Just as Italy, at the psychological moment, cast her lot with Germany, it is suspected in some quarters here that Spain, which is now entertaining a large body of German specialists and experts, may allow herself, or be forced to allow herself, to provide passage for enemy troops for an attack on Gibraltar from the rear. At the same time, it is known that enemy forces are concentrating at the Channel ports and as far as Trondheim across the North Sea for a simultaneous attack on this country and possibly Ireland, when Chancellor Hitler believes the hour has struck for the final throw in the gamble for military domination of all Europe.

This is the hour of dire peril, not only for Britain's far-flung empire, but for the homeland as well, and people are at last beginning to realize that while the nation has always won its last battle, this may be it. Therefore, the whole country is digging in for a last-ditch fight from factory benches, on the beaches and, if need be, behind hedgerows.

Defense Won't Halt Housing Plan, Steagall Says

The Administration's housing program will not be interrupted by Congressional concentration on defense, Representative Steagall (Democrat), Alabama, chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, last night told 250 housing officials at a dinner at the Washington Hotel. His audience was composed of members of the National Executive Committee of Housing Authorities, here to discuss the relation of housing to the defense program.

Steagall's committee has under consideration the current housing bill, already passed by the Senate.

Care of the "men who work the machines" and their families is necessary to a defense program, said Representative Magnussen (Democrat), Washington. Housing conditions, he pointed out, will become more acute in cities near military and naval stations.

John N. Carmody, director of the Federal Works Administration, was toastmaster and made a brief address of welcome.

Ideas Have Wings

By Barnet Nover

The Speech Of President Vargas

OF ALL THE NATIONS of South America none has been more consistently friendly to the United States than Brazil. That has been true regardless of the form of government which happened to obtain in that largest and most populous of Latin American nations at any particular time and regardless of which individual or individuals happened to be in power there. And it has remained true throughout Getulio Vargas' tenure as Brazil's dictator.

For that reason alone it would be rash to assume from President Vargas' speech of June 11, contrasting sharply though it did with President Roosevelt's Charlottesville address of the preceding day, that Brazil is throwing overboard the friendship of the United States for the friendship of European dictatorships. Probably nothing was further from the intentions of the Brazilian dictator. Indeed, he took occasion in his speech to declare that "we are united by ties of strict solidarity with all American countries around the ideas, aspirations and common interest in our defense."

GEORGE WASHINGTON
He Inspired Simon Bolivar

NONETHELESS, the people of the United States have good reason to be alarmed over the Vargas speech. For it revealed, as in a lightning flash, one of the dangers that threaten this hemisphere and the world.

Ideas have wings and successful ideas move with the speed of light. The success of the American Revolution helped give currency to democratic and republican ideas both in Europe and in this hemisphere. George Washington inspired Simon Bolivar and San Martin, as previously he had inspired Lafayette and as Franklin had inspired others who played a role in bringing about the French Revolution. The nations of Central and South America which broke away from Spain during the early years of the last century directly modeled their systems of government on that of the United States. And, almost a century later, it was the military triumph of the democratic powers, including this Nation, which gave a great impetus to democracy throughout the world. Success bred imitation.

THAT WILL HAPPEN again. If the Allies triumph totalitarian ideologies will go into the discard, a circumstance which, no doubt, helped determine Mussolini's course. But if Germany and Italy defeat the Allied powers, democracy will stand exposed before all the world as a system too weak to survive.

Its past virtues will be forgotten, its respect for individual liberties, its humanitarian bias, its belief in man's essential goodness and decency and even perfectibility will be ignored. The only thing that will be remembered about it is that when tried in the balance of military prowess it was found wanting.

To a world brought up on the basis of civilized standards this would be like saying that Goethe was inferior to Bluecher because he could not command men in battle. But in the world that would come into being after a totalitarian victory this test of military prowess, by whatever means achieved, will be the only test.

IN THIS PARTICULAR President Vargas' speech of June 11 is a straw in the wind. There is no reason to doubt that he was speaking wholly for domestic consumption. But his remarks were all the more alarming for that reason. For in speaking to his own people he was using the precise language used by Hitler and Mussolini in their speeches.

Thus he declared that "vigorous peoples fit for life must follow the route of their aspirations." Both in economic structures and in social and political organization, he said, the old standards and formulas are dead. The times of improvident liberalism are past, he argued. And he inveighed against what he called the sterile demagogy of political democracy.

Vargas, who is no political philosopher, but wholly a man of action, was, no doubt, merely building an ideological framework on a political base he had previously established. The important thing is that the words he used were borrowed words—borrowed from the successful practitioners of totalitarianism in Europe.

DEMOCRACY has never been a particularly successful system of government in Latin America. Its principles have frequently been honored only in the breach in the republics to our south. Some of them, like Venezuela under Gomez, have even been ruled by as brutal despotisms as the world has ever seen. Nonetheless obeisance has always been made to democratic principles in American countries where democracy happened to be in abeyance as well as where it was being practiced.

Should Hitler and Mussolini triumph more and more Latin American leaders will be borrowing the language and later the practices of Fuehrer and Duce, and more and more of them, even without the prodding of Trojan horse elements and fifth columns will find an affinity between the regimes they have set up or would set up and those which obtain in Berlin and Rome. And a nation which has been conquered ideologically is a nation incapable of resistance.

First Lady To Act As Toastmistress

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will be toastmistress at a Washington Youth Council dinner tonight in which a "trial" for the District's jobless young people will be a feature. It will take place in the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets northwest.

John P. Davis, of Washington, executive secretary of the National Negro Congress, will appear as "judge," and other participants in the "trial" will be Senator Murray (Democrat), of Montana, who introduced the American Youth Act in Congress, and Lee Pressman, general counsel of the C. I. O.

The dinner, which is one of the events arranged for American Youth Act Week in the Capital, will be followed by a model youth legislature tomorrow afternoon and night in the Y. W. C. A.

Tours, France, June 13.—Paris has been abandoned and this usually quiet and pleasant little town is doing its best as a temporary substitute for the capital.

The President of the Republic and most of the members of the government are elsewhere, but this is the center of information. Some of the Paris newspapers are being published here or near here.

All (here four words were censored) information is centralized here and Press Wireless, Inc., operates to the United States. For that American outfit it should be said at once that in this immense confusion it is almost the only service that is working.

The Paris manager made arrangements far ahead. If he had not done so, practically no news of what is happening in France could have reached the United States.

Makeshift Capital

As a temporary capital the town leaves much to be desired. It lacks accommodation. Everybody's problem is how to find a bed for the night. The town is still crowded with refugees, wandering homeless—and now almost hopeless—in the rain, seeking some accommodation. They sit huddled among their belongings with only this for comfort, that as long as it rains they are not likely to be bombed.

News from Paris is depressing. One member of the New York Times staff, Mrs. Lansing Warren, who was the last to leave owing to a mishap on the road, tells how yesterday all the shops in the Rue Caumartin were shut except one little fruit and milk store. People were still leaving the city, even on foot, carrying pathetic bundles of food and bedding in the wake of all those who had left in automobiles and buses, on bicycles and every conceivable kind of wheeled vehicle. The last newspaper to appear was either symbolically or ironically Gustav Herves' La Victoire.

Paris Still, Empty

The city is still and empty. Gen. Pierre Hering, the military governor of Paris, has issued a proclamation announcing that he has been called to take command of an army and is handing over an "open" city to the command of Gen. Dentz. Everything will be done, he says, to assure the safety and provisioning of the population.

Tours as a substitute for Paris is as if the population of New York had suddenly been added to that of Washington and cramped in the latter city.

Complete Text of Two Reynaud Appeals

By the Associated Press

Tours, France, June 13.—The text of Premier Paul Reynaud's speech tonight in which he announced he had sent a second and "final" appeal to President Roosevelt follows:

In the distress fallen upon the fatherland one thing above all should be said. At the moment when fortune overwhelms them, I wish to cry out to the world the heroism of the French armies, the heroism of our soldiers, the heroism of our chiefs.

I have seen arrive from the battle men who had not slept in five days, harassed by airplanes, fatigued by long marches and heavy combats.

These men, whose nerves the enemy had thought broken, had no doubt about the final issue of the war. They had no doubt about the future of the fatherland.

The heroism of the armies of Dunkerque (in Flanders) has been exceeded in the fighting from the sea to the Argonne.

The soul of France is not broken.

World Must Know Sufferings

Our race does not allow itself to be beaten down by invasion. How many of these (invasions) the soil on which we live has gone through in the course of the centuries? Our race has always thrown back or dominated the invaders.

The world must know of the sufferings of France. The world must know of what they owe her. The hour has come for them to pay their debt.

The French army has been the vanguard of the army of the democracies.

It has sacrificed itself, but in losing this battle it has dealt telling blows to the common enemy. The hundreds of tanks destroyed, airplanes shot down, losses in men, the synthetic gasoline factories and planes—all that explains the present state of morale of the German people despite their victories.

France, wounded, has the right to turn to other democracies and to say:

"We have claims on you."

None of these (democracies) with a sense of justice can deny this.

But it is one thing to approve and another thing to act.

We know what a high place ideals hold in the life of the great American people.

Will they hesitate still to declare themselves against Nazi Germany?

Sends New Appeal

You know that I have demanded it (help) of President of the United States to increase in all forms the assistance permitted by American law, he has generously complied, and it has been approved by his people.

But today we are at a more advanced point.

Today, the life of France is at stake—at least France's essense of life.

Our fight, each day more painful, has no further sense if in continuing we do not see even far away the hope of a common victory coming.

The superiority and quality of British aviation increases.

It is necessary that clouds of warplanes from across the Atlantic come to crush the evil force which dominates Europe.

Despite our reverses, the power of the democracies remains immense. We have the right to hope that the day is coming when all that power will be placed in force.

Maintain Hope

That is why we maintain hope in our hearts.

That is also why we have wished to keep a free government and have left Paris.

It was necessary to prevent Hitler from suppressing the legal government and declaring to the world that France had only a puppet government, in his pay, like those he has attempted to constitute here, there and everywhere.

In the great trials of their history, our people have known days when they were troubled by defeatist counsel. It is because they never abdicated that they were great.

No matter what happens in the coming days, the French are going to suffer.

May they be worthy of the past of their nation.

May they become brothers.

May they unite about their wounded fatherland.

The day of resurrection will come!

By the Associated Press

Tours, France, June 13.—The text of Premier Reynaud's message of June 10 to President Roosevelt, issued today along with the official introduction, follows:

The following message is published in France and the United States by agreement between Mr. Roosevelt, President of the United States, and M. Reynaud, Premier of France:

Mr. President, I wish first to express to you my deep gratitude for the generous aid which you have decided to accord us in aviation, material and armaments.

For six days and six nights our divisions have been fighting without an hour of rest against an army of crushing superiority in manpower and material. The enemy today is almost at the gates of Paris.

We are struggling in front of Paris. We are struggling behind Paris. We will shut ourselves up in one of our provinces and if we are pursued we will go to North Africa and, if need be, to our possessions in America.

Part of the government already has left Paris. I myself am going to the armies. It will be to intensify the struggle with all the forces we command and not to abandon it. Can I ask you, Mr. President, to explain all that yourself to your people, to all United States citizens, telling them we are resolved to sacrifice ourselves in the struggle we are leading for all free men.

At the hour I speak to you another dictator has just struck France in the back. A new frontier is menaced. The naval war is going to open.

You have generously replied to the appeal I sent you some days ago across the Atlantic. Today, June 10, it is my duty to make a new and larger demand. At the same time you state this situation to the men and women of America, I beseech you to declare publicly that the United States accords to the Allies their moral and material support in all means save the dispatch of an expeditionary corps. I beseech you to to make this before it is too late. I know the gravity of such a gesture. The gravity itself demands that it must not intervene too late.

You said yourself on October 5, 1937, "I am forced and we are forced to look things in the face. The peace, liberty and security of 90 per cent of the population of the world are put in peril by the 10 per cent of the others who are threatening the breakdown of all international law and order. Certainly the 90 per cent who wish to live in peace under the reign of law in conformity with moral principles which have been universally accepted through the centuries can and must find a way to make their will prevail."

The hour now comes for these 90 per cent citizens of the world to unite against the mortal danger which menaces us. I have confidence in the solidarity of the American people in this vital struggle the Allies are leading for their own safety. But also for the safety of American democracy.

The text of President Roosevelt's reply follows:

I am compelled and you are compelled to look ahead. The peace, freedom and security of 90 per cent of the population of the world are being jeopardized by the remaining 10 per cent who are threatening the breakdown of all international law and order. Surely the 90 per cent who want to live in peace and under law in accordance with moral standards that received almost universal acceptance through the centuries can and must find some way to make their will prevail.

House Group Buries D. C. Traffic Probe

The House Rules Committee yesterday pigeonholed the D'Alesandro resolution authorizing an investigation of traffic in Washington and suggested that the House District Committee make an inquiry if it wished.

Representative D'Alesandro (Democrat), of Maryland, appeared before the committee fortified with a briefcase of letters and newspaper clippings, but he was not given an opportunity to read them.

One member of the committee, Representative Dempsey (Democrat), of New Mexico, expressed the opinion that $100,000 would be required to conduct a thorough investigation of District traffic. D'Alesandro countered that he would use Governmental experts and would need no money.

"Then why don't you get the District Committee to conduct the investigation?" he was asked.

"The District Committee won't hold any more meetings this year," D'Alesandro replied.

D'Alesandro may take up the matter with Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, chairman of the subcommittee of the House District Committee.

Red Cross Sets 'Goal to Go' Rally Sunday

Mass Meeting Planned To Speed D. C. Drive; $234,347 Collected

To bring home to Washingtonians the urgency of relief needs overseas and to speed the District Red Cross war relief fund toward its $300,000 quota, a "goal to go" mass meeting will be held at 8 p. m. Sunday in Departmental Auditorium.

Announcement of the mass meeting came as collections by the District chapter yesterday passed $234,347, or 78 per cent of its objective. The Capital stands far ahead of the country average, which is slightly past the halfway mark with $10,627,149 collected. The national goal is $20,000,000.

Principal speaker at the mass meeting, which will include Secretary of State Hull and Mrs. Hull, and other Federal and local government officials will be Norman H. Davis, national Red Cross chairman. Presiding will be Brig. Gen. F. R. Keefer, U. S. A., retired, chairman of the District chapter.

Baird to Join Appeal

Joining in appeals for local contributions to the relief fund will be Bruce Baird, District war relief fund chairman, and several radio performers. A special program of music will be played by the United States Navy Band.

Lending significance to the campaign of the Nation-wide Red Cross drive was a cable received yesterday by national headquarters describing "chaotic" conditions among refugees in France.

"Constituting third and fourth tidal waves oversweeping France are evacuees from Mediterranean regions and Paris districts, crowding inland toward the Spanish border," the cable read. "Extreme chaos caused by Belgian, Dutch and Jewish refugees fleeing Paris by every possible conveyance."

Contributions from individuals, industrial and Government units, from school children, (from whom solicitation of funds was allowed by a special School Board ruling) and from street booth collections yesterday brought in $12,895 to the local chapter.

Special Gifts Listed

Among the special gifts recorded esterday were Mrs. Louis F. Austin, $300; Anonymous, $500; Mrs. Ella Sevier, $200; Mrs. John L. Proctor, $300; Gen. John J. Pershing, $100 (second contribution); Mrs. John G. Flannery, $250(second contribution); Mr. and Mrs. John B. McCullock, $100.

From the Government unit, Walter Reed Hospital sent in $38; Welfare and Recreation Association, $500; D. C. Municipal Garage, $23; Department of Commerce, $896.83; Navy Department, $437.80; United States Supreme Court, $11.78; Department of Agriculture, $863; War Department, $670.28; Library of Congress, $52; State Department, $1,532.

Leading off in the school drive was Western High School with a contribution of $500. All funds collected in schools will be used for child refugees, school board officials have specified.

Reich Dissolves Nazi Party, Labor Front in Uruguay

By John W. White.
Copyright by New York Times

Montevideo, June 13.—The German minister, Otto Langmann, last night sent a note to the Uruguayan minister of foreign affairs notifying him that the Nazi party in Uruguay and the German Labor Front had been dissolved, their leaders removed from office, membership cards recalled from their members and property turned over to the German legation.

This action was taken at a moment when a congressional investigation committee had accumulated evidence on which it was going to ask the prosecuting attorney to dissolve the German organizations and institute criminal proceedings against their leaders.

The German minister's note makes no mention of a dozen annex organizations which are subsidiaries of the Nazi party and the Labor Front and it is not yet known whether the dissolution extends to them.

The note was described in semi-official sources today as one of the most cynical actions ever taken by any foreign diplomat in Uruguay. It denies there were any secret groups in the Nazi organizations or any groups carrying on secret work and that the Nazi party in Uruguay was concerned only with the social welfare of its members, who at no time were mixed up in the internal affairs of Uruguay.

The dissolution is looked upon by Uruguay authorities as an attempt to save the Nazi leaders from criminal proceedings and place Nazi party property under diplomatic immunity to prevent further search and seizure by police operating under instructions of the congressional investigation committee.

The members of the investigating committee said Herr Langmann's note would hasten rather than retard their investigation and that the committee expects to present its report to the Chamber of Deputies on Monday.

Herr Langmann's action is believed in well-informed circles to be an effort to save Julius Dalldorf, "Little Fuehrer" in Uruguay, from the consequences of any responsibility the investigating committee hopes to place upon him.

Wallace Sees Nazi Economic Menace Here

Farmers Great Aid In Emergency, 4-H Members Told

Warned that they may be called upon to serve their country, 173 youthful delegates to the Fourteenth National 4-H Club camp here were told yesterday by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace to "be ready for anything in these troubled times."

Secretary Wallace pointed out that 4-H Club boys and girls who so thoroughly understand good farming and food preservation methods would be of the greatest service to the United States in the event of a national emergency.

He expressed the opinion that Germany would almost certainly seek economic domination of the Western Hemisphere if she wins the European war.

Earlier M. L. Wilson, director of the extension service of the Agriculture Department, told leaders attending the camp that they and the 150,000 farm people who serve as voluntary local leaders, had a deep responsibility in making 4-H Club work mean the most in citizenship and preservation of democracy.

The delegates, whose motto stresses the four H's—head, heart, hand and health—have an extensive recreation and sightseeing program planned through their encampment which continues to June 19.

A feature today will be the special services beside the Lincoln Memorial end of the Reflecting Pool for 52 delegates who are 21 years of age this year and will vote for the first time. Thirty-seven States will be represented in the citizenship ceremony.

WPA Foreman Dies After Being Struck With Pick Handle

Peter R. Henderson, 54, of 1109 Twenty-fourth street northwest, died at Casualty Hospital yesterday of injuries suffered when he was struck on the head with a pick handle Monday.

Foreman of a WPA project at Seventh and Irving streets northeast, Henderson became involved in an argument with a truck driver, when he ordered the man to place warning lights around an excavation—a task which would have required a few minutes overtime work.

Bernard S. Riley, colored, 24, of 619 L street southeast, was arrested the next day by Detective Sergt. Thomas McVearry and will appear at a coroner's inquest.

Civil Service Extension Bill Given 50-50 Chance to Pass

Senate Body Votes Out Measure Without Keller-Nichols Rider

By Edward Ryan

Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, said yesterday that the Ramspeck civil service extension bill has a 50-50 chance of passing the Senate this session.

His estimate was made after seven members of the Senate Civil Service Committee voted unanimously to report the House approved bill with one major change—removal of the Keller-Nichols rider.

Committee approval was stamped on the measure in less than an hour after a month-long attempt to get a quorum. Chairman Bulow (Democrat), of South Dakota; Senator Mead, and Senator White (Republican), of Maine, showed up for the first call yesterday, one short of a quorum.

Then Senator Mead went out and brought in two more members, Senators Neely (Democrat), of West Virginia, and George (Democrat), of Georgia. Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, voted by proxy. The bill is expected to be reported to the Senate early next week.

Would Affect 200,000

In the form approved yesterday, the Ramspeck bill would permit the President to:

1. Bring into the classified civil service system up to 200,000 Government jobs. (The Civil Service Commission estimated that between 125,000 and 150,000 would be covered in practice.)

2. Open the way for holders of these jobs to obtain classified status by noncompetitive examinations.

3. Extend the Classification Act covering salary rates and job grades to more than 300,000 positions.

Still barred from the measure by both the House and the Senate Committee were all positions connected with the WPA. The WPA ban was voted by the House and retained by the Senate Committee after representatives of employe groups and Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA administrator, had sought its removal.

Boost to Employes

Dropping of the Keller-Nichols rider, however, came as a boost for employes who would be affected by the Ramspeck bill, especially those with residences in the District, Maryland and Virginia.

The rider barred employes from these areas, and others which are over their civil service quotas in Washington, from sharing in the merit system extension, until the quotas of all other States were filled. The Civil Service Commission described this plan as "unworkable," while employe organizations objected that it would be unjust to many workers.

In addition, Secretary of War Woodring had told the committee that the Keller-Nichols plan in action would be "extremely unfortunate" when the department was "under great pressure because of important national defense activities."

Senator Mead said yesterday that the bill had been strengthened by taking out the rider. As for the possibility of pushing the bill as a national defense measure, Senator Mead said:

Seen As Defense Aid

"Insofar as it would streamline Government operations which are essential to national defense it would contribute mightily."

A committee of the Council for Personnel Administration is seeking now for better ways to make sure that experienced workers dropped from one agency would not be lost if their experience could be used in another Government agency. A. J. Sarre, chairman of the committee, said that many workers laid off are finding their way to new Government jobs through personal contact between the separate personnel offices. The committee's studies, however, have not yet brought any formal program.

Meanwhile, the replacement service has been locating between 300 and 500 new Government jobs for discharged employes a month, according to Fred Zappolo, director of the work.

Calendar: "Miss Treasury 1940" will be named at the annual outing of the Treasury Department Recreation Association at Marshall Hall Park Sunday. Boats leave the Seventh street wharf at 9:30 a. m. and 2 p. m. . . . Anchor Masonic Club of the Commerce Department, CAA and Maritime Commission, will hold its annual garden party at 6 p. m. Monday at the Brooke Farm Tea House in Chevy Chase . . . Other moonlight cruises: Federal Security Agency Welfare committee, 8:45 p. m., Monday; U. S. Housing Authority employes, 8:30 p. m., June 19. . . . Rainbow Division veterans will hold memorial exercises and elect officers at 7 p. m. tomorrow in the Capitol Park Hotel.

Board Hears Gambling Laid To Poolrooms

Several Operators May Lose Licenses Over Gaming Activities

Several poolroom operators may lose their licenses as a result of testimony connecting them with alleged gambling operations, it was learned yesterday following closed hearings before the District License Board.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward Thomas, board chairman, said recommendations for the revocation of "several" licenses would be made to the Commissioners after the hearings are concluded.

Many cases implicating poolroom operators in reputed gaming activities are now before the board, Thomas said. Evidence presented by police charged that the accused poolroom owners either sanctioned gambling on their premises or received a "cut" from the promoters of "numbers" or horse race betting.

Poolroom proprietors pay a business license fee of $12 for each table in the establishment.

Answer

After making the prescribed opening lead, West can scarcely miss the best defense of continuing with the trump ace and five spot. Dummy wins and leads a club on the off chance that East has the ace and will go up with it. South wins and leads a heart for the winning finesse. Another club is led and ruffed. Then the four spades are cashed. A trump squeeze develops. If West discards a heart, North cashes the heart ace, dropping the king, and South wins the last two tricks with the trump and the heart jack. If West instead discards a club, North leads a third club for South to ruff, dropping the ace, and North wins the last two tricks. (Declarer has to guess the adverse patterns, but if he makes the commonsense play of developing the suit from which West discards at his only chance to discard, he will make the contract.)

Hitlerism Is Pilloried On the Palace Screen

'The Mortal Storm,' Based on the Book By Phyllis Bottome, Is a Powerful Indictment of the Present World Scourge

FIRST AND FOREMOST, "The Mortal Storm," opening at Loew's Palace Theater this morning, is an engrossing screen play that must engage the unflagging interest of any thoughtful spectator not averse to realistic drama as opposed to the escapist school.

BELL

Its development is marked by a great variety of scene and action, vivid character drawing and a turbulent love story that leads directly and inevitably to a tragic climax. The single undertone of the story, in fact, is that of tragedy; its overtones are in turn, gay, melodramatic and infinitely pathetic.

All this has its basis in the bitter effects of Hitlerism upon the lives of a cultured and enlightened non-Aryan family in Southern Alpine Germany who, prior to 1933, had dedicated themselves to "gracious living, tolerance and a sense of humor." As the story opens, Prof. Roth, college instructor and scientist, is being feted on his birthday by an adoring student body, his fellows of the faculty and his proud and happy wife and children. During his birthday dinner in his home, word is flashed over the radio that Hitler has been made chancellor. Lines of cleavage immediately are drawn around the table. Prof. Roth's two stepsons and Fritz Marberg, bethrothed to his daughter, Freya, become instant partisans of the new order; the professor, his wife, daughter and youngest son and Martin Breitner, Freya's straight-thinking, peasant admirer, adhere to the ideals of liberty of thought, speech and action to which they have been reared.

Those who subscribe to the new, national socialism attain quick posts of authority and their closest relatives and dearest friends become the victims of their incessant persecution, enforced by a high command to whom every individual becomes merely a chattel.

The ensung disclosures never are so overemphasized as to destroy conviction. Neither are they sufficiently understated to dim the terrifying implications of a world trumph of Hitlerism.

To the visualization of this deeply moving and disturbing record of vicious events, derived from the Phyllis Bottome book, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has brought the full measure of its productional facilities. The film is a thing of great pictorial beauty, especially in its mountain snow scenes. Frank Borzage's direction is sympathetic and flawless and the cast one of ideal selection.

The four pivotal roles are played by Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart, Robert Young and Frank Morgan. Miss Sullavan and Mr. Stewart have demonstrated before the perfection with which they play together, but never more decisively than in their present roles of Freya and Martin Breitner, her constant champion and eventual suitor. Not only do they provide a great measure of the drama's poignance, but they add equally to the quiet humor of its lighter moments. Robert Young, as Fritz Marberg, the youthful martinet, achieves the tribute of instant audience hatred, and Frank Morgan, as Prof. Roth contributes perhaps the finest performance he ever has brought to the screen.

The superior excellence and balance of the cast does not end there. Irene Rich, as Mrs. Roth, and Mme. Maria Ouspenskaya, as Mother Breitner, are symbols of feminine fortitude it is not easy to forget, and the youthful roles are played with comparable skill by Bonita Granville, Gene Reynolds, Robert Stack and William T. Orr. Russell Hicks, Granville Bates, Ward Bond and Thomas Ross are among those who offer most conspicuous and most competent support.

Although the new issue of the "News of the Day" perpetuates the haunting terror of the times, gayer moods are struck in the other supplementaries of the new Palace bill. "Modern New Orleans" is a FitzPatrick Traveltalk, in Technicolor, that gives a comprehensive survey of the Crescent City, with its producer's illuminating commentary coming over the sound track. Boogie-woogie music at its wildest is given its innings in "Swing Social," relating in color why black bass do not bite on Sunday, as the remaining subsidiary of an indictment of totalitarianism that strikes home with terrific impact. Under no circumstances allow yourself to miss it.

MELVILLE BAKER, the writer, arrived in New York, a few days ago and immediately held reunion with his old friend and neighbor, Elliott Nugent—the star and coauthor of "The Male Animal" . . . They toured the bars and, in an expansive mood, Nugent sighed: "I've got $100,000 that I don't know what to do with." He apologized forthwith: "That's the smuggest, most impolite thing I've ever said, Mel. I'm sorry. Forgive me" . . . "Now come, come, Elliott," Baker assured him. "I know you've got at least that much. After all, I know about all the pictures you've directed. And we've been friends long enough for you to confide in me" . . . "If that's the way you feel about it," returned Nugent, "I've got $200,000 I don't know what to do with."

BECAUSE the U. S. Film Service received no appropriation in the Federal budget, one of the contracts which had to be abandoned was for John Steinbeck to write "Behold The Man." Steinbeck, who can get $5,000 a week from any Hollywood studio, had agreed to do the job for $25 a day . . . The missing wife of District Attorney O'Dwyer's No. 1 fugitive returned to her home this week. She had been a patient at Long Island College hospital . . .

BOBBY CLARK and Dorothy Gish appeared recently in "Love for Love," the Players' revival of William Congreve's play . . . Clark became the darling of the cast and high was the esteem in which they held him . . . When the final curtain descended on the production Miss Gish appeared backstage in a huge fur coat . . . "What's this?" Clark asked her. "I," explained Dorothy, "am applying for the job of McCullough."

OLSEN AND JOHNSON have been appointed, officially, assistant Sergeant-at-Arms for the Republican National Convention. They will receive additional honors when the delegates vote the first ballot . . . These new honors spring from Arizona's "Cotton Week" festival, held annually in Buckeye, Arizona. That festival is called "Hellzapoppin,'" and Olsen and Johnson used that title when they brought their revue to Broadway. And so because they have popularized Arizona's "Hellzapoppin,'" and entertained the State's Cotton Queen each year, when she was sent to New York for the prize-visit, Olsen and Johnson will receive, on the first ballot, Arizona's votes for President and Vice President.

BECAUSE of the war, Broadway's grosses this week are at the year's lowest. Three night clubs—La Martinique, El Morocco and the Cotton Club—shut their doors for the summer. Two more famous cafes will close after this week-end. And because of the reduction in film production, flesh-entertainment will be revived in the movie theaters. Michael Todd is completing arrangements to road-show his two World's Fair hits, "Streets of Paris" and "Gay New Orleans," as one-hour unit shows throughout America in the fall . . .

Moral: Don't Monkey With Genders!

AMONG PRINCIPALS IN "TURNABOUT"

Columbia

After two weeks at the Palace and definite advance interest in this reengagement, it is evident that Vivien Leigh has captured the public fancy with her admirable successor to Scarlett O'Hara. In "Waterloo Bridge," reopening this morning at the Columbia, the young British actress appears in her first role since "Gone With the Wind."

Although the Robert E. Sherwood play, from which the film was adapted, is over a decade old, its setting of London in wartime has a stirring timeliness. Stressed by a flashback technique which brings the story up to the present conflict, the picture tells of a young dancer and a wealthy army officer. Their romance is as gentle as it is swift. A meeting on Waerloo Bridge becomes the prelude for a sincere romance which an unkind fate breaks in a series of coincidents and misfortunes.

Robert Taylor co-stars, as the unfortunate hero, and performs admirably. It is the most interesting performance the matinee idol has revealed. Lucile Watson, C. Aubrey Smith, Virginia Field and Maria Ouspenskaya are excellent in the chief supporting roles.

Little

That tender classic of another day, "The Mill on the Floss," has entered its second week at the Little Theater. The George Eliot novel has been adapted to the screen so faithfully that it becomes a convincing picture of the pre-Victorian era.

As an added attraction for the second week's engagement, the Little is presenting "Les Miserables," the Hollywood version of the Hugo novel costarring Frederick March and Charles Laughton, with Rochelle Hudson and Florence Eldridge.

You remember, of course, the Tullivers. Father was hot-headed and proud, son Tom equally obstinate. Mother was somewhat colorless as the film reminds us, but Maggie Tulliver was the proud, perplexed heroine of this West Country family. And Geraldine Fitzgerald's Maggie is rightfully the strongest character in the film. Vitality comes to the screen whenever this Irishwoman is the camera's subject.

Besides Miss Fitzgerald, the all-British cast includes Frank Lawton, Griffith Jones, Sam Livesay, Victoria Hopper, Fay Compton, Mary Clare and James Mason, for the most part, familiar names on London theater programs.

Drab Climax

Errol Flynn's father, Prof. T. Thomson Flynn, worked for 12 years to complete a book called "Monotramata." After all that labor the book looked like a magazine when published because of British wartime restrictions on binding materials.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, June 13.

Lunched with Rita Johnson day after she arrived from New York, while her eyes were still shining from the experiences she had back there. She and Spence Tracy went to the Oranges for personal appearances at the opening of "Edison, the Man." Rita says she's never seen such crowds. They looked upon Tracy, and especially the nuns who came to see him, as though he were a saint.

"I'm sure they saw before them, not Spence, but Father Flanagan." When she got to her own home, town, Worcester, Mass., they announced a Rita Johnson day and closed the schools, which embarrassed her no end.

"All my school friends are married, and they brought their babies to see me. I had to make a speech, and didn't know what to say, so I let them ask questions One person said, 'Tell us about the mad parties.' I told them the truth about Hollywood —that it's a lot of hard work and filled with the most serious minded people, 'just like you folks right here at home.'

"A policeman at my elbow spoke up and said, 'Atta girl—I went through that jernt once, and I never seen people work harder. Believe me, I got out quick! And I ain't seen a crowd like this here one since Al Smith came to town.'"

Rita's mother whipped up a little party, and over a thousand persons came. "Why, we had to send to the undertaking parlor three times for extra chairs . . . When I was asked to distribute flowers through the children's hospital, it was a little embarrassing—I thought they'd consider me a show-off, until a kiddie spoke up and said, 'Gee, we never expected to see a Hollywood star.'"

"I was so filled with gratitude, and made up my mind never to give a careless performance, even if the part wasn't good, or shirk from my duty. We owe a terrific responsibility to the public. It's through them we live. Everyone in Hollywood should tour at least twice a year and meet that public, if only to get away from our own smug, self-satisfaction."

Now the wise boys are saying Orson Welles double-crossed them, because he's actually going into production in two weeks, and the wise ones bet money he'd never make a picture. So—good, bad, or indifferent, Little Orson Annie will still take the rap.

Needs 89 Faces To Break 1,000

George Tobias has just 89 roles to go before he breaks the record of the traditional "man of a thousand faces." His part as the punch drunk fighter in "The Sentence" is No. 912.

The son of vaudeville hoofing parents, George would raid their makeup boxes and create strange facial effects in an effort to learn as many different expressions as possible. When he grew older and realized his ambition to be an actor, he became more and more interested in makeup.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

(While Louella O. Parsons is on her Honolulu vacation, this column is being written by her daughter, Harriet Parsons, producer of "Screen Snapshots.")

Hollywood, June 13 (INS).—Warners must be completely sold on the combination of Bette Davis and Charles Boyer. Without even waiting to see how the public takes to the team in "All This and Heaven, Too," the studio is going ahead with plans to costar them again in Dostoevsky's famed "The Gambler." Milton Krims is making the adaptation and Anatole Litvak will again direct Bette and Charles. There'll be a fat part for Albert Basserman as the old Russian general. Background of the story is Paris and a funny twist is the fact that Boyer plays a tutor, taking over the school books from Bette, who is a governess in "Ataht."

LOUELLA PARSONS

Freddie March is definitely planning to do a play in New York this fall. But he has time to do another picture before then and he's listening to offers. Paramount wants him to stay on when he finishes "Victory" and star in "Country Lawyer," based on the Bellamy Partridge book. Story covers the lifetime of a crotchety, aristocratic upstate New York lawyer during the nineteenth century and would give March a chance at a nice characterization. He's decidedly interested and I understand it's only a question of getting together with Paramount on terms. Stuart Walker will produce "Country Lawyer." Author Partridge has been here working with scenarist Edward Lowe on the adaptation since February.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: The whole town is primping and preparing to preen itself at the premiere tonight of "All This and Heaven, Too." Bette Davis, escorted by Bob Taplinger, will play hostess to her mother, Mrs. Ruth Davis, her sister and brother-in-law, the Robert Pilgrims, Mrs. Robbin Byron and Corbett Morris. Charles Boyer will also entertain his mother, Mme. Louise Rossignol and, of course, his wife, Pat Paterson. In Olivia de Havilland's party are Jimmy Stewart, Margaret Sullivan and Leland Hayward, Kay Aldridge and John Swope.

Earl Carroll's new show, headlined by Bert Wheeler, is slick entertainment. Bert was in his old-time form at the opening and among those who got a kick out of his clowning were Lana Turner and Artie Shaw, kissing and cooing at a front-row table; Hedy Lamarr and Gene Markey, Burns and Allen with Mary Livingstone, who's new nose is most becoming.

That's all today. All this and Heaven, too?

British Hope For U. S. Haven For Children

First of 120,000 Leave London for Refuges in Country

London, June 13.—War-menaced Britons looked tonight to both the United States and the dominions as havens for some of the thousands of children who must be evacuated from their homes.

The day saw officials start moving the first of 120,000 youngsters westward out of the London area, where bombers may be expected to strike.

Hope that American immigration laws might be amended to permit some of the young war victims access to the United States was expressed in official circles, as Miss Florence Horsburgh, parliamentary secretary of the ministry of health, told the House of Commons a "generous invitation has been received from abroad." She said "some scheme" probably would be announced shortly.

Bill Asks U. S. Haven

In Washington, Representative Sandager (Republican), Rhode Island, yesterday introduced a bill to admit, for the duration of the war, children of Great Britain, France, Belgium and the Netherlands under the age of 14. A United States citizen, or firm, would have to make application and guarantee their maintenance, education and support for the time they were in this country.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has received thousands of letters asking why European refugee children have not been sent to this country, she told her press conference, but in her opinion, she said, it would be a hazardous step at this time. She said children on relief in this country must be kept in mind and all possible help given them.—Editor's Note.]

Children who were sent out of London today were mobilized at schools, where their parents told them good-by and policewomen and teachers took charge of them.

Many mothers gathered tearfully at the train platform to watch the departure of their offspring, all of whom carried gas masks though many lacked coats or raincoats.

Shrill cries of excitement rang from most of the boys and girls, while others sobbed at being separated from their families.

The wholesale migration will continue for six days, when the 120,000 will have been removed from the city. Even then, however, there will remain some 330,000 other children whose parents did not register them in time for the current evacuation.

Canadian and Mexican Commuters Get Break

New regulations were issued by the State Department yesterday under which Canadian and Mexican commuters may continue to enter the country without new visas if they hold border identification cards.

Passports and visas will not be required for nationals of a neighboring country passing through the United States in direct transit from one part of their own country to another part by means of a transportation line which runs through the territory or waters of both countries.

Rep. Ross A. Collins' Daughter to Be Wed

Jane Collins, 24-year-old daughter of Representative Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi, will marry Thomas Corwin, an employe of the Riggs National Bank on June 28, it was revealed yesterday.

Miss Collins was awarded a degree of doctor of laws by George Washington University Wednesday night. She was graduated from Sweet Briar College in 1937.

'School's Out, Watch Out!' Is Slogan of Safety Drive

By Howard F. Wentworth

"School's out, watch out!"

With this slogan as its theme, the District Monday will launch the greatest child-safety program ever undertaken here.

Every resource at the command of local police and traffic officials will be thrown into a summer-long drive to protect vacationing youngsters, said Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

The Commissioners have instructed that all available safety facilities be used to keep the names of Washington boys and girls off the summer casualty list. They have appealed to parents and the motoring public in general to support the movement.

Determined None Shall Die

In 1938, Van Duzer recalled, seven children were killed in a single 21-day period—one every three days from July 13 to August 3. Last year the toll was considerably less and this year he is determined that no child shall die.

"And this goal can be attained if everyone will lend a hand," said the traffic chief. "We intend to do our part, but we need the help of all."

On every street car beginning Monday will appear multicolored placards warning motorists that "School's out, watch out!" In addition, 110,000 cards bearing the slogan will be delivered to homes throughout the city on milk bottles. Another 60,000 have already been distributed through the Federal departments.

Students Warned

Public and parochial schools have been supplied with banners asking where they will spend their vacations and warning that 200 youngsters are injured in Washington every summer.

Monday also will bring radio appeals for child safeguards from Van Duzer and other local authorities. Daily throughout the summer months radio stations will broadcast periodic warnings together with last-minute reports of the campaign's progress.

To keep children off dangerous streets, parents are urged to provide back-yard play spots or make certain that their children are safe on some public playground.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, has issued special instructions to teachers, urging "constant attention" to safety problems from now until classes close.

"I urge older boys and girls to set a safe walking example for the youngsters and to assist them whenever possible," said Dr. Ballou.

Parents Cautioned

Whitney Leary, chairman of the Traffic Advisory Council, pledged Congressional safety promotion funds at the disposal of his group for exclusive use in fostering the juvenile life-saving movement.

To parents, he cautioned:

"We must realize that in this dangerous problem of crossing streets we should set an example for our children rather than do things that nullify the lessons taught in our schools. We must also take advantage of every opportunity to impress our youngsters with the need for the greatest possible care."

Mrs. Rosa M. Knott, Clergyman's Wife, Succumbs at 74

Mrs. Rosa M. Knott, 74, wife of the Rev. John O. Knott, formerly an active clergyman in the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Church, died last night at her home, 3611 Fourteenth street northwest.

She was born in Frederick City, Md., and had lived in Washington with her husband for the past 30 years. Surviving, besides her husband, is a sister, Mrs. Edith Guise, of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Taltavull funeral home, 3619 Fourteenth street northwest, with burial in Frederick, Md.

Art Show Opens Here

A "Retrospective Exhibition of Drawings by Children of Foreign Countries" will open this afternoon at the Children's Art Gallery of the District WPA at 816 Independence avenue southwest. The exhibition will be open daily from 1 to 5 p. m. and Saturdays from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Business Unit Asks Share In War Trade

Organization Also Demands Defense Council Representation

Representatives of "small business" opened their first annual institute here yesterday with the plea that they be given a share in increased war orders and that small business be represented on the newly created National Defense Council.

"We little guys will be the first hit by restrictions in the event of war," declared Alfred Gaunt, vice president of the American Association of Independent Small Business, which is sponsoring the three-day institute in cooperation with the National Advisory Council of Independent Small Business.

Gaunt asserted that 20,000 small business men have been wiped out in England in the last few weeks.

A disappointing attendance of less than 30 marked the first day's session which was expected to draw 500. Delegates said the reason was that small business men were having such a hard time they couldn't afford transportation expenses.

Ask Congress to Stay

"Some of the representatives here scraped every cent and had to pinch pretty hard to get here," said Ernest H. Gaunt, local member of the group.

At a forum last night the group unanimously passed a resolution requesting that Congress remain in session in view of the war. The motion was made by Mrs. Suzanne Gill, beautician, of Narberth, Pa., and seconded by Fred Perkins, of York, Pa.

Perkins, who was jailed during the NRA days because he refused to adhere to provisions of the act while operating his small battery business, took the floor to paint a pessimistic picture for U. S. economy if Hitler wins the war.

Earlier the businessmen heard speakers discuss the institute's theme, "The Economic and Political Values of the Free Enterprise System."

Col. Philip B. Fleming, administrator of the Labor Department's Wage and Hour Division, told the small gathering that "the free enterprise system is an illusion."

Calls for Equality

"What we really want is not merely a 'free enterprise system as a way of life,' but a fair, a just and equitable enterprise system," Fleming said. "What we must have is not merely freedom for the strong to devour the weak, but an equality of opportunity."

Another speaker was Meyer Jacobstein, of Brookings Institution, a former Congressman from New York, who declared:

"It will be a sad day for America when the door of opportunity is closed to men of small business."

Jacobstein described the "second World War" as fast becoming "a first world revolution" in which the European dictators are seeking to destroy all free enterprise.

Representative Robert F. Rich (Republican), of Pennsylvania, criticized the National Labor Relations Board which he said was "strangling business," while Charles Fahy, general counsel for the NLRB, pointed out in defense of the body that it had brought about "diminishing industrial strife."

The morning session opens at 10 a. m. today. The subject, which will be discussed by several speakers, is "The Contribution Independent Small Business Can Make to the Advancement of the Free Enterprise System."

D. C. Raiders Seize Big Still, Two Suspects

A thousand gallon still in the basement rear of 1413 P street northwest was raided by police of the Second Precinct last night in the first raid of the kind in the District since February, 1938. Two men were seized at work.

Lieut. Paul L. Barnes led the raid, with Sergt. John R. Leach and Precinct Detective H. H. Hodge. Equipment was valued at $1,000 by police officials.

Thirty gallons of whiskey registering 75 per cent alcohol was discovered cooling on the floor of the dimly lighted basement. Only means of reaching the basement room was through an aperture barely large enough to admit a man in the rear of an empty stable at the back of the building.

One hundred gallons of mash was found in vats. Fumes were forced through a chimney pipeline, Lieut. Barnes said the odor of the fumes led to the raid.

The front of the building in which the still was found houses a shoe repair and tailoring shop. The equipment will not be destroyed until Federal Revenue agents have investigated the case.

Senator Lee Warns National Law Graduates War on American Soil Is Likely if Allies Lose

NATIONAL UNIVERSITY CONVOCATION—Graduates entering Continental Hall to receive diplomas

Should the Allies be destroyed before this Nation is armed, "the dictators will be on American soil and bring with them total war," Senator Lee (Democrat), Oklahoma, told 192 graduating students at commencement exercises at National University Law School last night. His talk was broadcast over a nation-wide hookup.

"If France and England are destroyed," Lee added, "then for the first time in our history the United States will stand alone without one single first-rate power as a friend and surrounded by totalitarian powers." He declared Latin America is already being prepared as a base for invasion of the United States.

He was given the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws "for distinguished and eminent services in the cause of good government and in education." Also receiving the degree was H. Winship Wheatley, former president of the District Bar Association, and for 30 years a member of the National faculty, for "eminent contributions to the profession of law and of legal education."

Five postgraduates received degrees of Doctor of Juridical Science. They were Cecil L. Covington, Roman Davila, Daniel Q. Drake, Margaret Caroline Henderson and Marshall I. Stewart.

Ray R. Murdock, brother of Representative Murdock (Democrat), of Utah, delivered the valedictory address.

Five Injured, Two Seriously, In Va. Traffic

D. C. Man Not Expected To Live After Crash In Falls Church

Five persons were injured, two seriously, in traffic accidents in nearby Virginia yesterday.

Daniel L. Tolson, 20, of 1132 E street northeast, brother of Detective Sergt. James J. Tolson, was not expected to live at Georgetown Hospital last night. He suffered head injuries when his automobile was sidewiped at Lee boulevard and Lee highway at Falls Church.

A young companion of Tolson received first aid at the scene for minor cuts. Her identification was not established.

Mrs. Elizabeth Waddell, 21, and her 3-year-old daughter, Shirley, of 226 Second street northeast, and Charles Belcher, 31, of 1110 M street northwest, were injured when the automobile they were riding in ran off the road, turned over several times and plowed through a pile of scrapiron at Hybla Valley Airport on Highway No. 1 below Alexandria.

Shirley suffered a fractured skull and her condition was said to be critical at Alexandria Hospital. The other two were treated for cuts and bruises and were released.

Three other passengers in the automobile escaped injury. They were Virgil Belcher, 24, of the M street address; Emma J. Bulow, of the Second street address, and the driver, who was said by State police to have left the scene before his identity became known.

Embryo Husings and McNamees Get Diplomas at Academy Here

Mock Broadcast Staged at First Commencement of Radio Training School; Eleanor Ray Stars at Exercises

An ad libbing valedictorian, a half-dozen script-faithful classmates, and a zealous sound effects operator last night enlivened the first commencement exercises of the National Academy of Broadcasting.

In carefully-enunciating, professional fashion the prospective radio performers went through their vocal paces in mock broadcasts of commercial plugging, a dramatic serial, a musical program, a quiz contest, and a play-by-play baseball account under the approving eye of parents and friends and school principal, Miss Alice Keith.

Frequently before the microphone at the 2017 S street northwest studio, was Miss Eleanor Ray, who was presented a certificate attesting her radiogenic qualities following the ceremonies.

After braving the roar of the sound effects apparatus in an eventful historical serial, Miss Ray shifted voice for a baseball broadcast, sponsored by "Hector & Scramble, makers of Bubble Soap."

Miss Margaret Rosborough took over the "mike" to sing an eighteenth century love song, but only after Miss Keith had played a recording of a popular song, with and without engineer tone modulating.

"So, you see it pays to be friendly with the engineer," Miss Keith told her pupils in a brief speech of professional advice.

WPA Attacks Chestnuts

Paul Edwards, District WPA Administrator, announced yesterday that WPA workers had begun operations to clear the Potomac River here of water chestnuts. The work started in Oxon Run Bay. The plant obstructs navigation and menaces health by providing breeding areas for malaria-bearing mosquitoes.

Capital's Hats Off To Flag Day

Senators, G. A. R. Join Ceremonies Honoring Stars And Stripes

Flag Day will be celebrated here today by Americans stirred to new appreciation of democracy by events abroad.

Several Senators will lend their oratory to patriotic programs, and employes of several Government departments will be allowed time from their work to attend exercises.

At the east front of the Capitol, the Department of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic, in cooperation with the Woman's Relief Corps and other patriotic organizations will hold a celebration at 8 p. m. Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, will make the principal address. A patriotic band concert will precede the program.

Students to Parade

Students and teachers of Jefferson Junior High School will parade down Constitution avenue from Seventh street to the Departmental Auditorium at 10:30 a. m. for exercises sponsored by the Department of Labor Post No. 42 of the American Legion. Senator Guy M. Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, will be principal speaker. Employes of the Labor Department will be excused from their duties for the program.

Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administer, and Francis Biddle, Solicitor General, will speak at a program under the auspices of the Department of Justice Post No. 41 of the American Legion from 4 to 4:30 p. m. in the Great Hall of the department.

United States Attorney General Robert H. Jackson will address employes of the Immigration and Naturalization Service at exercises also to be held in the same hall at 10 a. m. Accompanying Jackson on the program will be Solicitor General Biddle, who will outline the department's policy concerning registration of aliens.

Ceremony in Park

The District of Columbia National Guard will present a ceremony at 8 p. m. in Rock Creek Park at the opening of the National Capital Parks campfire program for the summer.

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commanding officer of the guard, will make a brief talk on the significance of Flag Day. A detail from the 121st Company, Engineer Corps, under the command of Col. John W. Oehmann, will take part in a color guard ceremony. The program will be near Sixteenth and Kennedy streets northwest.

Edward M. Curran, newly appointed United States attorney, will deliver the address at exercises of Washington Lodge, B. P. O. Elks, in the lodge rooms at 919 H street northwest at 8 p. m.

$500 Disappears From Unopened Safe in Mystery

How $500 disappeared from a safe which had not been opened was a police mystery last night.

The safe, taken from a filling station at 1731 Kalorama road northwest in a holdup Monday morning, was found yesterday in the Soldiers' Home grounds battered, but unopened.

Police took it to headquarters where C. B. Ryan, manager of the gas station, opened it with the combination. An envelope containing $3.60 was found inside. Police pointed to the possibility that the money was extracted through a slit in the top of the safe used for depositing money without having to open the box.

Age, Not Youth, Is Hysterical, Scouts Told at Honor Court

Linn C. Drake, Boy Scout executive for the District, told an audience of nearly 300 at a scout court of honor held at Roosevelt High School last night that "hysteria today is manifested in age, and not in youth."

In his charge to 14 new eagle scouts, and speaking before 63 others honored with star and life badges, Drake declared, "There is no place for hysteria in the minds of the youth of America."

Urging youth not to be afraid in today's troublous times, he said "Give a good account of yourself in the difficult days that lie ahead." Dr. Paul Bartsch was chairman of the court.

Among the 14 scouts honored with eagle badges was 14-year-old Wilson R. Parker, of Troop 13. Stretching a little over 5 feet, Wilson is one of the youngest and smallest scouts ever to receive the highest honor of the organization, according to scout officials. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson L. Parker, of 312 Sixth street northeast. Last summer he was one of the representatives of the District Boy Scouts at the New York World Fair.

Those also honored with eagle badges presented by their mothers were Jack F. Bennett, Bernard Bier, John P. Cissel, Theodore Crozier, Theodore Davis, John J. Denikos, Earl Dungan, Jack Freeman, John Hollowell, Richard Kline, William Ramsay, Robert Rosenberry, and Richard Schwartz.

James D. Appel, Warren Brown, Francis Kraft, John J. Riselins, jr., Mike Denikos, Henry V. Harman, Raymond W. Harrison, Romo Bowles, Bert Cleveland, Edward Krise, Roland B. Rosson, Ray Tucker, Ralph Turner, David McCabe, Ralph McCabe, Vincent Wintermyer, William Bryan, Joseph Helm, Thomas Jenkins, Lawrence Levidali, Phillip Mohler, Gene Ryals, Gerlad Sebastian, Laurie Seward.

Receiving bronze palm awards were Vernon Yates, Vernon Cole, Charles O. Badgett, William E. Davis, Arthur L. Latterner, Grahame T. Smallwood, John L. Jeffries 3d, Joseph Colins, Fred B. Kraft, jr., and William Dunne. Richard H. Rule won the gold palm award and J. Edmund Thompson, jr., Richard E. West, jr., and Lewis A. Cauffman, silver palm awards.

Minstrels at Friendship

A "gay nineties" minstrel show will be given tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. and 8 p. m. at Friendship House, 619 D street southeast, by Harlequins, dramatic club at the settlement.

Participating will be 35 boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 18. Scenery and costumes have been made by members of the group.

Ballads of the Stephen Foster variety will be featured. Proceeds to go toward the purchase of baseball equipment.

Slayer Freed By Decree Of Roosevelt

Life Sentence Of Charles Harris In Henry Death Case Commuted

Through intervention by President Roosevelt, Charles Harris, serving a life term for the 1932 murder of Milton (Milsie) Henry, Washington gambler, will be released from Leavenworth Penitentiary today.

It is the second time President Roosevelt has interested himself in Harris' behalf. In 1935, he commuted the prisoner's death sentence to life imprisonment.

The President's action yesterday recalled one of Washington's most sensational underworld slayings. Henry, long a powerful figure in local gaming affairs, was shot and killed by a mysterious sniper as he entered his home—3400 block of Brown street northwest—in the early morning hours of April 21, 1932.

Although the street was only dimly lighted and a heavy fog shrouded the front of Henry's house, a lone witness—who claimed to have seen the gunman from an upper window of his house across the street later "identified" Harris as the killer.

Harris—whose real name is Bernstein—was convicted October 7, 1933, and sentenced to death. He lost numerous appeals, including one to the United States Supreme Court.

Neil Burkinshaw, local attorney, convinced Harris was innocent, has been working for his release.

The commutation was to become effective immediately, and prison authorities last night said Harris would be free to leave any time.

Investigators in the Henry murder case were convinced he was killed by a hired "trigger man" who ambushed the gambler from a car parked on Brown street.

D. C. Student Honored

Walter D. James, of Washington, tomorrow will be awarded a certificate by the Babson Institute of Business Administration, Boston, upon completion of a year as faculty assistant and fellow.

He is the son of Delos L. James, 5913 Thirty-second street northwest, manager of the department of agriculture of the United States Chamber of Commerce. The younger James will be connected with the Railway Express, Inc., at Akron, Ohio.

Permanent Capitol Police Force Sought

Romney Says Present Patronage Corps Is Inadequate

Establishment of a permanent force of seasoned policemen and plainclothesmen to guard the Capitol and the legislators has been proposed to the House Appropriations Committee by Kenneth Romney, House sergeant at arms, it was learned yesterday.

Romney appeared before the subcommittee holding executive hearings on the last deficiency bill and asked for an appropriation.

Veteran police from the Metropolitan police department and possibly FBI men would be transferred to the Capitol police force as a permanent unit if Congress approves the plan. The size of the force would be determined later.

The creation of this special unit would not do away with the Capitol police force, which is made up of students, lawyers, doctors and other untrained youths selected entirely on a patronage basis.

A special detail of six plainsclothesmen from the Metropolitan police department and an undisclosed number of FBI men have been on duty at the Capitol since shortly after the outbreak of the European war. Uniformed policemen from the Metropolitan force also are are assigned to duty at Capitol Hill whenever Congress is in session.

One unverified report was that 20 seasoned Metropolitan policemen will be transferred to the Capitol if Congress appropriates the money. Their places will be filled by 20 rookies as was done when a similar number of men was transferred to the White House force.

Officials in charge of protecting the Capitol have realized the inadequacy of the Capitol police force since the outbreak of the war. They have expressed fear that the untrained youths would be unable to meet an emergency should one arise.

'Miss Houston' Leaps for Joy

Dimple Causey, 17-year-old high school girl named "Miss Houston" in a Texas beauty contest, leaped for joy when she arrived in New York on cruise celebrating inaugural of direct passenger ship service between the two ports

Forest Glen Pastor Dies at 84

The Rev. Charles O. Rosensteel, 84, pastor emeritus of St. John's Parish, Forest Glen, Md., which he served 47 years, died yesterday at Mercy Hospital, Johnstown, Pa. Father Rosensteel was injured a month ago in a fall at the home of his sisters, with whom he lived at Johnstown.

Born December 13, 1855, near Emmitsburg, Md., he studied at Mount St. Mary's, Emmitsburg, and St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore. In 1884 he was ordained at Baltimore by the late James Cardinal Gibbons.

Members of the parish celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination November 4, 1934, with a ceremony at which the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of Baltimore, presided.

Surviving are the sisters, Miss Stella Rosensteel and Mrs. Alma McGahan; a nephew, the Rev. Walter O'Hara, of Pittsburgh, and many other nephews and nieces. A brother, the Rev. Thomas Warren Rosensteel, died several years ago.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 1:30 a. m. at St. John's. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Two Firms Forbid Employes to Talk Of War at Work

At least two Washington firms have warned their employes against fighting the European war among themselves in business hours.

The Palace Laundry, in a proclamation to all employes, ordered them to refrain from discussing the current imbroglio even with customers, upon pain of dismissal. Should the customer start the argument, the notice suggests, the employe should take a "negative approach" to the matter.

In a similar manifesto, the Mayflower Hotel warned its employes against "quarrels or loose and loud talk as to personal points of view." It urges them, "above all things, be Americans" and exercise "tolerance of others" and remember that Americanism "means individual liberty and the right of individuals to their own religious, political and social relations with due recognition of similar rights of other people."

H. V. Keiser Named Head of District Self-Help Group

Hugh V. Keiser, of 4807 Arkansas avenue northwest, was elected president of the Washington Self-Help Exchange at an annual meeting yesterday.

Robert Woods Bliss will serve the organization as first vice president during the coming year, Mrs. Charles Goldsmith is second vice president; Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., third vice president; Mrs. Samuel Spencer, secretary; Frederick P. H. Siddons, treasurer, and Miss Mae Helm, counsel.

The newly elected members of the advisory council are Mrs. C. B. Baldwin, Mrs. Clifford Durr, Mrs. Ross Garrett, Marion Hedges, Mrs. Gardner Jackson, Mrs. Hennen Jennings, Miss Edna Lonigan, Dr. Daniel Lynch, Mrs. Frances Northcross and Mrs. Gertrude Price Wellner. Miss Lonigan and Hedges, former members of the board of directors, were unable to continue because of other duties.

Members of the advisory council who were reelected for another year are: Will Alexander, Miss Mary Anderson, Robert E. Boondy, Harold A. Brooks, Richard Chenowith, Walter Clarkson, C. C. Glover, jr., Dr. Ernest Griffith, H. B. Hynds, the Right Rev. Msgr. J. O'Grady, Col. H. A. Osthagen, Mrs. Thomas Parran, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Milo Perkins, Bert Piers, Harold B. Stabler, Col. William Stacom, Elwood Street, Mrs. Hugh R. Thomas, Craig S. Vincent and George Warren.

Dr. Jas. A. Lyon Is Commander Of Military Order

Dr. James Alexander Lyon, a major in the United States Army Medical Corps, was elected commander of the Washington Chapter, Military Order of the World War, at a luncheon yesterday in the Mayflower Hotel.

Dr. Lyon, who succeeds Col. B. K. Cash, Infantry Reserve, has been decorated by both the French and United States governments.

Other new officers are: Rear Admiral William R. Furlong, chief of ordnance, U. S. N., senior vice commander; Lieut. Col. Harry F. Cunningham, Infantry Reserve; Col. J. Monroe Johnson, Rear Admiral Ernest J. King, general board of the Navy; Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, retired, and Commander Homer Wallin, Construction Corps, U. S. N., junior vice commanders; Maj. Arthur R. Robinson, judge advocate; Maj. Gen. Walter C. Baker, chief of Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. A., historian; Lieut. Louis G. Beardsley, surgeon; Capt. Robert D. Workman, chief of Navy chaplains, chaplain, and Lieut. Col. Edwin S. Bettelheim, jr., adjutant, reelected for his fifteenth term.

Put Teeth in Law On Dog Muzzles, Bitten Carriers Beg

Supporting their complaint with trenchant statistics, mail carriers of Hyattsville, Md., yesterday asked Mayor E. Murray Gover to enforce the town statute calling for muzzling of dogs.

The statistics are these:

There are from 90 to 122 dogs on each postman's route which he traverses twice daily.

Of these, an average of five or six are "bad."

At least one postman is bitten daily.

The complaint was made in a letter sent by the local of the National Association of Letter Carriers and signed by George Franklin, president, and Charles C. Tessier, secretary.

RIVIERA MYSTERY. Wonderful things are due to happen in the Lounge Riviera in a few days, probably around June 19. There's to be a new star entertainer of national note. Manager Dick Butler, of "2400" said, "She's like Hildegarde, but different." Maestro Pete Macias said, "I think she's more like Ramona." And Assistant Manager Roger Payne piped up, "It seems to me that her style is like Sheila Barrett's." Besides the arrival of the mysterious Hildegarde - Ramona-Sheila, there's to be a complete redecoration of Riviera. Trimmings will be installed in a short time. We think they'll include a new mural, bandstand fixings and quantities of palms and tropical plants . . . Riviera was verra gay the other eve with the graduating lasses from the Sacred Heart Academy and their escorts. Miss Dorothy Dempsey gave the party.

VISITORS FROM PARIS. M. Louis Renault, France's chief automobile manufacturer, whose plants near Paris have been turning out munitions for the Allies, was in the Mayflower Lounge lately. With him were Mme. Renault, Mme. C. L. Renault and M. Jean Renault.

LITTLE JACK LITTLE, famed from end to end of these United States, will bring his orchestra to the Metronome Room tonight. He'll sing and piano with the same novelty and freshness that have placed him at the top of so many theater and radio programs. Also he has written some new tunes, as yet unpublished, which he'll try out on Metronomers. They should be good a-plenty, for Jack wrote "It's Only a Shanty in Old Shanty Town," "Jealous," and others that have figured away up in hit parades.

PALL MALL ADIEU. The Pall Mall Room will positively say good-by for the summer tomorrow eve. This is its latest summer closing ever. Customers stayed around in such quantities that the originally scheduled closing has been deferred twice. Tomorrow night's "good-by party" will be bright and attractive.

SHOREHAM PICTURE. Barnee plays an impromptu collegiate choral session and gets shouted demands for songs of every university imaginable from Georgetown to Old Siwash. And don't think that the customers didn't sing 'em, especially "Anchors Away." These doings are a graduation week special . . . Vorina does the most brilliant Russian dances we've seen for months. If Mrs. Helen Hamilton, owner of the Russian Troika, ever sees Vorina there's going to be a kidnapping . . . St. Clair and Day do amazing dips, dives and whirls, all in the ultra-Parisian manner . . . Gold-plated True and Trudy Wilkins tell us that on July 26 they sail for Rio de Janeiro where they'll play at the Casino Copocabana.

MOST FASCINATING LIST of songs imaginable is that being sung by Frank Carter in the Hi Hat. Manager Russell Conn, of the Ambassador, who knows his theater, after casting an eye over them, identified numbers made famous by Weber and Fields, Lillian Russell, Blanche Ring and Nora Bayes.

The Rossilianos, Polish dancers, now appearing at the Lotus

There's a full hundred on the list and every one's a topnotcher.

ABOUT ADELE. Glen Echo's little lark, Adele Van, has more interests! She likes dramatics, vanilla ice cream, basketball, professional photographic modeling, sliced chicken sandwiches, Persian kittens, gardenias and horses. (But that wasn't a horse we saw her with the other night.) She began singing at 11.

THESE RHYTHM BOYS. When Mayfair's Lyle Smith leaves the table, he likes to say, "As we say in Kentucky, I'll be back'n a flash with some sour mash" . . . Lee Hardesty, the new clarinet player at River must have been born in a place called "Swingtown." Just take a listen to him at "Swing Night" this eve. We hear that Al Sokol will soon join the River Bend Band . . . Favorite foods of Durward Bowersox, cocktail hour violinist at the New Bavarian, are clam broth and raw chopped beefsteak. He's determined to get plenty of vitamins . . . Though Matt Windsor plays every weekday afternoon and evening at the Anchor Room, he also plays benefits almost every Sunday . . . Del Rio's Rollin Webber is one of the few maestros who leads from the drums . . . Every member of Arthur Herbert's Band on the Starlight Roof is also an ardent golfer . . . Bill Downer's Nightingale Band and their new boss (beginning June 20), Charlie Spivak, will celebrate Monday night in the Metronome Room. Don't be surprised if this new outfit shows up in one of the top spots in Atlantic City. A new Nightingale orchestra is now in process of selection.

CUPID'S HERE. Comes a booful, blue wedding announcement from the Carlton's Erwin Devron and his Marian. With the sentence, "You even scooped us on our announcement cuts."

SEA FOOD TIPS. The Harrington Tavern menus always include a choice of tasty sea food specials. Some are cold and some are hot, but they're all delicious . . . Hogate's shore dinner is as tremendous as it is appetizing. It includes a whole lobster and six other kinds of sea food.

NEVER MISS getting around to the Neptune Room tomorrow evening for that special stepping interlude by Jack Rollins and his crew of expert dancers. Maybe Jack will give you a rumba whirl if you ask him. And if you're a song writer take your masterpiece along and register it for next Tuesday "Composers' Night."

Sagging Chin Line Fatal To Beauty

Expert Advises That Neck Muscles Be Exercised

By Ida Jean Kain

WOMEN will pay 10 or 15 cents any time to see if a perfect stranger can tell how old they are, so the age guessers are doing a flourishing business. Ma Nature has methodically provided certain unmistakable clues to birthdays. With trees, it's the number of rings. With equines, it's the teeth. And with women, it seems to be the chinline. The age guessers say that clever cosmetics can cover up the crowsfeet but that the chinline remains an open secret and a give-away.

Sometimes I get carried away by my own enthusiasm and tell you that it is most important to exercise the muscles of the midriff or perhaps the hips. But if you want to make your age your own personal affair, you will get in a little chin exercise, too. The technique of doing chin exercise is to slowly tense all the muscles of the throat, to do exercise of this type very slowly, and then to relax the muscles slowly. Merely tossing your head from one side to the other does no good whatever. You must put the muscles to work. Then, to complete the good work, you must carry your head gracefully erect.

Exercise Gradually For Best Results

Slowly turn the head sideways, and as you turn it, tense the muscles of the throat. Now, tipping the chin upward, slowly circle the head back and around to the other shoulder. Release the tension from the muscles, rest, and repeat the exercise three times, later six times. Do not make any jerky movements. Always tense the muscles gradually and relax gradually.

A more vigorous exercise is to lie on the back on the bed with the head hanging over the edge. Slowly raise the head to the level of the bed, letting the muscles of the neck do the work. Hold there for a second, then rest with your head on the bed for another second or two before repeating the exercise to avoid dizziness.

The old trick of blowing up a balloon, a good big one, is marvelous for the chin, throat and jaw muscles. Huff and puff! It's a fine wrinkle chaser!

Posture of Prime Importance

Correction of the head carriage is just as important as corrective exercise. Your head should sit squarely on your shoulders with as straight a line as possible at the back of the neck. This keeps your chin at a right angle and automatically contracts the lower abdominal muscles so that your entire posture is in line. As you stand, walk or sit, try to remember to push up with the top of your head and hold your head squarely on your shoulders. It takes a bit of practice but it's worth it.

If you have a tendency to carry your head forward, you should not sleep on a pillow or read propped up on one. If you sleep better with a pillow, then use a very soft, flat one. But try to avoid doing anything which tends to further increase the forward position of the head and neck. In doing any exercise, be sure to line up in perfect posture, so that you get the full benefit from it.

Every woman who wants to keep her throatline young will take a little daily exercise for these all-important throat muscles, and will carry her head erect.

Beauty Secrets

By CAROLYN ABBOTT

Beauty in the Air

WOMEN who travel by airplane have their own particular beauty problems. The longer and the higher you fly, the drier the skin becomes. Two or three hours in the air doesn't make much difference to the complexion. But 10 or 18 hours in the ether has a drying effect on the skin. Unless you keep the skin replenished with oils, you are apt to arrive at your destination with a leathery, dried-out face.

If you expect to do much getting around by airplane, be sure that your make-up kit includes plenty of rich, oily creams. Over a long stretch in the air, it's advisable to remove all make-up except lipstick and to douse the face with a good lubricating cream. At night, when you have retired to your berth or when the lights are turned down low, is a good time to apply your nourishing creams. During the day use a good foundation base with protective ingredients under your make-up.

Since the amount of baggage you can take is limited and bottles and jars add up the poundage, pack only small, light-weight containers of cosmetics. A compact kit that includes cleansing cream, astringent, powder base, powder, lipstick, lubricating cream and other essentials is the most practical. If it is small enough, you can keep it in a rack overhead so you won't have to plunder through your baggage every time you need an item. Cleansing tissues are available on the plane.

Seven Steps For Correct Weddings

Prospective Brides May Well Follow This Program

New York (AP).—If you want your wedding to be quite correct, you probably want answers to a group of questions that many prospective brides keep asking. Mrs. James R. Truesdale, of Your Wedding, Inc., thinks these pointers take care of most of such questions:

1—The informal invitation to a small wedding should run something like this: "James Jones and I are to be married on Thursday, the seventh, at half past twelve, St. Joseph's Chapel. And we very much want you to be with us. Aunt Grace is having a small reception afterward at her home, 92 Reynolds Road. Will you let me know whether you can be there?"

Formal Announcements Held Desirable

2—Formal announcements are not essential, but are desirable, especially when the bride or bridegroom is from another city.

3—The bride's father usually gives her away. But, if the mother does, the bride can enter on the arm of a male relative or friend so that her mother merely steps forward at the time the minister asks, "Who giveth this woman?" In the absence of a relative, a bride asks her oldest male friend to give her away.

4—A bride's chief attendant holds the bridal bouquet during the ceremony. If she is unattended, she has a friend stand near her to hold the bouquet, which is returned after the ceremony.

Order of Precedence In Receiving Line

5—This is the order for the receiving line: The person giving the reception stands first, nearest the door, then the bride's and the bridegroom's mother, the bride and the bridegroom and, finally, their attendants. Sometimes, however, the attendants stand in a second line headed by the bridegroom's mother. If the fathers of the bridal couple elect to stand in the reception line, they stand with their wives.

6—At a wedding breakfast, bride and bridegroom sit side by side. The best man or the bridegroom's oldest friend sits next to the bride; the bride's oldest friend or chief attendant next to the bridegroom.

7—The bride throws her bouquet into the group when time arrives for her to change from her wedding dress to her going-away ensemble.

Three Pairs of Shoes That Do the Work of Six

Careful Shopping Shows Stylist's Dictate Is Slightly Extravagant

By Marshall Adams.
The Post Fashion Editor.

A FASHION authority recently stated that the ideal summer wardrobe contained six pairs of shoes. Without blinking an eye she named this wardrobe as including a pair of dark-tipped white spectator pumps for classic sports clothes; a pair of all-white shoes—sandals or pumps—as taste dictated for town linens and prints; a pair of country walking shoes; a pair of white wedges for a lift to the wardrobe and for fun and color with afternoon costumes; a pair of light-hearted dancing shoes for summer roof gardens and finally a pair of loafing shoes for the house, week-ends, beaches, etc.

This hypothetical wardrobe sounded wonderful but staggering for hard-working girls who can just about afford to muster a change of summer-weight shoes. Nice wardrobe groundwork, we thought—but too costly—until we ran into a collection of summer shoes in town, none priced over $4, many under $2.50.

Since sun and sand shoes don't receive heavy usage, it doesn't pay to spend a whole week's salary on sports shoes so we have pictured here three pairs that leave little dent in salary savings, but add sudden gayety to staid wardrobes. They are all young shoes for youthful wearers.

Doctor Draws Health Lesson From Nature

Keep Your Spirits Up—That's Best Advice From Physician

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

"What a wonderful view!" exclaimed my old friend Dr. Adrian Gibbs to a downcast and surly-looking man who sat in his office. "I selected this room on account of it.

"There it is basking in the beauty of the early summer day. That curving stretch of water in the valley is one of the greatest rivers in the world. My friend, it is longer and more tortuous and more important even than your intestinal tract. And it seems to be enjoying itself more than your intestines. True, sometimes it gets stopped or clogged up a little in the spring, just like your intestines, when it brings down all the debris of winter from the mountains and the plains. But it doesn't worry about it. It just lets things alone and by and by it breaks through those obstructions, goes mightily on its way to the sea—to become one with eternity.

Enjoy Yourself a Little

"You and I are doing that, my friend. Long before we were, and long after we are gone, that river will be gathering far back in the mountains and flowing down to merge itself in the ocean. And it has such a good time while it's doing it! I think there is a lesson in that. It goes on lustily without regard to gossip or rumor or discouraging advice, even, as I say, when there is a little interruption in its steady flow. Why don't you do that—enjoy yourself a little while you're here?

"Then there's another thing about that view. See those hills over there. Fine hills! 'I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills.' Lift them up: not cast them toward your miserable belly.

"See that animal over yonder outlined against the sky? I use that occasionally as an illustration for my medical students. They are always thinking of the unusual diagnoses to hang on a patient. Just as you have been. You've thought of cancer, and then somebody told you about lymphoma of the intestines and you've been worrying about that, and several other fancy suggestions have popped in your head from reading or overhearing your neighbors talk about what the doctor said to Bill at the clinic.

In the Minority

"Now you know the unusual things in this world fortunately are in the minority. You take that animal over there silhouetted against the sky. Must be five miles away. Can just barely see him move. You know it's alive all right, it's an animal but you can't distinguish details. Now suppose somebody asked you what it was. Would you say, 'It's a royal Bengal tiger?' Course it might be—escaped from a circus. But the chances are it is just a plain Missouri mule.

"Now that applies to your trouble. You have thought of its being everything except the common thing which is what it most certainly is. Your bowels haven't got cancer—they simply lack ambition. And that's your fault because instead of sending them pep messages over the telegraph system of your nerves, you are constantly sending them discouragements. You keep wiring them, 'You're no good. What's the use of trying?'

Buster Crabbe Likely to Graduate Into More Serious Cinematic Roles

By Alice Hughes

New York, June 13.

CLARENCE LINDEN CRABBE, known to thousands of juvenile movie addicts as Flash Gordon and other colorful characters who right wrongs and slay monsters, is the current bronze fish who costars with Eleanor Holm in the 1940 version of the unbelievably beautiful aquacade, or water show, at the Fair.

ALICE HUGHES

Clarence Linden became "Buster" for the flickers, but it hardly fits. A Honolulu lad headed for the law, his winning of the 440 in the '32 Olympic games turned him aside and before the camera, and since then he has appeared in some 40 films. He is a serious-minded chap about 30 and is a very intelligent and eloquent young man. He is also taking acting and diction lessons, as he wants to graduate from the wrong-righters to more serious examples of cinema art.

But don't sell Clarence Linden short as a stuffed torso out of water. Not he. His aquatic labors in Billy Rose's labors are being blessed. Local authorities among the girls consider him as pretty as Johnny Weissmuller, his tree-climbing, hog-calling predecessor. "Buster" does the same routine this year—a comedy scene with "Stubby" Kruger, a fast spring the length of the huge pool, and the lovely waltz-swim duet with La Holm, as pretty a sight as an ugly world holds, these days. He has a fine tan all over, north to south, and is a fine figure of a man as he stands on the high board and hurls himself into Rose's water.

"Buster" need not maintain the training integrity of an Olympian any more. He picked up smoking coffin nails from bad boys around the movie lots and now will take two or three highballs of an evening when he chooses. They don't hurt him, he says. And he is a floor-clearing rumba dancer.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—The hit of our twice-daily show in the World of Fashion is the hat give-away, wherein a top piece from the best milliners here is given to the lady who adorns it most. Now that visitors are arriving, winners are popping up from all over the country. Mrs. Anna Reicher, of Birmingham, Ala., was one lucky girl, and tomorrow it may be a miss from Maine.

Luminous artificial flowers for head-wearing are 'growing in favor among the local sweetie-pies. Even when the lights go out a love-smitten swain can locate his personal flame by her glowing nasturtiums. Very nice stunt and prevents embarrassing mistakes.

I hear that Garbo, having "spoken" in 1929 and "laughed" in 1939, will completely demolish her devotees by "singing" in 1940. Her next picture appears to call for a song and her current practicing is said to be driving the neighbors daffy. She will "dance" in 1941, probably, and then retire on her nest egg, which must be the size of the Perisphere by now. And if she needs a double for long shots, get Anne Francine, the big girl who sings baritone swell in our better night clubs. Annie even looks like Garbo and warbles way down at the left end of the pianoforte.

Freedom hits our neighbor town, Yonkers! Girls in shorts, once banned in the city, now get only admiring glances from the once-tough cops.

My favorite table setting—flowers, if any, at one end of the table so as not to shut off the handsome or pretty faces across the board. Candles removed, to remove that deadly glare. And only the dishes and stuff on the table that you absolutely need. Over-cluttered tables are the prime curse of an otherwise delightful munching party.

Mexican Market For Gay Imports Affected by War

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

Mexico is going to have to satisfy our urge for things foreign, with so much of the rest of the world cut off by war. Not only must the travelers turn their eyes toward this enchanting land to the south, but we stay-at-homes will also be Mexico-minded with bright and gay imports pouring in to fill the gaps left by the difficulties of getting European goods (curiously enough we still are getting things even from England and France, not to mention Italy.)

A series of Mexican table settings recently exhibited suggest many fresh ideas for informal tables. The most amusing was a round table set for fruit and wine on the porch—a small table just the right size for an enormous striped straw hat, with its crown cut out, to serve as a tablecloth.

In this cut-out crown a centerpiece of fruit was heaped about a pineapple. Deep blue plates with turquoise bowls, both of Mexican glass, were set at each place, along with amethyst glass wine glasses.

Table Arrangement

Another Mexican table, this one on the formal side and inspired by Mexican baroque, used a heavy lace cloth over a turquoise undercloth. Spiral glass plates of turquoise set on repousse tin plates were used for each cover while the centerpiece was a stylized arrangement of fruit and leaves in a low rectangular tin container, guarded by two old baroque angels.

The Mexican colors stressed for their importance in this exhibit include light blue, brilliant red, deep pink, sand, clear deep yellow and bright green. Mexican pottery, Mexican glass, Mexican tin, Mexican straw and raffia things—these are the wares that are going to be our "peasant repertoire" during the coming season.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl's Disdain Turns to Anxious Interest When Man She Snubbed for Years Fails to Come When Called

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Two years ago I met a fellow who loved me very much, but at that time I was in love with someone else. I treated him very shabbily, therefore, and for over a year we went our separate ways. Later I broke with the man I loved and, on the rebound, became attracted to a third man.

The man whom I had treated so badly made one more try, not so long ago But I was rude, and then, for the first time, I felt his hurt. A few days later I telephoned him to invite him out. Feeling awkward, I said that another girl was coming with me. He declined, because of illness, and later, when I chanced to see him, I realized he had been ill.

However, he has never tried to date me since, although he is cordial when we meet. Recently I saw him again and it suddenly occurred to me that not only do I want to be with him, but the thought of his going with other girls hurts. I am puzzled by my feelings, because I still think of the other two men, whom I see once in a while. But I am more and more preoccupied with thoughts of the first man, and find myself very anxious to see him.

I realize that I may have lost his regard—as I deserve. But I would try to make up some way, if I were sure that I really love him and that it is not pity, nor a case of being on the rebound again. I shall appreciate any advice you may give me. Sincerely.

CYNTHIA.

Ego Frustration Stimulates Desire

DEAR CYNTHIA: I imagine you are simply "rebounding" again. Your sudden preoccupation with the once despised admirer reminds me of the homely saying, "When all fruit fails, welcome haws." (A haw, by the way, is a hawthorn berry, which poor country folk garner from roadside and thicket in season.)

You couldn't be in love with the man as yet, since there has been nothing in the protracted acquaintanceship to warrant so specific an investment, on your part. In view of your mood, however, I daresay you could, if given any encouragement, run it into something that seemed pretty important, at least for a while. But even if this came to pass, I suspect its significance would approximate that of an oasis mirage seen by a thirsty traveler in the desert.

I doubt that your fixation is due to pity, as your ruthless rudeness when times were better suggests that you have little compassion to waste on another's painful predicament. And if you were genuinely conscience stricken at having added insult to injury, I believe you would have gone, warmly and involuntarily, to much greater lengths to make amends than are here recorded. In coyly inviting him to meet you and another girl, you were giving him nothing more than a "come-on."

His failure to respond was, of course, a shocking surprise and sharp disappointment. And, as one psychologist remarks, "Very often, ardor is stimulated by the frustrated desire for response, and so becomes motivated by the ego-urge to get one's own way. Such an attitude is, obviously, quite different from love, although it passes under that name."

I suspect that you are now suffering from "frustrated desire for response"—primarily from your preferred beaux, and only secondarily from this chap; and that your current fixation on him is the happenstance result of love-hunger plus rebuff. However, just in case something of lasting significance should develop out of your startled new interest in him, it will be well not to throw yourself at his head (or under his feet) during this empty handed interval. Be cordial, sympathetic and receptive to invitations, if and when you meet him, but don't make any further awkward passes in his direction.

The time to encourage any man is when you have other men to choose from; because only in such circumstances does he construe it as a compliment. If he gets the idea you are stalking him for want of better prey—as seems likely here—he is apt to turn a cold shoulder or even take to his heels.

Picnic Isn't Obnoxious If Planned in Advance

Visions of Ants and Poor Food Unnecessary; Any Kind of Filling Slapped Between Bread Doesn't Make Appealing Sandwich

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor.

MANY PEOPLE—especially men—look upon outdoor eating with a great deal of suspicion. Visions of ants, dried out sandwiches and lukewarm coffee arise when you say, "Let's have a picnic." This should not be the picture at all. With all the lovely wooded spots, inviting seashores and other beauties of nature, no form of entertainment could be more successful and full of pleasant surprises.

If the food is designed with a vestige of care everyone, even the most fastidious, can be put into an amiable frame of mind. There is nothing obnoxious about picnic food, if you plan it as a well-balanced meal and not just a conglomeration of food. Any kind of filling slapped between two pieces of bread does not make up an appealing sandwich. Crushed and crumbled and gooey cakes do not win picnic converts either, and soupy salads do not whet the appetite.

Martha Ellyn

But this is 1940 and food of the old shoe-box type does not need to go to a picnic. One of the first requirements is to plan the menu carefully, and with imagination. If it is a large picnic it is best to have one person do all the planning, so that there will not be a duplication of foods or flavors All items of food should be wrapped separately in waxed paper.

Serve Food Hot or Cold

With all the excellent equipment now available, it is easy to have either hot or cold foods—or both, so that all may be pleased. Everyone cannot be the possessor of fancy picnic hampers, but anyone can find an inexpensive basket or sturdy carton in which to pack the food carefully. Fancy lunch cloths, silver knives and forks, fragile drinking glasses and fine china are not for picnics. There are attractive paper plates, napkins, drinking cups and paper tablecloths to be had at the ten cent store. And such equipment not only saves washing and laundrying but means that it can be disposed of and will not need to be carried home. Nonbreakable dishes, gay colored cutlery, salt and pepper shakers, cups and even matchboxes are included in some picnic ensembles.

Some people do not like cold food. There are at least two ways out of that problem. Food may be cooked at home and packed in a vacuum jug, or maybe cooked on the picnic grounds. There are two schools of thought when it comes to making hot food for picnics. One is the group that wants everything prepared at home and handed to them to eat, the other wants to bring along the "makings," go look for the wood, and cook it themselves. Steaks, hamburgers and other meats always make for a delicious fragrance when cooked in the open. Served with fresh buns, slices of raw onions, spicy pickles and mustard or other condiments, such food is sure to please.

Casserole Stays Hot

Stews, chili and soups are foods that may be carried along in a vacuum jug. A casserole dish brought piping hot from the home oven will stay hot for several hours if well wrapped and packed in papers. On one picnic I had fried chicken served piping hot with corn on the cob. The chicken had been put into the vacuum jug and the corn packed on top. Bread and butter sandwiches were individually wrapped; tomatoes were sliced at the eating time; packages of potato chips were opened, ice cream was unpacked out of dry ice and hot coffee came from a thermos jug.

If more than one knd of sandwich is included, it is well to mark the package so that there will not be a lot of wrapping and unwrapping for the desired kind. Unless there is a goodly supply of drinking water or other beverages it is best to choose moist fillings for sandwiches, and not the thirst building kind. Nippy cheese, fruit nut, chicken and fish salad fillings are all splendid for picnic sandwiches. Apple sauce and chocolate fudge cakes, dessert doughnuts, gingerbread cup cakes and other small cakes are good kinds to include in the menu.

Liver Sausage Makes Appearance In New Society

If you are familiar with liver sausage only in its more conventional forms, you'll enjoy serving it in different ways. It's really very versatile—for instance, it can be sliced and pan-broiled in a little melted butter; it can be baked in one whole piece or it is an ideal base for appetizers.

Pinwheels—Mash liver sausage and blend with mayonnaise or creams to make paste of smooth consistency. Roll out pastry dough in thin sheet and spread with sausage mixture; cut in strips about 6 to 4 inches. Roll up each strip tightly like a jelly roll, starting with one of the narrow sides. Wrap each roll in waxed paper and chill. Just before serving, slice roll crosswise in one-half inch slices, place on cookie sheet, and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 12 minutes, until browned. Serve piping hot.

Stuffed Celery—Add a few chopped stuffed olives to the liver sausage paste and stuff into washed crisp celery stalks.

Picnics Are Such Fun

When the sun and sea and the green outdoors call for a picnic then is the time one will appreciate owning a well-equipped picnic hamper in which to pack food and equipment. The girl in the picture above is also comfortably dressed for an outing with her green and white striped rayon play suit, which is a blouse and shorts in one, topped by the skirt

Blackwell Dies 12 Hours After Shooting Sergeant

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald last night withheld a death certificate in the fatal shooting of Policeman Otho L. Blackwell, 39, of 3017 Central avenue northeast, "pending further investigation."

His decision came after an autopsy was performed at the District Morgue. A burial certificate stating Blackwell's death was caused by a bullet wound in the head, was issued temporarily.

Blackwell died at Casualty Hospital at 4:20 a. m. yesterday, just 12 hours after he shot and killed his superior officer, Sergt. Charles F. Cummins, 43, in the Twelfth Precinct station house.

Dr. MacDonald said he could not determine whether Blackwell committed suicide or shot himself accidentally in a struggle with Lieut. John R. Jeffries, who tackled Blackwell after Cummins was slain.

Blackwell went berserk in the station house at 4 p. m. when he was ready to go off duty. He fired two shots at Cummins, apparently thinking the sergeant responsible for a reprimand.

Cummins, the day before, had reported Blackwell and his partner, A. K. Frank, for being late at a school crossing. Inspector Edward J. Kelly removed the men from scout car duty. After the shooting Wednesday, Frank was suspended and ordered to appear before a police trial board.

The funeral for Cummins will be held at 1 p. m. today at Hysong's funeral home, Thirteenth and N street northwest. Burial will be at Herndon, Va.

Services for Blackwell probably will be next Monday.

Heat Sets Record For 1940; Relief Unlikely Today

Washington had record-breaking heat yesterday, with no relief promised for today.

The temperature zoomed to 92.4 degrees at 3:15 p. m., a new high for 1940. Harry Moore, 34, of 1325 Vermont avenue northwest, collapsed from the heat in a drug store at Fourteenth and K streets northwest. He received first aid treatment at Emergency Hospital.

Previous high temperature for this year was 92.2 degrees on June 4. Yesterday was Washington's hottest day since September 8, 1939, when an even 100 was reached.

Stifling humidity abetted the intense heat, averaging 50 per cent during the afternoon and hovering near the 100-mark during the early morning hours, when temperatures were the lowest. Seventy degrees recorded at 5:10 a. m., was the day's lowest temperature.

"Continued warm" was the disheartening forecast for today.

Four Facing Trials For Murder Plead To Lesser Charges

Four colored men pleaded guilty to lesser charges as their trials for murder were about to start in the District Court yesterday.

Before Justice James M. Proctor, Irving L. Young, 21, pleaded guilty to second degree murder for the fatal stabbing of James E. Blush, a horse trader, in a brawl last January. Richard J. A. Anderson, 26, and John Williams, 23, who were in the brawl, pleaded guilty of manslaughter.

Before Justice F. Dickinson Letts, John Henry DuBose, 45, pleaded guilty to second degree murder for the fatal shooting of Alice Hicks, 47, with whom he quarreled.

DuBose and Young are liable to sentence of 20 years to life in prison. Anderson and Williams face terms of 3 to 10 years in prison.

Hull Condemns Japanese Bombing Of Civilians

Secretary of State Hull reemphasized yesterday in comment on Japanese air attacks on Chungking, China, the United States policy of condemning "ruthless bombings of civilian populations."

The State Department in a statement containing the Secretary's comment said that Chungking yesterday was "intensively and indiscriminately bombed by more than 100 Japanese planes."

In response to inquiries, Secretary Hull said that the United States Government whole-heartedly condemns such practices wherever and whenever they occur."

Patricia McKnew and Catherine Clement Presented to Society at Separate Parties

Many of the Guests Attend Both Events For Debutantes Who Recently Finished Their First Year at Bryn Mawr

THE UNPRECEDENTED June gayety for young people here continued yesterday with two big coming-out parties. The debutantes were Miss Patricia McKnew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McKnew, and Miss Catherine Clement, daughter of Mrs. Donald Bingham. Both girls recently finished their first year at Bryn Mawr.

Many of the guests were invited to both parties, and there was a rush from the McKnew home on Kalorama circle to the Chevy Chase Club, and vice versa. Miss Clement's party was held on the club lawn, with a sweeping vista of golf links in the background.

As the McKnews have only a tiny garden, they used it yesterday only as "another room," and the main part of the reception was inside. The deb and her mother—the latter was herself a Washington debutante—received in the drawing room against a background of flowers sent to Miss McKnew.

The hostess wore a floor-length frock of gray chiffon, with a white organdy ruffle around the neck, and a cluster of pale lavender orchids pinned to her shoulder. Her mother had chosen a sweeping dress of pale blue mousseline de soie, with insets of fine Chantilly lace, a heart shaped neck and puffed sleeves. She carried a bouquet of blue delphinium and pink roses which had been sent her by Col. Berkeley T. Merchant, a close friend of her family.

A huge bowl of white iris and delphinium centered the dining-room table, where iced tea and coffee were served. Pouring for Mrs. McKnew were Mrs. Crosby Boyd, Mrs. Oscar Coolican, Mrs. Laurence Greene, Mrs. Spencer Gordon, Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, Mrs. Joseph I. Weller, Mrs. Theodore M. Gill, Mrs. Frank Harman, Mrs. Berkeley Simmons, Mrs. Sidney Thomas, Mrs. George Longcope, Mrs. Franklin K. Lane, jr., and Mrs. Richard McKnew.

Sisters-in-Law In House Party

The two sisters-in-law of the hostess, Mrs. Samuel H. Greene and Mrs. Slocum Kingsbury, also took a turn at the tea table.

In the group assisting the debutantes were three of her friends who were presented last year: the Misses Nancy Weller, Joan McKenna, and Deborah Kirk. Others were the Misses Mariana Evans, Georgianna Flather, Lucy Calgett, Lucy Marbury, and Agnes Birney.

On hand were three houseguests of Miss McKnew—Frederick R. Recquardt and Charles King, of Baltimore, and Henry Wilmer, of Philadelphia. With the young assistants and beaux, they later adjourned to the Chevy Chase Club for the dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. McKnew for their daughters. The family expects to leave in about two weeks for their summer home at Gibson Island.

Over 1,000 people were invited to the reception given by Capt. and Mrs. Bingham. Receiving with the hostess and daughter was the latter's aunt, Miss Mary Louisa Adams Clement, of Boston, who will give a dance for her niece during the Christmas holidays at the Sulgrave Club.

Debutante Appears in Pink

The receiving line stood against a background of shrubbery near the tennis courts, facing the terrace which is used for dancing in the summer. The pretty debutante wore pale pink net, made on old-fashioned lines, with tight bodice and hooped skirt. Pale pink gardenias trimmed each shoulder, and the skirt was fashioned of frothy ruffles of pink and smoke blue. Miss Clement carried an old-fashioned bouquet of roses and forget-me-nots tied with pink ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Bingham had chosen gray, a lace jacket atop a crepe de chine skirt. A pink straw tocque and purple centered orchids completed her costume. Miss Clement wore a blue lace dress and a pink hat.

There was dancing on the terrace, and long tables centered with spring flowers were set up on the lawn. After the reception, Capt. and Mrs. Bingham gave a dinner for 60 at the club in honor of their daughter, and everybody stayed on to enjoy the semiweekly dance.

Notables Among Those Assisting

Assisting Mrs. Bingham at the tea were Mrs. Ralston Holmes, Mrs. Adolphus Staton, Mrs. Ridley McLean, Mrs. J. L. Houghteling, Mrs. Albert Niblack, Mrs. Arthur B. McDaniel, Mrs. W. D. Puleston, Mrs. Charles Carroll Morgan, Mrs. W. W Galbraith, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. Charles Wilson, Mrs. Chester Wells, Mrs. Paul Bastedo, Mrs. Robert L. Walsh, Mrs. Carlton Holdrege, Mrs. Laurence V. Benet, Mrs. Ord Preston, Mrs. John W. Davidge, Mrs. William J. Flather, Mrs. Charles M. Oman, Mrs. Griffith de Mauduit, Mrs. Bianca Allen, Mrs. Bingham's older daughter; Mrs. Alexander Lawton, of Savannah, Ga.; Mrs. Carroll Van Ness, of the Green Spring Valley, near Baltimore, and Mrs. Henry Flood.

Mrs. Wilson Brown, wife of the superintendent of the United States Naval Academy, also assisted, and many others from Annapolis came over for the party.

Several There From Out of Town

Miss Clement's young assistants included several out-of-towners: Miss Betty Nicrosi, of Montgomery, Ala., a Bryn Mawr classmate; Miss Sarah Welsh, of Annapolis; Miss Betty Burgess, of Charlottesville, Va.; Miss Louise Perry, of Rancho Santa Ynez, Santa Barbara, Calif., and Miss Ruth Robb, of Boston, who is visiting Miss Sita Finkenstaedt.

The local girls who assisted included the Misses Rosemary and Eugenia Merrill, Laura Blair, Mary Lord Andrews, Shelia Broderick, Douglas Woods, Anne Wotherspoon, Peggy Tuckerman, Suzanne Slingluff, Sita Finkenstaedt, Louise Stillwell, Peggy Houghteling, Joanna Huntington, Maisie Howard, Margot Mink, Molly Thompson, and Mary Wilson.

Date Selected For Wedding

The marriage of Miss Beridge Ruth Leigh-Mallory to David Allan Robertson, jr., will take place on Tuesday, June 18, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Glenn Allan Millikan, in Media, Pa.

Mr. Robertson is the son of the president of Goucher College, Baltimore, and Mrs. David Allan Robertson. Mrs. Millikan will be matron of honor at the ceremony at which Dr. Samuel Stockton Miles, of Baltimore, will be best man.

The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Milton Stauffer, minister of the Second Reformed Church of New Brunswick, N. J. Dr. Stauffer is a cousin of Mrs. Robertson.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. William Arnold-Foster, of Eagle's Nest, Zennor, Cornwall, and the late George Herbert Leigh-Mallory, of Charterhouse and Cambridge.

The Douglases Leave Tomorrow For New England

Justice and Mrs. William O. Douglas and their son and daughter, Mildred and Bill, will leave early tomorrow for Mystic, Conn., where they will spend the remainder of this month. Early in July they will go to Texas, where Justice Douglas will speak before a meeting of the Bar Association in Fort Worth on July 5.

Later, Justice Douglas and his family will go on to La Grande, Oreg., to spend several weeks with Mrs. Douglas' relatives, before returning to Washington in September.

Miss Parrish's Troth Announced

The engagement of Miss Iris Parrish to Clair L. Stout is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Parley Parrish.

The wedding will take place Saturday, June 29, at 4 in the afternoon in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Washington.

Miss Parrish will be attended by Mrs. Carl Hintz as matron of honor. Reed A. Stout, of Pittsburgh, brother of Mr. Stout, will be best man.

After a wedding trip the couple will return to Washington to make their home.

Both young people are graduates of the University of Utah and have received advanced degrees from George Washington University. Mr. Stout is a practicing attorney with a well known Washington firm and a member of the Delta Theta Phi. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Stout, of Salt Lake City.

Mrs. Achilles Arrives in N. Y. On Refugee Liner

"Was Mrs. Theodore Achilles on the liner President Roosevelt?" friends of the wife of one of our secretaries at the United States Embassy in London have been asking. The answer is, she was, with her three young children, and is now at the Plaza Hotel in New York.

According to news received here, Mrs. Achilles will leave shortly for California, accompanied by Paul Achilles, her brother-in-law, and his wife. She will spend the summer there with her mother-in-law.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

STORIES, SOME GRIM, some amusing, are told by the wives and children who are being evacuated from the war zone. Mrs. James E. Brown, who has come to Washington to visit her parents, Admiral and Mrs. Alfred Johnson, arrived home on the Roosevelt along with several other Embassy wives from London. She says that these ladies made the most of any funny incident, and laughed at the hardships of a crowded refugee ship, in order to keep up their spirits.

• • • •

ONE YOUNG MATRON, well-known for her chic and soigne appearance, finally gave in to the lack of space, lack of luggage, and surplus of babies—including her own—and let herself relax. She appeared on deck one morning in a rumpled frock, stockings full of runs and holes, and a pair of old tennis shoes. She placed her youngest, a baby of a few months, in his pram and began pushing the vehicle determinedly around the deck, weaving in and out between deck chairs, playing children, and used cocktail glasses.

• • • •

A LITTLE GIRL ran up to the pram and asked, with the small girl's proverbial interest in babies, "Whose is that cute baby?"

The dishevelled matron gave her a withering look and replied, fiercely, "Unfortunately, he's mine," and went right on with her pram-pushing.

Mrs. Brown says that every parent on the boat felt the same way at some time or other during the trip, and that the little speech practically became a motto.

Other ladies who arrived on the Roosevelt and whose husbands are at the United States Embassy in London are Mrs. Theodore Achilles, Mrs. Vinton Chapin and Mrs. Walton Butterworth. The latter has gone to Boston to visit her mother.

Mrs. "Mike" Scanlon, having no children, elected to remain in London with Col. Scanlon, as did the wives of several naval and military attaches.

MRS. C. BURKE ELBRICK, second daughter of Admiral and Mrs. Johnson, has left Angiers in France, where her husband is on duty with United States Ambassador Biddle at the headquarters of the Polish government, and gone to Portugal. With her is Mrs. Douglas MacArthur, whose husband is in France with the American Embassy. Mrs. Elbrick and Mrs. MacArthur are staying at Estoril, a lovely spot just outside Lisbon, and hope to remain there indefinitely. Mrs. MacArthur is a daughter of Senator and Mrs. Alben Barkley.

• • • •

MAJOR AND MRS. Horace Smith gave an informal dinner recently in honor of Mrs. Hans Gorrisen, the former Betty Baldwin, of Washington. Mrs. Gorrisen, who now makes her home in New York, is a niece of Miss Katherine Judge, of Washington, and sister of Richard Baldwin, the pianist. Rick Baldwin, it will be remembered, had a great success here this winter as soloist with Dr. Kurt Hetzel's Civic Orchestra.

After dinner Major and Mrs. Smith took their guests for a trip down the Potomac on Maj. Smith's boat. Among the lucky ones enjoying this cool interlude were Mrs. Eppes Moore, Mrs. Emmons Smith, George T. Summerlin, Rafal Lepkowski and Alfons Landa.

Mrs. Shaw Parker has returned from a trip to Mexico and is at the Shoreham for a few days.

I hear that Col. Raymond Lee has been sent back to the United States Embassy in London as Military Attache to replace Gen. Sherman Miles. Col. Lee had only recently completed a tour of duty at the Embassy in London.

Ruth Patton Selects July 6 For Wedding to Lieut. Totten

Wearing her mother's wedding gown, Miss Ruth Ellen Patton will become the bride of Lieut. James W. Totten, jr., on July 6 in South Hamilton, Mass. The daughter of the Commandant of Fort Myer and Mrs. George S. Patton, jr., has selected her attendants, but with Army orders such as there are—i. e., in a state of flux—the usher question is still unsettled.

The evening preceding the wedding Mrs. Keith Merrill will entertain at a supper party at her home Avalon, in Hamilton, Mass., for her niece, the wedding attendants and out-of-town guests.

Miss Patton will have her sister, Mrs. John K. Waters, as matron of honor. The remaining attendants will be Miss Anne Ayer, of Beverly Farms, Mass.; Miss Jean Gordon, of South Lincoln, Mass., and the Misses Rosemary and Eugenia Merrill, the latter having recently been presented to Capital society by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill.

Also among the attendants will be Miss Patricia Henry, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Guy V. Henry, of Kenwood, Md., and Miss Anne Magruder, of Fort Knox, Ky., daughter of Col. and Mrs. Marshall Magruder. Miss Hilda Neil Ayer, children of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ayer, of South Hamilton, Mass., will be in the wedding party.

The marriage will take place at 4 o'clock in St. John's Church—where her mother and sister were married—and a large reception will follow at Green Meadows, the home of Col. and Mrs. Patton in South Hamilton, Mass.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga, has had as his guest for several days Dr. Jose Igancio de la Camara, Count of Castillo. The latter left last evening.

The Director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and Mrs. Carroll B. Merriam entertained a company of their friends at a dinner dance last night on the Shoreham Terrace. On the beautifully appointed table was a modernistic centerpiece made from interlocking low white vases filled with pink roses and baby's breath.

At another table the president of the Export-Import Bank and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson entertained a group of friends.

Gen. John L. Hines, U. S. A., retired, and Mrs. Hines, who are at their summer place at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., were honor guests at a luncheon given recently at the Greenbrier Golf and Tennis Club by Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hines.

Mrs. James E. Brown, wife of the Second Secretary of the United States Embassy in London, arrived several days ago from London aboard the S. S. President Roosevelt. She will be with her parents, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Alfred W. Johnson, at their home on R street.

Miss Jackie Martin will issue invitations soon to an outdoor party next Thursday evening at her home. Guests of honor will be Mrs. J. Fred Essary and Mrs. Esther Tufty. The hostess promises "an open fireplace, steaks and a keg of beer."

Mrs. Ellwood Massman Myers, of Glen Elly, Ill., and Miss Margaret Griffith, of Vincennes, Ind., are visiting Mrs. A. S. Pastnyck at her home here.

Mrs. Roosevelt Leaves Monday For Hyde Park

First Lady Expects To Do Some Writing, Won't Go to Convention

Mrs. Roosevelt plans to "go off the record," when she leaves the White House at midnight Monday for Hyde Park. At her final press conference of the regular season yesterday, she said that she would spend most of the summer at Hyde Park; that she expected to do some writing; that she would not attend the Democratic National Convention, and that she had no plans for any long trips until autumn.

Trimly turned out in a summery figured frock, the First Lady said that the dress was a gift from a California cotton manufacturer and that the design was one of a number borrowed from South America. With it she wore an intricate bead necklace, in which each knot has a special significance.

Today Mrs. Roosevelt will receive a student group from Massachusetts and this afternoon at 4 o'clock she will accompany the President on a brief visit to the 4-H Clubs encampment. This evening, she will talk on "Youth evening she will talk on "Youth Council at the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Roosevelt will be out of town on Saturday and Sunday, returning late Sunday night. On Monday, she will "listen in" on the National Youth Administration Conference and then will be off to Hyde Park, where she hopes "to be more or less permanently until early in September."

Ann Smeallie Is Engaged

Rear Admiral and Mrs. John Morris Smeallie have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ann Smeallie, to Lieut. Jesse Beverly Burks, U. S. N. The wedding will take place in August.

Rear Admiral Smeallie is at present commandant of the Sixteenth Naval District, with headquarters at the Navy Yard, Cavite, Philippine Islands. Miss Smeallie accompanied her parents to the Philippines from the United States about a year ago.

Lieut. Burks is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Burks, of Lothan, Ala. He is attached to Patrol Squadron 21, now on neutrality duty in the Philippines. Lieut. Burks was the pilot of one of the patrol planes which flew to the Philippines from Honolulu last September in the first mass flight across the Pacific to the Far East.

Jane B. Miller, Ensign McCormack To Marry in Fall

Mrs. Marie Umbach Miller, of Washington and Miami Beach, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Jane Beverley Miller, to Ensign Vincent Francis McCormack, U. S. N., son of J. J. McCormack, of New York.

Ensign McCormack is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy, class of 1937. He was formerly stationed in Pensacola, Fla., and upon completion of his flight training there has been assigned to the aircraft carrier Ranger, based at Norfolk, Va.

Miss Miller is an alumnus of Mount Vernon Seminary, Washington, and of Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla. She was presented to society with her cousin, Miss Gwendolyn Spratt, in Jacksonville, in 1939.

The wedding will take place in September in Pensacola, where Miss Miller frequently visits her brother-in-law and sister, Capt. and Mrs. Frederick Ceres.

Cupples to Make Their Home Here

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Regis Cupples, who were married on Saturday, June 8, will make their home here at The Homestead on Jefferson street, after a honeymoon at Lake George, N. Y.

The bride is the former Miss Elisabeth Agnes Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lawson Edwards, of Washington. The couple were married at St. Gabriel's Church, and the ceremony was followed by a breakfast for the bridal party at the Edwards home.

Miss Elaine Edwards was her sister's only attendant. Vernon Cupples, of Altoona, Pa., was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Martin Cupples, another brother, and Charles O'Connor.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of blue chiffon and a tulle hat with a face veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Edwards was in peach chiffon with matching accessories and carried talisman roses and blue delphiniums.

Vandenbergs Mark Anniversary Tonight by Party

In celebration of their twenty-second wedding anniversary, Senator and Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg will entertain at a dniner tonight at the 1925 F Street Club.

Guests will include another couple celebrating their wedding—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Krock, who were married a year ago today.

The company will wear sports clothes, as most of them plan to drive out to the Have Fun Carival at Wolf Trap Farm later in the evening.

Paul Hutchinses Entertain Tonight

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hutchins, of Woodside Forest, Md., will entertain at dinner tonight at the Blue Willow Inn for Mr. and Mrs. Herman J. Gurath and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pirner, of Appleton, Wis., who motored here to attend the wedding of the Guraths' son, Howard, to Miss Josephine Day, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hutchins.

The wedding will take place tomorrow at the Woodside Methodist Church at 4 o'clock.

About the Town

with DUDLEY HARMON

MRS. J. BORDEN HARRIMAN, our 70-year-old Minister to Norway, has written a letter to a friend here which is so interesting that I pass parts of it on to you. Mrs. Harriman wrote from a Stockholm hotel late in April, but the missive just arrived.

"This is not like any war that I have ever known or read about. There is no "front," no communications between any part of Norway with any other.

"I meet members of the government who beseech me to try to find out where their families are, women rushing out of Norway ask me if I have heard or seen anything of their husbands who are fighting, and so on endlessly—Oslo has been completely out of touch with the rest of the country since the first day. No radio, no papers, no mails.

"I am here to evacuate our legation and consulate women and children—15 in all—to the United States. Two, having only British passports, are bottled up here for heaven knows how long!

Once we nearly ran head on into seven armored cars of Nazis, but were warned just in time by some country boys. That was before the military aide had joined us." (Note: the late Capt. John Losey, killed by a bomb splinter when rescuing American refugees).

"He was one of the nicest people I have ever known, and in 10 days of motoring for hours, and talking over plans, and eating every meal, with anyone, there is a good chance to weigh them and learn their worth. When Losey was killed I felt as if I had lost an old and tried friend. It seemed so cruel when he was so young and gave promise of such a fine career.

"We had argued for hours as to whether I should go with him to try to get the wives and children out, and at the last moment he won by saying that if I were killed it would be such an embarrassment to my country . . . We brought his body here, and yesterday had a sweet service for him in the little chapel, which was filled with lovely flowers and diplomats and military attaches of all kinds.

"My Ford is on the other side of the frontier where it stuck in a snowdrift and had to be left . . . The pathos of those (Norwegian) people! It broke my heart to see those innocent looking country boys, some in uniforms with no rifles, others just in their working clothes and with rifles standing back of the hastily built stockades which the highly mechanized Nazi army could run through in a jiffy. There is so much to tell that it is too complicated to write. Certainly there was no lack of patriotism among the hundreds of people I saw everywhere.

"There is only one case, and it has been verified: Not many miles northwest of Oslo there is a road cut through a mountain and at the far end it takes a sudden turn to the right to avoid a very deep ravine. The Germans ordered some young men to drive them in trucks to a certain point beyond this sharp turn. There were 150 Germans and they and the Norwegian boys were never seen again. These boys had told their parents that if they were forced to drive these soldiers they would not turn the corner but would drive full speed into the ravine.

"ALL were killed. Some courage that took. There are lots of other stories, but this is the most dramatic.

"You can't dream how lovely the country people are. We stayed at numbers of farms and no matter how crowded the house was or how poor the people, they did their best for us and always joyously . . . Devotedly, DAISY."

Mrs. Hitt Gives Party Today

Attractive Miss Zeva Fish, debutante daughter of Representative and Mrs. Hamilton Fish, will be guest of honor at a cocktail party to be given this afternoon by Mrs. Reynolds Hitt. The company will include about 40 members of the younger set.

Mrs. Hitt will entertain the gathering in the lovely garden in back of her home if the weather is fair. This residence is at 2244 S street, between the Herbert Hoover and the Adolph Caspar Miller homes, and is an excellent example of early Federal architecture.

The many Washington friends of Mrs. Hitt's daughter, Mme. de Herthelendy, will be interested to hear that she is aboard the refugee liner Washington. Her husband, a Hungarian diplomat, has been stationed in Paris. Mme. de Herthelendy is accompanied here by her two little children.

Miss Fish and Miss Beth Kean, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Robert Winthrop Kean, will leave June 24 to spend the summer on a ranch in Wyoming. Miss Fish made her debut several weeks ago at a large reception at the Larz Anderson home.

Lighter Complexion

by using Mercolized Wax Cream

A simple way to remove the dull, drabness of your complexion and reveal the lighter, lovelier skin tones. Just use Mercolized Wax Cream as directed. Its active ingredients help to flake off the older, darkened surface skin in minute, almost invisible particles, revealing a fairer, fresher, underskin.

Saxolite Astringent tightens loose surface skin. Gives a delightful sense of freshness. Reduces excess surface oil. Dissolve Saxolite Astringent in one-half pint witch hazel and use daily.

Phelactine Depilatory removes unsightly facial hair quickly. Pleasant and easy to use. —Adv.

Dies Describes U. S. Fifth Column At Democratic Women's Council

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor.

Have we a fifth column in the United States?

The answer is "Yes," Representative Martin Dies, chairman of the Committee Investigating un-American Activies, told the Democratic Women's National Council last night at the Willard Hotel.

Describing "Trojan horse" organizations in this country, such as have resulted in the fall of democracies of Europe, Representative Dies declared, "It is the task of American citizens to inform themselves and then to inform their fellowmen—to be crusaders for Americanism with the same zeal I have seen on the faces of followers of Stalin and of Hitler. To those planning our destruction, we should serve notice we are determined to defend our democracy with our ballot, our strength, our resources and, if necessary, with our lives."

He declared the Communist Party in this country controlled and directed from Moscow, was a foreign conspiracy in the disguise of a legitimate political party. It is also behind countless other groups, with high-sounding names and ostensibly worthy purposes, designed to mislead and influence unsuspecting people, he said.

Communism and Nazism have cooperated here, as in other countries, and their methods of espionage and sabotage have been identical—methods as new as the parachute and so diabolical the democratic countries have been unable to comprehend them, he charged.

Frankly Admit Admiring iHtler

He said that members of the German-American Alliance, which numbers 300,000, who testified before the Dies Committee "frankly admitted admiration for Hitler and his program—and did so with a spirit of pride and exultation. I knew that here were people in the United States who had the rights of citizenship but no conception of the responsibilities these implied in a democracy."

Declaring he could multiply the instances he cited many times, Representative Dies added "I could tell you of Italian schools where there are textbooks from which the students are taught to glorify Mussolini and his accomplishments and to hold this country in derision by comparison."

He pointed out that by employing disloyalty and treason within, "the Trojan horse" strategy has enable a minority to overthrow every country which has been overcome in Europe.

Our First Task To Defend U. S.

"My sympathy and whole heart are with the democratic countries of Europe in their struggle, but our first task must be to prepare to defend ourselves from within. Before we can combat dictatorships, we must be united in the kind of devotion to the ideals of democracy that Nazis and Fascists have to the doctrines of Hitler and Mussolini.

"Everyone here, poor or rich, is infinitely better off than under totalitarian machinery" he said. "The moment the democratic process is destroyed, there is no hope either for the poor or the unemployed. Hitler abolished unemployment by enslaving the people."

Asserting that eternal vigilance is the priceof a free government, Representative Dies declared "a free people must not only demand rights, but must cheerfully accept the responsibility of preserving them. If we are ever destroyed, it will be suicide, the loss of appreciation of liberty, undermining from within, like termites eating away pillars and stays.

"We have placed emphasis on rights, while the Nazis and Communists have been stressing duties and responsibilities. The time has come when democracy must teach that for every right there is a corresponding responsibility."

Mrs. Floyd L. Cooke, president of the council, presided at the meeting which was attended by a crowd that packed the Bamboo Room, and Mrs. Walter H. Maloney, program chairman, led community singing following the address. The audience stood and applauded as Representative Dies concluded.

Randolph-Macon Students Will Be Guests at Supper

Ruth Clarkson Tenney, the only Washington member of this year's graduating class at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, other Washington students and their parents will be guests at a buffet supper given by the Washington Chapter of the Alumnae at the home of Miss Marion Gaguder, 3727 Tenth street, north, Arlington, on Sunday afternoon. Dr. James Fredrick Peake, professor of political science at Randolph-Macon, will attend.

Nine of the 17 Washington students at the college in Lynchburg, Va., achieved distinction in various fields of college activities this year.

Evelyn Elizabeth Talley, who has been regularly on the dean's list, ranked honorable mention for junior scholarship. Betty Flather was elected president of West Hall. Ethel Huffman is the new editor in chief of the college annual, "Helianthus," and Barbara Richards and Rossman Taylor are joke and fashion editors, respectively, of The Old Maid.

Patricia Anne Taylor was the successful contender for the sorority pledge activities cup given by Kappa Alpha Theta, and Mary Byrd Shearer was elected recording secretary of this sorority. Hildegard von Boetticher is the new transportation chairman of the hiking club, and Mary Dyer achieved membership in the secret and exclusive Coffee Club.

Silver Spring Red Cross Unit Plans Benefit

Proceeds of Bridge Luncheon Tuesday To Go for War Relief

A large benefit bridge luncheon is being planned by the Silver Spring branch of the Montgomery County Chapter of the American Red Cross, all proceeds to go for war relief. The affair, under the general chairmanship of Mrs. James Wilson, will be given at the Manor Country Club Tuesday afternoon, June 25.

A feature of the occasion will be an auction, at 4 o'clock of gifts from Allied embassies and legations, the proceeds going to the country from which each article has come.

Among the things already given for the auction are Belgian laces, five handsomely bound histories of Denmark, French champagne and English china and handwork. A painting from Finland also will be sold. There will be other articles of many kinds, and elaborate plans are being made for the auction.

Many Washington women as well as those of Montgomery County are expected to be among the guests at the benefit. Mrs. Wilson is being assisted in arrangements by Mrs. Joseph B. Matre, chairman of the Silver Spring branch, and Mrs. Harry T. Whitlock. Mrs. Wilson, who is vice chairman of the branch, is also chairman of its war relief campaign.

The Martha MacLear Poetry Group of the Washington branch of the American Association of University Women, the first local A. A. U. W. group to be formed for relief work, had its initial meeting yesterday morning with Miss Violet McDougal chairman. Members did knitting and sewing from 11 to 3:30, with an intermission for luncheon, during which poems were read.

Those at the first meeting were: Miss McDougal, Mrs. G. R. Wilhelm, Mrs. Parker Trask, Mrs. Horace Torbert, Mrs. E. J. Bunker, Mrs. Ira Clarke, Miss Louise Newell, Mrs. Frank Edgington, Mrs. Caldwell, Mrs. S. L. Danielson, Mrs. Warner MacKinney, Mrs. Albert Boles, Mrs. Wood Gray, Miss Ellen Vinton, Mrs. Thomas Heitz, Mrs. D. A. McDougal.

Community Center Meeting Today

Representatives of all Jewish women's groups in the city will meet at 10:30 this morning at the Jewish Community Center to make plans for a benefit to be given for the Red Cross war relief fund.

Among the organizations to be represented will be the District of Columbia section of the National Council of Jewish Women, the Women's Auxiliary to B'nai B'rith, Hadassah, the Washington branch of the JCRS, the Sisterhoods of the Eighth Street and Sixth Street temples.

Mrs. Emanuel Haas and Mrs. Lester J. Pollock are in charge of the meeting.

D. A. R. to Form Red Cross Unit

Members of the D. C. Daughters of the American Revolution will meet at the Red Cross Chapter House next Thursday, at 9:30 a. m., for the purpose of forming a Red Cross unit.

The chairman of the unit, Mrs. George W. McIver, will be in charge of the work. All work done will be reported through the State chairman to the national chairman, Mrs. B. H. Geagley, of Lansing, Mich.

District D. A. R. Holds Luncheon Tomorrow

The annual luncheon of Potomac Chapter, D. A. R., will be held tomorrow at the Columbia Country Club. Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, vice president general, and Mrs. Harry C. Oberholser, state regent of the District, will be the guests of honor.

The District of Columbia Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will hold a card party and dinner at the Chapter House, 1732 Massachusetts avenue northwest, on Tuesday afternoon and evening.

D. C. Women's Group to Meet All Summer

Southern Women's Council Will Study Home Defense Plans

One of the groups that will continue its meetings throughout the summer is the Council of Southern Women which has fortnightly luncheons at the Woman's National Democratic Club.

The women have been addressed throughout the season by representatives of various Government agencies. The program now will be pointed toward study of home defense plans.

This week, C. M. Granger, of the United States Forestry Service, addressed them at their luncheon Wednesday on the forest situation in the South.

The territory, including Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Arkansas and all States south and as far west as western Texas, have 60 per cent of the total forest land in the country, he said, and 44 per cent of that from which timber can be harvested. The bulk of it has been cut over and, due to fires and mistreatment of the land, the forest area is only 25 to 50 per cent productive. By practicing scientific forestry its productivity could be doubled in three decades, he said.

Timber growing can partially replace cotton in the South if properly handled, Mr. Granger told the Southern women. One pulp mill provides as much employment as 100,000 acres of cotton. Since 1936 17 new pulp mills have been established, but this has caused some apprehension of overcutting.

Mr. Granger advocated, in line with the recommendations of the joint Congressional committee appointed two years ago to investigate the situation, more Federal financial cooperation with owners to prevent destruction by fires and insects and also authority to invoke regulations by the States with financial help from the Government. Extension of Federal and State public forest holdings also is needed to bring depleted forest lands back to productivity, he said.

Bethesda Club Plans Dances

The Woman's Club of Bethesda at its final business meeting for the season, planned two summer activities.

No regular daytime meetings will be held except those of the social service section Red Cross sewing unit at the club house on Old Georgetown road, and Sonoma road, every Monday at 10 a. m. The Red Cross sewing is conducted under the leadership of Mrs. Frank Preston Farley. There is a large group already sewing, but due to the great demand for clothing and hospital garments, Mrs. Farley has asked for more volunteers. Anyone is welcome. The group has already made a great many garments for the local chapter, but desires to enlarge its quota during the summer.

The other activity for the vacation months is of a lighter nature. A group of weekly dances sponsored by the club will be held at the club house every Friday night from 9 to midnight. These dances are being given for the young people in and around Bethesda. A good orchestra has been provided and young Bethesdans can be assured of good music and a cool place to dance weekly. Cold drinks will be sold by a committee each week. The first dance is to be given June 21. The first committee working under Mrs. Arthur Hilland, general chairman, includes Mrs. E. W. Willis, Mrs. G. E. Pariseau and Mrs. Frank P. Farley. The committee changes weekly.

P. E. O. to Meet

The members of Chapter C, P. E. O., of which Mrs. Mary Carroll Greathouse is president, have been invited to a picnic at the summer home of Mrs. Irving O. Ball, Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., Saturday, June 22.

District Women of the Moose Plan Chapter Program Tonight

Distinguished Guests to Hear of Work For Dependent Children of I. O. O. F. Members Being Done at Mooseheart, Ill.

The Mooseheart committee of Columbia Chapter, Women of the Moose, will have its chapter night program this evening, at the Moose Hall, 1414 I street northwest, at 9 o'clock. The chapter's Mooseheart chairman, Mary E. Ward, has planned the program on child welfare, and it will be open to the public.

Each June, the Mooseheart committee of the local chapter sponsors this special program in accordance with the 1927 recommendations for chapter development by Miss Katherine Smith, grand recorder of the Women of the Moose, who resides in Washington.

Mooseheart, Ill., the famous "child city" for dependent children of deceased members of the Loyal Order of Moose, was founded in 1913 by Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania.

The educational program at Mooseheart takes full account of the needs and capacities of the individual child and fits the instruction accordingly. Both academic and vocational guidance are given, as well as instruction in 25 trades, including agriculture. The Women of the Moose take pride in the fact that not a single boy or girl graduate from Mooseheart has ever been convicted of a felony.

Among the distinguished guests invited to attend tonight's meeting are Senator Davis, director general, Loyal Order of Moose; William A. Pittenger, supreme councilman; John C. Meikle, Mooseheart governor and formerly a student at Mooseheart, and Miss Alice Farris, also a graduate of Mooseheart, both of whom are now living in the city and are associated with the national office of the Loyal Order of Moose and the Women of the Moose; Gov. Howard R. Clark, of Columbia Lodge 126, and Mrs. Mary B. McMillin, department president of the American Legion Auxiliary.

A short closed business meeting, starting at 8 p. m., will elect officers for 1940-41.

To Honor Teacher

Miss Eugene Flattery, fifth grade teacher and music instructor at Wheatley School, will be presented with a P. T. A. emblem brooch today by the Wheatley Parent-Teacher Association in recognition of her outstanding work and cooperation with the organization. The presentation will be made in assembly by Mrs. J. C. Lunson, president of the association, and Miss Florence C. Mortimer, the school principal, will preside.

William Sampselle Wins Scholarship

William De Vries Sampselle, a member of this year's graduating class at McKinley High School, has been awarded the Florence P. Spofford Memorial Scholarship, given each June, to a high school graduate of the District schools, for meritorious scholarship. This award is given by the Young People's Group of Washington Society for the Hard of Hearing, and Sampselle is the first winner.

His home is in Mount Rainier, Md. The $100 award will be applied toward tuition at the University of Maryland, which he will enter this fall, his goal being the ministry.

The scholarship was named for Florence P. Spofford, first president of Washington Society for the Hard of Hearing, and well-known Washingtonian social worker. Funds for the scholarship were raised by the young people by entertainments and by donations. Active in promoting the enterprise from its start was the chairman of the awards committee, Paul Pernecky, jr.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

MRS. LESLIE CLARK STEVENS, a member of the Speakers' Bureau, of the Red Cross, told an interesting story the other day when she was addressing the board of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Describing the many services of the organization, both to the military and the civilian population in time of war, she mentioned one souvenir of the last war which stands in the Red Cross headquarters, a token of appreciation of the canteen service. It is—of all things—an ebony and gold piano.

It was taken from a French home by German soldiers who, being fond of music, carried it along to their dugout. This contingent of Germans was captured by American troops of the Twenty-eighth Division, piano and all. The Yankees also liked music, so they installed the piano in their dugout and carried it with them when they started for home, giving it a ride on the cowcatcher of the troop train. They still had it when they reached the embarkation point where they were all served coffee and doughnuts at the Red Cross canteen in the brief 30 minutes they remained there. Thrilled by this reminder of home, they left their piano at the canteen, and from there it eventually was brought to the national headquarters here.

AS TIMES CHANGE—Announcement that Representative Martin Dies would speak last night before the Democratic Woman's National Council, telling of the committee investigating un-American activities, recalled to me the time he addressed the Committee on National Defense Through Patriotic Education of the District D. A. R.

It was more than a year ago under the chairmanship of Mrs. Frank M. Towner. At that time, only the D. A. R. and a few other patriotic organizations were interested in hearing what Representative Dies had to tell. He and his committee were being subject to ridicule for their disclosures from the "it can't happen here" group. He mentioned in his D. A. R. talk, the campaign of ridicule which was being carried on and labeled it as one of the weapons of the subversive elements.

But, just to show how the D. A. R. stood then (and it still stands that way), there was a dramatic moment when Representative Dies left the room, hurrying back to a hearing—all of the D. A. R. members in the crowded room at the Mayflower Hotel, stood in tribute to him.

BENEFIT FOR FRANCE—The Urgent Relief for France has been lent "His Lordship's Kindness" near Clinton, Md. (just off Route No. 5), by the present owners, Lieut. and Mrs. Dunham, who are giving a box supper party Monday, after 4 o'clock.

All of the members of committees and the sponsors of the Urgent Relief for France are inviting friends to take a picnic supper and see this charming old house and enjoy an evening in the country.

A group of young girls has offered to help and coffee, beer, all sorts of soft drinks, and cigarettes will be on sale and proceeds from these and the entrance fees, will go to help the Urgent Relief for France. It is sending chocolate, powered milk, sugar, and all sorts of food stuffs so greatly needed by the millions of refugees now in France.

The work rooms at 1536 Connecticut avenue, corner of Q street, will remain open all summer, Mondays, through Fridays. Volunteers may join the sewing and knitting groups or obtain supplies to take home if they prefer.

British Renew Bombing Raids In 3 Sectors

R. A. F. Attacks Enemy Centers in Norway, France and Africa

By the Associated Press

London, June 13.—For the third day of unrelenting air attacks British fliers dived through antiaircraft fire today and came back to their bases with accounts of smashed enemy hangars, ships set afire and troop and supply centers blasted in Norway, France and Africa.

Not a single raiding plane was reported lost—but at home one ship plunged in flames, apparently after hitting a balloon cable, and another drew the fire of its own land batteries for a few minutes until it could be identified.

In Norway:

Bombers who groped through mist and fog bombed German shipping in Bergen Harbor by the dull red glare of the fire's they started along the water front. A fort, an antiaircraft battery and ships in the harbor were reported hit. A German airdrome at Vernes also was bombed, wrecking runways and hangars. German ground crews who rushed from their quarters were machine-gunned by the diving planes.

In the North Sea:

Planes "blind bombing" through fog, attacked two German destroyers, but could not see whether they were hit.

In France:

British navy flyers claimed their bombs blew up a German motor speedboat and damaged other ships and ammunition barges in the German-held port of Boulogne.

In Africa:

Operating from bases in Egypt, the West Coast province of Kenya, and perhaps other fields, British bombers continued raids on Italian ships, airdromes, and land supply and troop centers in Libya on the Mediterranean, Italian-conquered Abyssinia, and Eritrea along the Red Sea.

Blenheim bombers were credited with direct hits on airdromes, ports and munitions dumps in Eritrea, and at Diredawa, Abyssinia, Macaca, near Assab, across the lower end of the Red Sea from the British protectorate of Aden, and objectives at the towns of Asmara and Guara were attacked.

Ports and Libya also were bombed a second time. Meanwhile flyers from Egypt and British South Africa claimed they scored heavy blows in their raids yesterday on troop and supply bases in Abyssinia.

Strike Threatened, Arlington Police Guard Brick Yards

Arlington County, Va., police said last night they would patrol all brick plants in the county to guard against violence in a threatened strike scheduled for 7 a. m.

E. E. Downham, secretary of West Bros. Brick Co., whose teamsters struck a year ago, said he had heard strike rumors and that negotiations had been under way with employes. Officials of Chauffeurs and Truck Drivers Local No. 639 could not be reached. John K. Keane, attorney who represented members of the union last year, said he knew of no strike call for today.

In last year's strike several trucks owned by the West company were burned. Several arrests were made by Washington police and the company's Arlington plant was patrolled by Virginia State troopers.

Excavation Begun For Health Center In Arlington

Excavation of the site of the new Alexandria Community Health Center Building has been started, and actual construction work will probably get under way within ten days, Howard C. Richards, chairman of the building committee, said yesterday. The $12,000 clinic is expected to be ready for occupancy about August 1.

Funds have been made available through a $5,000 contribution from an anonymous donor, a $3,000 city council appropriation and a campaign now under way by the health center finance committee, under direction of John W. Ayers.

The drive has already netted more than $2,000 and is being intensified in an effort to obtain the balance before the building is ready for occupancy.

Dr. Higbie Quits Wilson College Post

President Gives Ill Health as Reason, Asks Teaching Job

Dr. Edgar C. Higbie, president of Wilson Teachers College, said last night he has resigned as head of the school and has requested a teaching position at the institution next year on an assistant professorial basis.

Dr. Higbie said he has been in ill health and felt that continuance of administrative duties was too great a strain. One of the most important posts in the public schools system, the presidency of Wilson Teachers College ranks in importance with that of first assistant superintendent of schools.

An effort will be made to fill the vacancy created by Dr. Higbie's resignation from within the personnel of the college, Board of Education officials stated. Applications for a successor wil be received up to June 25.

Dr. Higbie came to the college in 1931 from the Eastern State Teachers College of South Dakota.

Cleveland Players Demand Vitt's Dismissal

The Washington Post Sports

*X WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, JUNE 14, 1940 29

Mass Protest To Bradley Unparalleled

Charge Manager With Undue Criticism, Insincerity; Details Of Meeting Secret

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, June 13.—Veteran members of the Cleveland Indians today personally laid before President Alva Bradley a demand that Manager Oscar Vitt be fired.

The mass protest, believed unprecedented in major league baseball history, came as a majority of the players confronted Bradley on their return from a disastrous Eastern trip where they lost eight of 13 games.

The players told Bradley they could not play the kind of baseball of which they are capable as long as Vitt remained at the helm. Their charges, according to the Plain Dealer, include insincerity, ridiculing of players and caustic criticism.

Although the meeting was kept secret, Bradley later admitted that "a few of the boys wanted certain things corrected."

"Naturally I am going to look into the matter," Bradley said, "but until I have investigated thoroughly I can't say what action will be taken."

Protests Listed

It was learned that a few Indians were not at the meeting, absentees including Beau Bell and Al Smith, acquired this season, and Rookies Lou Boudreau, Ray Mack, Clarence Campbell and Mike Naymick.

"They (the absentees) didn't want any part of the protest," a spokesman for the group declared, "and we were glad they didn't. We felt Bradley would be more impressed by the testimony of the fellows who have been around long enough to know what they're talking about."

Bradley refused to divulge the nature of the charges. However, the Plain Dealer said the protesters made these accusations:

That Vitt had ridiculed his players in conversations with newspaper writers, fans and opposing players and managers;

That he had undermined the confidence and spirit of the individuals by sarcastic comments on their failures;

That he had proved himself insincere in his dealings with the players;

Communicates Jitters

That he is a "wild man" on the bench, storming up and down, voicing caustic remarks on his players' actions and communicating his "jitters" to the players;

That his antics have made him a laughing stock among other teams and that the Indians have lost dignity and pride thereby;

That he has persisted in comparing the Indians unfavorably with minor league teams he has managed, notably the Newark Bears of 1937 who won the International League pennant by 25½ games.

Undercurrent Rumblings

Undercurrent rumblings against Vitt nearly reached the surface last season, but Bradley stepped in and signed him to a new contract. The Indians then finished strong and took third place.

"We made up our minds then we might as well make the best of a bad situation," a veteran player said recently. "When we went to spring training camp this year we were determined to wipe the slate clean and start over again. But before the season was two weeks old he had driven most of us half crazy. . . . we are a good ball club and we've got a chance to win the pennant, but if he manages the team all year we'll be lucky to finish fourth."

Several incidents on the recent Eastern trip were reported to have brought the protest to a head.

On Tuesday Bob Feller, ranked by many the best pitcher in baseball, was being hit hard by the Boston Red Sox. The Plain Dealer quotes players as describing Vitt's verbal reaction thus:

"Look at him! He's supposed to be my ace! I'm supposed to win a pennant with that kind of pitching."

Feller Heard Comment

Feller was reported to have heard the comment as he stood on the pitching mound.

Vitt became manager of the team in the spring of 1938 after the dismissal of Steve O'Neill, now pilot of Buffalo's International League club. The team finished third that year.

Vitt clashed frequently with his players during the 1939 unrest; his troubles with Julius Solters (now with Chicago), Jeff Heath and Roy Weatherly becoming known publicly. According to players much of the friction was caused by Vitt's open criticism of the three to writers, fans and other players.

Vice President C. C. Slapnicka, club directors and other Indian officials refused comment on the protest move and Vitt was not immediately available.

Midnight Is Deadline For Trades

Joe Krakauskas May Go to White Sox In Pitcher Deal; Meet Tigers Today

By Shirley Povich.

Post Staff Writer

En Route to Detroit, June 13.—Some time before next midnight some sort of a pitcher will be acquired by the Nats in a last-minute deal and another pitcher will part company with the Washington club. This was a prediction based upon what are known to be frenzied attempts of the Nats' bosses to make a trade.

As the Washington club speeds toward Detroit for the first stop of the Nats' Western invasion, only hours remain before the official league deadline on player trades falls. Midnight, June 15, is the fatal hour, and any deals not consummated by that time are invalid unless they are of the waiver type.

In Washington, before the Nats entrained today, Clark Griffith admitted he was in communication with several clubs in his efforts to make a trade, but he declined further comment, except to say that "there may be some news in Detroit tomorrow."

Krakky May Go

Indications point to the Chicago White Sox as the team most likely to deal with the Nats. Last week, Manager Jimmy Dykes held long conferences with Griffith and one report had it that he was seeking Joe Krakauskas from the Nats.

Until this season, the Nats' owner had refused to listen to any proposals involving Krakauskas, but there is evidence that he has weakened on the broad-beamed lefthander who has made only one appearance for the Nats in the past three weeks. Manager Harris hesitates to use him either as a starting pitcher or in relief roles.

When the Nats were in Chicago on their last Western trip, Coach Muddy Ruel, of the White Sox, declared that he was confident he could improve Krakauskas' pitching. Ruel is credited by Dykes for the development of Thornton Lee and Johnny Rigney, of the White Sox staff, and he may persuade Dykes to make a deal for Krakauskas.

Any deal the Nats make will involve a pitcher, Griffith indicated. The Nats are carrying only eight hurlers and cannot part with Krakky unless a pitcher is received in return.

Masterson to Start

The oft-reported Travis-to-Detroit deal is colder than an Eskimo's nose. The Nats were never very keen for the trade at any time, but with Rudy York now playing a steady game for the Tigers at first base, Detroit is no longer interested.

In the opening game against Detroit tomorrow, Bucky Harris will send Walter Masterson to the mound. The Nats' manager is now confident that Masterson is definitely bound for big league success. That apparent fact has been a tremendous lift to the Nats' pitching department. Dutch Leonard and Ken Chase had been carrying the burden.

Willis Hudlin and Rene Monteagudo are now the other accredited starters for the Nats. Hudlin is recovering from a muscle injury in his leg, and Monteagudo would be taking a regular turn more often save for his value as a relief pitcher. The little Cuban represents the only tolerable relief pitching the Nats have received this season.

Any day, now, Harris is expected to shake up his Washington line-up. Sammy West will have a place in the outfield against right-handed pitching, replacing either George Case or Johnny Welaj. If no success accompanies the Nats in their series with Detroit, Buddy Lewis may move back to the outfield, with Jimmy Pofahl returning to shortstop and Travis to third. Buddy Myer is a distinct possibility to replace Bloodworth at second base.

Picard, Revolta Lead Tourney At Inverness

Defending Champions Have 'Plus 4' in $6,500 Matches at Toledo

By the Associated Press

Toledo, Ohio, June 13 (AP).—Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta, defending champions, hopped in front today in the opening round of the sixth annual $6,500 Inverness four-ball matches with a 4-up victory over Ed Dudley and Billy Burke.

Dick Metz and Jimmy Demaret, however, turned in the day's low score with a neat 64, seven under par, to hand "Jug" McSpaden and Lawson Little, National Open king, a three-run beating.

The victory gave Metz and Demaret second place.

In the other matches Horton Smith and Jimmy Thomson finished 1-up on Gene Sarazen and Clayton Heafner, and Sam Snead and Ralph Gudahl won a 2-up decision over Walter Hagen and Byron Nelson, the host pro and 1939 National Open king.

Under the Inverness scoring plan, the teams get a "plus" for each hole they finish "up" on their opponent for the round, while the losing team gets a "minus for each one it finishes down." Each team meets the other seven in full 18-hole matches, with the tourney ending Sunday.

The standing at the end of the first round, with the best-all scores:

Picard-Revolta (33-32—65), plus 4.
Demaret-Metz (32-32—64), plus 3.
Snead- Guldahl (33-32—65), plus 2.
Smith - Thomson (33-34—67), plus 1.
Sarazen-Heafner (34-34—68), minus 1.
Hager-Nelson (32-35—67), minus 2.
McSpaden-Little (34-34—68), minus 2.
Dudley - Burke (35-34—69) minus 4.

The topnotch professionals turned in 40 birdies in their opening jaunt around the Inverness layout. Picard, the P. G. A. champion from Hershey, Pa., topped the subpar shooters with 5, four on the first five holes of the back nine. Hagen, Guldahl and Dudley anared four each. Little got three in his first tournament cruise after winning the Open at Cleveland a few days ago.

Friday's pairings:

Morning round: Hagen-Nelson vs. Picard-Revolta, Snead-Guldahl vs. Sarazen-Heafner; Smith-Thomson vs. McSpaden-Little, and Demaret-Metz vs. Dudley-Burke.

Afternoon round:

Picard-Revolta vs. Sarazen-Heafner, Snead-Guldahl vs. McSpaden-Little, Smith-Thomson vs. Demaret-Metz, Hagen-Nelson vs. Dudley-Burke.

Greentree's Piquet Wins Delaware Oaks

Eddie Arcaro Pilots Speedy Filly to Length Victory Over George Widener's Rosetown; Fairy Chant Earns Third-Place Money

By the Associated Press

Delaware Park, Del., June 13.—Greentree Stable's nimble filly Piquet established a strong claim to the country's 3-year-old filly championship here today when she came from far back to win the fourth running of the $4,000 added Delaware Oaks.

Under a prefectly judged ride by Eddie Arcaro, the speedy daughter of St. Germans and Parry raced past the judges one length in the van of George D. Widener's Rosetown. Two lengths back of the Widener colorbearer, Foxcatcher Farm's Fairy Chant earned third money by a length over Hal Price Headley's Salaminia.

Although a heavy rainstorm swept the track shortly before the Seven Oaks aspirants paraded postward, the track remained fast and Qiquet negotiated the mile and an eighth of the Oaks in 1:52 2-5, two-fifths of a second slower than the track mark. The filly returned $8.40 in the straight betting, and her score netted her Greentree Stable owners $4,920. In addition to top money, Greentree's trainer, John M. Gaver, accepted a handsome trophy from Miss Alice Marble, national women's tennis champion, who made the presentation on behalf of the Delaware Steeplechase and Racing Association.

Salaminia cut out the early running in the Oaks and she held sway halfway down the back stretch, where Rosetown took command.

Cocoa Kid Wins Philly Bout in 1st; Barbara's Eye Cut

By the United Press

Philadelphia, June 13. — New Haven's colorful Cocoa Kid won a first round technical knockout tonight over Johnny Barbara, of Chicago, before 2,600 fans at the Arena.

The Cocoa Kid opened a 2-inch gash across an old wound above Barbara's right eye midway in the first round and the Chicagoan's manager, Jack Brady, tossed a towel into the ring.

Referee Irv Kutcher refused to recognize the towel as a signal of surrender, and summoned Boxing Commission Physician Dr. W. B. G. Terry who examined Barbara and ordered the bout stopped.

The Cocoa Kid weighed 147; Barbara, 152.

Louis "Kid" Cocoa, the No. 1 welterweight championship contender, is scheduled to pull into town today to start a series of public workouts for his 10-round date Monday night at Griffith Stadium with Wild Bill McDowell, Texas' gift to the 147-pound division.

Medwick Deal Brings Joy To Flatbush

By the Associated Press

New York, June 13.—If a pennant can be bought the Brooklyn Dodgers have just bought one.

Everybody in Brooklyn from Lary MacPhail down to the batboy bubbled with wild enthusiasm today over the transaction that brought Outfielder Joe Medwick and Pitcher Curt Davis to the Dodgers.

Thousands of fans swarmed around the club's ticket offices at Ebbets Field and in downtown Brooklyn this afternoon, causing extra police to be called out and streets blocked off. All reserved seats for the three-day series with the Cincinnati Reds starting tomorrow were quickly disposed of and there was a run on tickets for the following series with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The best guesses on the amount paid the Cardinals in the deal last night ranged in the neighborhood of $150,000. The club is certain to get a lot of this back immediately. It has scaled the prices of its upper grand stand seats up one-third for the Cincinnai series, and besides the sell-out with the Reds is sure of another for a night game with the Cards next Wednesday.

Medwick and Davis, who awakened in Buffalo this morning to find that they were no longer Redbirds, were so eager to join their new team that they jumped the train and took a plane to New York, arriving in midafternoon several hours before they were expected by Dodger officials.

Voluble Leo Durocher, probably Medwick's closest friend in or out of baseball, was so overjoyed at completion of the trade he was the next thing to speechless. All he could gush forth was:

"We've got a chance to win now. I know Medwick. I ought to. I roomed with him for six years. For us he'll hustle three times as much and be twice as good a hitter as he was in St. Louis."

Durocher said the muscle man from Carteret, N. J., would be installed in the clean-up spot in the batting order starting tomorrow and would play leftfield with Joe Vosmik shifting over to right. Dixie Walker will remain in center.

Rene Monteagudo Missing as Nats Entrain for West

Special Dispatch to The Post

En Route to Detroit, June 14.—But not with Rene Monteagudo. He missed the train, and the Nats are venturing into the West without the little Cuban southpaw who is their No. 1 relief pitcher.

At least, Manager Bucky Harris hopes that Monteagudo missed the train and that no accident befell him. The time of the Nats' departure for the West was posted in the dressing room for nearly a week, and Monteagudo reads English very well.

Harris tonight dispatched a telegram to Clark Griffith requesting that Mr. Griffith search out Monteagudo and ship him to Detroit by airplane.

Indians Beat Tigers, 3 to 2; Regain Second

Gehringer's Error In Tenth Loses Pitchers' Battle

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, June 13.—Cleveland's slump-ridden Indians regained second place from Detroit in the American League today by shading the Tigers, 3 to 2, behind Southpaw Al Smith.

The former National Leaguer, pitching before 3,000 customers in the day's only major league game, turned in his sixth victory of the year through tight hurling in the pinches and two errors by Charlie Gehringer, usually dependable Detroit second baseman.

With two out in the tenth and Roy (Beau) Bell on second by virtue of a two-bagger, Ben Chapman grounded to Gehringer, who fumbled and then threw wild to first to permit Bell to count the winning run. The play then drew Gehringer two errors and broke the Indians' three-game losing streak.

The game was scheduled today, an open date for all other major league teams, in order to play off a postponed contest.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

We started to say that of all the shoddy tricks played on a big league manager Billy Southworth is the victim of the worst, but let's look at the thing circumspectly.

Two days after he was named manager of the club, Southworth was advised by the Cardinals' owners that they had sold Ducky Medwick to Brooklyn. If that wasn't tantamount to shooting Southworth's horse from under him it was, at least, no favor, inasmuch as Medwick was the best ball player on the Cardinal club. But the Cardinals' ownership didn't stop there. They also moved Pitcher Curt Davis to Brooklyn in the same deal, and the great weakness of the Cardinals this year is pitching.

POVICH

So Southworth, who took over a seventh-place club when he took over the Cardinals, now finds himself bereft of two guys who represented some hope of getting it out of the second division. Any team that boasted a Medwick wasn't entirely bad.

The first temptation is to condemn Owner Sam Breadon for that sort of treatment to a newly appointed manager, but wait a minute. It seems that Breadon collected $250,000 in cash and four players from the Dodgers in exchange for Medwick and Davis. The four players don't amount to much, but the quarter million in cash does. How are you going to blame a guy for refusing to turn down that much dough?

The Cardinals weren't going anywhere this season. That was patent. They were tied for last place at the time of the Medwick deal, 15 games behind the lead. Not a shred of their pennant hopes was left. There wasn't much prospect, either, that they could get into the first division. Pitching was the trouble. It bogged the whole team down.

With all due sympathy to Southworth, Breadon would have been a dunce to kiss off the quarter-million the Dodgers offered him for Medwick. He may never have found General Manager Larry McPhail, of Brooklyn, in such a lush, free-spending mood at another time. The Cards weren't going anywhere, as we were saying. Breadon stood to lose a heap of money on the season. Here was his chance to get out of the red, with something to spare. So he took the $250,000 and the only guys who will blame him are the guys who hate to see another guy get 250,000 fish in a chunk.

Besides, Medwick no longer is a boy. He'll be 29 at the end of the season. Despite his reputation as a hitter, he was batting only .319 this season and apparently losing some of his luster. Certainly he was not growing as an asset to the Cardinals. It might have been the last chance Breadon would get to unload his outfielder for any such fancy price.

Clark Griffith said frankly, when he sold Joe Cronin to Tom Yawkey for $250,000 in 1934, that no ball player was worth any such purchase price, and Medwick probably is not. But he comes pretty close to being the best all-around outfielder in the National League and will be more decorative with the Dodgers. To tab him best, he must be compared to Al Simmons as a hitter—the Simmons of the late twenties and early thirties.

Like Simmons, Medwick has power, and like Simmons he has been one of those strangest of all sluggers—a bad-ball hitter. He's a wild swinger, Medwick, and the ball that a hitter is normally not supposed to offer at, much less cow-tail, he will knock out of the lot, or at least against a fence. He has little style and a funny stance, but he has a great big batting average and at last reports that is the most important item.

In buying Medwick, McPhail apparently has discovered a fact that Clark Griffith could have told him when he sold McPhail Jimmy Wasdell for nigh onto $20,000 a few weeks ago, to wit: That Wasdell can't hit big league pitching. Certainly with Medwick now a Dodger there appears to be no place for Wasdell, or for Joe Gallagher, either.

There isn't much doubt, now that the Dodgers will replace the Cincinnati Reds as the favorites to win the National League pennant. Their glaring lack of punch in the outfield was a terrific handicap to the Brooklyns, but by grace of a tight infield and some surprising pitching, they have always been within hailing distance of the Reds. They are now on top and the presence of Joe Medwick in the batting order never hurt any club McPhail may have bought the pennant for the Dodgers when he bought Medwick, and at $250,000 a pennant is cheap.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, June 13.—Return of the valiant:

The pit where the most hallowed of all the fighters of the golden era was to make his "return" was a grassy little terrace off the road at the Carmel, N. Y., training camp of Arturo Godoy. The audience was composed of reporters and cameramen, a few curious natives and a little band of New Yorkers in whose eyes you could see a curious, fretful kind of nostalgia as Dempsey dropped his old gray robe and stood there in his fighting clothes.

CONSIDINE

We say it was a fretful look because this was not the Dempsey they had fondly preserved in their minds—the lean half-brute who knew the "jungles" of the tramp circuit and who fought like a man who had never heard of a sporting dilettante named the Marquis of Queensberry—or ever wanted to hear of him. The memory of Dempsey grows more awesome with the years. The Gibbons, Brennan and first Tunney fights fade in the rush to remember the Dempsey of the Willard and Firpo fights.

The Dempsey who dropped that old gray robe at Carmel was a nice, soft-spoken man of nearly 45, with a gentle bulge where once heaved a flat, iron-hard stomach. His legs were white and soft-looking and it seemed to hurt some of the old fans around the ringside to remember what they once were. Gone were the heavy cords of muscles that were the girders of his back, and in their stead were the pink and white curves of the inactive forties. His hips and beam, once the keen base of a magnificent triangle whose upper points were the tips of his shoulders, had become broad and thick.

The only thing the years had left him was the jut of his old blue-black jaw line. That, and the practiced way he moved through the ropes of the ring, the way he hitched his red knit training trunks, the way he began to breathe with whistling vigor through his nose after he got through with the photographers and went to work clumsily on a punching bag that hung from a nearby support.

Godoy, young, strong, willing, hungry for dough and fame, was huffing around the ring, shadow-boxing from the crouch he'll use again on Louis next week. But no one had eyes for him. They were watching that haunting caricature of the "Tiger Man," struggling in the background, trying to control the frisky bag. The bag insisted on going East and West when Dempsey was trying to hit it North and South. Irked and winded, he finally caught up with it and hit it with a baleful left hook that made it give off the sound of a bass drum. Then he stopped.

"Quittin' a'ready?" taunted Al Weill, the fat manager of Godoy. "I'm a ten-second man, now," Dempsey smiled. He climbed through the ropes again and took his place in his corner and watched Godoy, who was a child of six or seven when Dempsey won the championship, put on his helmet.

"Introduce them, like a regular fight, Al," somebody yelled, so Al came over toward where the newsreel mikes were planted, cleared his throat, and bellowed, "this afternoon's contest is the great Jack Dempsey." Unmindful of the hoots of the English scholars in the little audience, Al struggled on manfully, introduced Godoy and finally yelled "time!"

Dempsey shuffled out of his corner, ducked his head, put up his left arm and began to plug away at Godoy's hard middle with easy body punches. Godoy, a good mauler, did the same. It went that way for a minute, with Godoy occasionally slipping away and popping Dempsey easily, but decisively, around the head. After a minute, Weill called "Time!" again, and the listless—but somehow fascinating—exhibition seemed to be at an end.

And it would have been, but the red-faced and slightly wheezing Dempsey said, "Let's have another," and, under heavy pressure from the press and public, Weill finally agreed.

The second session was a little livelier. Some dim, dormant thing seemed to be stirring in Dempsey. His breath came shorter and sharper and the cool, grave Chilean—in there, miraculously, with an idol whose exploits had made him want to be a fighter—watched him carefully, expecting (and perhaps ready for) any sudden resurrection of the Dempsey who lay in the eyes of the oldsters around the ring. The action waxed merrier. Dempsey nearly mauled Godoy out through the ropes. And, being no rule-obeyer, back-handed Godoy across the chops. It was a stiff, sharp slap and Godoy, coming up resentfully out of the crouch which Dempsey taught him several years ago, stung Jack with a hard left hook to the head. Jack started back for him, but Weill, who once had been pinned squealing up against the ropes by the two men, hollered "Time!" again. And that was all.

Commissioners Strive to Rejuvenate Boxing in District

Col. McCoach Wants Title Bouts Here

Outlines Plan to Aid Fight Game; Suggest Mike Jacobs Be Contacted

By Al Hailey

Commissioners of the District government yesterday threw their support solidly behind a drive to put professional boxing on a paying basis in Washington and outlined plans to make the campaign more than just another series of conference-room sessions.

The newest move to rejuvenate the fight game came at a luncheon meeting called by Col. David McCoach, Engineer Commissioner, with these developments:

1. McCoach disclosed a "build-up" campaign with an eye toward a world's championship fight in connection with the President's Birthday fund as a dedication ceremony for the new National Guard Armory and sport center on East Capitol street.

2. Thomas P. Morgan, new member of the Boxing Commission, suggested a plan whereby Washington could negotiate a form of "working agreement" with Promoter Mike Jacobs, in New York.

3. Members of the Boxing Commission and the District Commissioners pledged a closer spirit of cooperation in an effort to assure Washington boxing fans the best fight talent possible.

Wants Title Fights Here

Expressing keen anxiety to see boxing restored to the place it once held in public interest and esteem, McCoach said he would like to see "at least three or four world championships a year in Washington."

The Commissioner added his main reason for wanting to see boxing stage a comeback is in order that the revenue from the fight business would go a long way toward lessening the expense of the new armory and sport center.

"A portion of the armory will be ready for occupancy by January 1 and should have a seating capacity of around 17,000 for boxing matches," McCoach said.

Commissioner J. Russell Young, who opened the meeting in the Raleigh Hotel and then turned it over to Claude W. Owen, chairman of the Boxing Commission, added his support to McCoach's plans and affirmed his interest in a revival of the ring sport.

Morgan's suggestion of a conference with Promoter Mike Jacobs came as a sort of "if the mountain won't come to Mohamet—Mohamet will go to the mountain" gesture.

Suggests Contact With Jacobs

"There should be some agreement we could reach with Jacobs whereby we could bring some of the top fighters he now has tied up under long-term contracts to Washington," Morgan said, suggesting that the local boxing commission set a conference date with Jacobs.

"We are all agreed that boxing is at a very low ebb in Washington," Chairman Owen said in his portion of the discussion. "What we must do is forget the past and build for a bigger and better future in the boxing game by getting bigger and better fights in Washington."

Members of the boxing commission—Owen, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Harvey L. Miller and Morgan—agreed with Commissioners Young and McCoach that the best plan is to set out on a campaign with the best fight talent now available to woo public interest and then take steps to bring in the championship battles.

Sports writers and radio sports announcers attending the luncheon offered their cooperation to the efforts of the commissioners and boxing officials.

D. G. S. Nine Beats Accounting, 8 to 2

Scoring almost at will, D. G. S. baseball club defeated the G. A. O. nine, 8-2, yesterday on the South Ellipse behind the 9-hit pitching of Pembrooke, who managed to pick the correct times for strikeouts. He fanned 11 men over the 9 innings.

The margin of victory lay in a 19-hit attack fired at G. A. O.'s Pitcher Cuddy, who went the route despite the barrage.

Where George Washington Football Players Go in Summer—to Work at East Potomac Pool

Dan Snyder, one of the lads who romp the gridiron for the Colonials, hits a new kind of line—the clothes line. Dan's working in the locker room at East Potomac Pool for the summer vacation

For Ken Batson it's the ticket booth. Here he is selling a ticket to Virginia Reese. Ken manages to find plenty of time, however, to rush out from time to time for a cooling plunge and the kind of exercise that will have him in tip-top shape come fall

And here's the third G. W. gridder, Tim Swett, administering a little first aid to a very comely patient, Pauline Greenberg. Tim is lifeguard at East Potomac for the summer. What's behind it all—you guessed it, G. W. Coach Bill Reinhart is manager of the pool

Spencer Overton Wins Mid-Atlantic Medal

Baltimorean Shoots 2-Under-Par 68; Sharkey In Tie for 2d With 70; Shea Cards 73; Billy Detweiler and Earle Skinker Have 76c

By Merrell W. Whittlesey
A Staff Correspondent

Baltimore, June 13.—The most feared amateur golfer in Baltimore for the past six or seven years, Spencer S. Overton, of Rolling Stone, showed the youngsters he still has a lot of good shots in his bag by winning medal honors in the Middle Atlantic Amateur Championship here today at Hillendale.

The former Maryland State champion and medalist in this tournament four years ago, Overton was two under par with a 68 although he started with a bogey five on the easy first hole. He was out in 35, even par, and had three consecutive treys on 11, 12, and 13.

Washington qualified five players for the championship flight in the disappointing starting field of 42 players. The State of Virginia was not represented, while only eight from the District played in the qualifying round.

Sharkey Has Par

State Junior Champion Buddy Sharkey, of Indian Spring, whose brilliant golf this spring helped Georgetown University to the Eastern championship, matched par figures with a 70 for second spot among the qualifiers. Sharkey played early and posted his round before Overton started but the latter came through knowing what he had to beat.

Former Champion Billy Shea, Congressional, with 36-37-73; Billy Dettweiler, a clubmate, with 38-38-76, and Earle Skinker, the schoolboy champion from Columbia, with 38-38-76, were other members of the District's band of young amateurs that made the championship flight and they were joined by George W. Miller, Columbia, with 37-38-75.

District Champion Ralph Bogart and Maryland State Titleholder Bill Eager, of Baltimore C. C., failed to make the championship flight despite the fact that the course played easy, Bogart missing with a 78 while Eager was a shot higher. Defending Champion Roger Peacock withdrew due to business reasons.

Greiner Cards 71

Sharkey was tied by Dr. Ed Stienbert, of Terra Mariae, while John Quinn, of the host club, and Otto Greiner, another former champion from Terra Mariae, were each a shot over regulation with 71's.

Sharkey was two over par on the front nine with a 37 but he wasted little time picking the shots up coming back. He started 3-3-3, two under par, and added six pars for the 70. Shea had eight pars on the front nine and seven on the back for his 73, going over on three scattered holes.

Skinker came to the eighteenth and the gallery around the green told him he needed par for a 75. He hit his seventy-fourth stroke to the back of the green and thought he had to make a 50-footer. The ball hit the back of the cup, but stayed out, and then he found out a 76 was good. He and Dettweiler just made the grade without a playoff.

Shea and Skinker are first-round foes in an all-Washington match, while Dettweiler melts Herbert Wagner, jr., of Five Farms, and Sharkey opposes Bobby Jones, of the host club. George Miller has the toughest task of the D. C. contingent in Otto Greiner, but on the basis of his play yesterday the Columbia member may pull an upset.

Tschiffely Cup Golf Led by Mrs. Hutchison

Mrs. R. L. Hutchison broke 100 for the first time in her tournament career yesterday and as a result the Women's District Golf Association secretary leads the Tschiffely Cup tournament by seven strokes at Washington Golf and Country Club.

Mrs. Hutchison's debut under the century mark was not by one or two shots, but a 93. Subtracting a 22 handicap, she leads the 36-hole handicap tournament by seven strokes. Ann Reh is second with 96-18, 78.

Mrs. Wilda Martin led the gross scores with a 92, three shots better than the 95 of the club champion, Sallie Whipple.

Pairings:

Class A

Mrs. R. L. Hutchison and Ann Reh, Mrs. George Roney and Mrs. Shelburn Whipple, Mrs. Douglas Tschiffely and Mrs. R. E. Hotze, Mrs. O. M. Reed and Mrs. Wilda Martin, Mrs. Lafayette Franklin and Mrs. Marion Falls, Sallie Whipple and Mrs. R. F. Nicholson.

Class B

Mrs. Lloyd Dennis and Mrs. Gorham Freer, Mrs. W. E. Baker and Mrs. H. J. Webb, Mrs. R. D. Young, Mrs. W. C. Murphy and Mrs. David Wolhaupter.

Class C

Mrs. H. E. Buskin and Mrs. Oliver Quayle, Mrs. Ingham Herr, Mrs. J. R. Murphy and Mrs. Myron Rudie, Mrs. J. R. Hogan and Mrs. S. W. Hauser.

WOODMONT

Play advanced to the semifinals in the Woodmont Women's Handicap championship with three of the four matches going to the eighteenth hole. Mrs. Theodore Peyser defeated Mrs. L. E. Harris, 4 and 2, in the only match that ended before the final green.

Mrs. Morris Jaffife defeated Mrs. A. E. Steinem, 1 up; Mrs. A. J. Stephens defeated Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith, 1 up, and Mrs. Gil Hahn won 1 up over Bertha Israel.

Mrs. Jarre and Mrs. Stephens will meet today while the other pairing is Mrs. Peyser vs. Mrs. Hahn.

KENWOOD

The four-way tie in the Mrs. E. V. Rule Trophy play yesterday at Kenwood will be played off today, with Mrs. M. A. Miller, Mrs. Stephen DeLaMater, Mrs. Woodlief Thomas and Mrs. E. C. Lupton competing.

The 36-hole medal play handicap event found the four tying with net 152 totals, Mrs. Miller, 95, 97—192-40—152; Mrs. DeLaMater, 89, 87—186-34—152; Mrs. Thomas, 93, 85—178-26, 152, and Mrs. Lupton, 94, 90—184-32—152. Mrs. H. H. Hughes was next with 186-32—154.

The two-time Star Cup champion, Mrs. Richard Kreuzburg, won low gross with 84, 90—174.

W. Tuckerman In 2d-Place Tie in Seniors

Charles Jennings Leads With 74; F. G. Bramwell, Washingtonian Card 77s

Special Dispatch to The Post

Rye, N. Y., June 13.—For three hours today, Walter R. Tuckerman, 58-year-old member of the Burning Tree Club, led the second section of the National Seniors golf tournament on the Apawamis Club links. The veteran Washington golfer had posted a 77 early in the afternoon after 18 holes of excellent stroking, and as the scores trickled in, his advantage over the field of 104 remained inviolate.

But then came the threesome headed by Charles Jennings, 62, of Roaring Gap, N. C., winner of the title last year, and when the laggards had dropped their last putts on the eighteenth green, Tuckerman was in a deadlock for second place and Jennings was the new trail blazer with a 2-over-par 74.

Tuckerman's hold on second place was disputed by 55-year-old F. Bramwell Geddes, of Scarsdale, N. Y., who said he had to shoot a 77 or be left in the lurch by Jennings. At that, Geddes might have turned in a 76 had he not failed on a simple 4-foot putt on the last stop. Tomorrow, then, when the tournament is concluded, Jennings, Tuckerman and Geddes will strive to equal or better the mark of 156 posted yesterday at the end of the first section by Findlay Douglas and Archie Brown.

The rest of the local delegation turned in a better group performance than the contingent that started in the first section. Second to Tuckerman was Harold S. Bloch, of the Century Club, New York, but a resident of Wheeling, W. Va., who was around in 84.

The others were scattered as follows: Edward Clifford, 66, Chevy Chase, 85; Percival S. Ridsdale, 67, Chevy Chase, 91; Dr. Gerry Hogg, 66, Lewisburg, W. Va., 96; and William M. Thomas, 62, Baltimore, 96.

Krause, Out Last Season, Desires Redskin Berth

Maxie Krause has advised the Washington Redskins he wants another fling at toting the ball this fall, and he'll get it at the fullback position, General Manager Jack Espey announced yesterday.

Knocked out for the season last year by a knee injury suffered in the second game, Krause has undergone an operation and reported to Coach Ray Flaherty in Spokane, Wash., yesterday that he was ready for action.

A veteran of eight years in professional football, Krause has been with the 'Skins four years and last year did some valuable scouting work while on the inactive list. He is a graduate of Gonzaga University, Flaherty's alma mater.

Hamilton Beats Morris

Morris Plan Bank lost a chance to enter first place in the Bankers' League yesterday by losing to Hamilton National Bank, 11-5, on the Monument Grounds. Washington Loan and Trust was also defeated yesterday.

Grace Amory Wins Eastern Golf Tourney

Cards 236 Over Five Farms Course in Three Rounds of Play

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, Md., June 13.—Though Grace Amory, of New York, did not approach her record score of the second round, she won the championship with ease as the Women's Eastern Golf Association completed the 54-hole medal play tournament today at the Five Farms course of the Baltimore Country Club.

Miss Amory scored a steady 81 to make her total for the three rounds 236, just eight strokes over par on this long, well-trapped course.

Jean Bauer, from Providence, who was robbed of an expected good chance to win the tournament by an opening day 92, continued to play well today in spite of the natural disappointment, and her score of 79 was closest to par among the six leaders who were paired in three twosomes for the final round.

No Chance to Win

Fifteen strokes above Miss Amory when the last 18 began, Miss Bauer had no chance to win. But her score was good enough to win second prize, placing her one ahead of Anne Krumbhaar, of Philadelphia, who had been runner-up to Miss Amory since the first day.

Miss Bauer had a total of 249, and Miss Krumbhaar 250, after a third-round 85.

Mrs. Walter R. Stokes, of Manor Club, in Washington, led the Capital team to victory in the team competition for the Osgood Shield. She finished fourth with a three-day score of 254, turning in an 84 today.

Mrs. Vare Disqualified

The Washington victory was made possible, moreover, by the third-day disqualification of Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, of Philadelphia, former national champion.

Mrs. Vare, playing partner of Miss Amory, played her second shot into the water on the tenth hole and then played a provisional ball which is contrary to rule 27. Discovering the first ball playable in the hazard, she chose to play it out and finished the hole with that ball.

The prize winners included:

Second gross, first day—Priscilla Janney, of Philadelphia, won by matching cards after tying with Mrs. Myron Davy and Mrs. Betty Meckley, both of Washington, with 87s.

Second net, second day—Mrs. Leo Walper, Washington, 83—5—80.

Second gross, third day—Mrs. Meckley, 87.

Scores of Washingtonians:

Mrs. Walter R. Stokes (Manor), 170—84—254.

Mrs. Betty Meckley (Kenwood), 178—87—262.

Mrs. Leo Walper (Capital), 174—91—265.

Mrs. Myron Davy (Congressional), 176—93—269.

Mrs. L. G. Pray (Manor), 179—90—269.

Mrs. Harvey J. Cooper (Kenwood), 196—95—293.

Mrs. J. T. Powell (Manor), 215, no card.

Mrs. Bishop Hill (Chevy Chase), 214, withdrew.

Mrs. Bert Gamble (Manor), withdrew.

Mrs. George Goetzman (Congressional), withdrew.

Advertising Club Holds Annual Tourney Today

A dozen novel gross and net prizes await the Advertising Club golfers in the annual tournament today at Kenwood. W. Frank Gatewood is chairman of the day with William Janof golf chairman. Secretary Charles J. Columbus is handling entries for an expected record field.

Phyllis Otto, 15, Gains St. Louis Semifinals

High School Golf Sensation Meets National Champion Today In Trans.-Miss. Tournament

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 13.—Round-faced little Phyllis Otto, of Atlantic, Iowa, who has played her last 111 holes of golf in even par, rolled Kay Pearson, Houston, Tex., star, out of the Trans-Mississippi Tournament today with a 4-to-3 victory that put her into the semifinals against National champion, Betty Jameson.

The 15-year-old Iowa State high school champion lost only one hole, the short fourteenth to Miss Pearson, when she pulled her tee shot to the left, then two putted.

Phyllis shot steadily around the out nine in even par to gain a 2-up advantage and then fired a string of six straights 4s, including two birdies, at the former Rice Institute tennis star to clinch the decision on the fifteenth green.

Miss Jameson, the San Antonio girl who has won the Texas State title four times, roared around 17 holes in one under par to defeat Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., former title holder, 3 and 1.

Patty Berg, of Minneapolis, the defending champion, drove long and straight off the tees to wear down Mrs. H. David Sterrett, of Hutchinson, Kans., 4 and 3. The University of Minnesota student gained a 3-up advantage on the out nine, which she toured in even par, and matched par to win the long twelfth and fifteenth holes.

On the last ten holes Patty hit her finest stride of the tournament to rap in nine pars and one birdie.

The other semifinalist is Mrs. Russell Mann, of Milwaukee, who advanced with a sparkling 5-and-4 victory over Shirley Ann Johnson, of Chicago.

Mrs. Mann, medalist in the 1934 National, will play Miss Berg tomorrow for the third time in their colorful careers. Each has won one decision.

Ken Overlin Wins Decision Over De John

By the Associated Press

Syracuse, N. Y., June 13.—Ken Overlin, of Washington, newly crowned middleweight boxing champion, won a decision over Ralph De John, of Syracuse in a ten-round over the weight match here tonight. Overlin, too fast for the hard-hitting De John, weighed-in at 162. De John, who started the bout with a patch on a cut over his left eye, weighed 175.

Overlin directed most of his attack at De John's body but took full advantage of the old cut over Ralph's left eye. The champion opened the wound in almost every round. De John had difficulty seeing in the ninth.

Altho De John punched harder, Overlin scored oftener. The only knockdown was of hollow credit to Overlin, De John going down for a second mainly from the force of his blow in seventh round, which Ralph had started strongly.

4,000 Fans Watch D. C. Roller Derby Team Beat Aztecs

Flying fists and fast skaters kept 4,000 fans in an uproar last night as the Washington Pawnees rallied to turn back the challenge of the Chicago Aztecs in their Roller Derby game at Riverside Stadium, 16 to 14.

Washington's victory earned it a 13-to-11 game and 325 to 313 point margin for the series. The two teams enter the third last game of their series at Riverside tonight at 8:15 o'clock and the free list will be suspended and cut-rate passes abandoned.

Upperville Horse Show Starts Today

Profits to Go to Red Cross; Event Opens at 10 A. M.

The oak-shaded grove at Grafton Farm, near Upperville, Va., for nearly a century the proving grounds for Virginia's young hunters, is the scene of the famed Upperville Colt and Horse Show, which begins today at 9:30 and winds up late tomorrow evening.

Thousands of horse lovers are expected to be on hand for the full card of half-bred hunter and draft-horse events and for the coveted 3-year-old championship award, which will be awarded at the close of today's activities. Net profits of the show will be turned over to the Red Cross.

Topnotch youngsters, highly favored for the title, include the Benton Stable's Sylvan Queen, a brown daughter of Wood Craft; Dr. Lewis M. Allen's handsome gray gelding, Clifton's Storm; Ernest L. Redman's aptly named Glamour Man, by Brilliant; Betty Couzens' Jaz, one of the few sons of the renowned stallion, Mate, to appear in show rings; Redman's Rascality, winner of several nice classes earlier this year; Christopher Greer, jr.'s Renegade; Mrs. Cary Jackson's Smoulder, Prossie and Croydon Park; Fox Hollow Farm's Union Jack; Mrs. D. N. Lee's Spanish Spear, winner of the 3-year-old class in the same ring last year; Mr. and Mrs. W. Haggin Perry's Zarp; B. R. Grimes' Flying Heels, and Horace Moffett's Patsy II.

Many Prominent Exhibitors

Half-breds will be shown by such prominent exhibitors as Oliver D. Filley, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Hardin, Lodge Bowles, Mrs. John B. Anderson, Dr. E. H. Marsteller, Peach Brothers, Mrs. Robert B. Young, W. C. Stevenson and Mr. and Mrs. A. Mackay Smith.

The events for draft horses, always popular in the rich farming country of northern Virginia, have attracted entries from T. C. Helliday, William B. Curtis, Mrs. Hubbert Phipps, Mrs. Elizabeth Whitney, C. B. Pearson, Ayrshire Farm, Irvin Beavers, J. W. Orrison, Mrs. Josephine Libby, Mrs. Emily G. Ramey and H. C. Thompson.

Begins At 10 a. m.

Morning classes will be shown in hand, and jumping classes commence at 2 this afternoon with a long list of lightweight green hunters, which has 37 entries. Other classes are for half-breds, shown under saddle; 4-year-olds and under, the Founders Cup, for horses bred and owned in Fauquier and Loudoun counties; middleweight and heavyweight green hunters, half-bred green hunters, handicap hunters, and the 3-year-old championship.

Tomorrow's program begins at 10 a. m. and includes the much-discussed outings for thoroughbred yearling colts and fillies and for thoroughbred 2-year-olds, around which much of the hunt country's attention is centered.

Welsh, Murphy Reach City of Washington Net Semifinals

Pair to Face Lynch, Smith At Edgemoor

Navy Lieutenants Advance in Doubles Competition; Breese Puts Up Battle

By Jack Munhall.

Top-seeded Barney Welsh and dark horse Dick Murphy yesterday gained the semifinals of the City of Washington Tennis Tournament at Edgemoor Club, with straight-set defeats of eighth-seeded Frank Shore and unranked Bill Breese, respectively.

Welsh, seeking to regain the title he won in 1937 and 1938 but did not defend last season when young Davie Johnsen captured the tournament in an upset, used his better all-around game to defeat Shore, 6—3, 6—4.

Murphy, winning a battle of southpaws, turned back Breese with a fine display of tennis, 6—2, 6—0, and is conceded almost an even chance to get by second-seeded Hugh Lynch in their semifinal match at 4:45 this afternoon.

In the second semifinal, Welsh will engage fourth-seeded Alphonso Smith at 4 o'clock. Both stack up as interesting encounters, with accent on the Murphy-Lynch meeting since Welsh appears to carry too many guns for Smith, the former national boys' and junior doubles champion.

Navy Players Victorious

Besides the two singles there were a pair of doubles matches yesterday and Lieuts. Bill Howard and Jimmy Farrin, representing the Navy, scored in each to reach the quarter-finals. The young graduates of the Naval Academy where they were tennis teammates a few years ago won their second round match over Jim Coxetter and Al Grissard, 6—0, 6—2, and then returned to the courts a short time later to conquer Shore and Lawrence Egbort, 6—1, 6—0. Farrin and Howard were seeded third, behind defending champions Lynch and Davie Johnsen, and Welsh and Dooley Mitchell who were eliminated yesterday.

For anyone familiar with the style of tennis employed by Barney Welsh, nine-time winner of the District singles title, little description is needed to envision how Welsh beat Shore.

Welsh Conserves Strength

Loafing except when he needed points, the lanky Rockville Rambler simply had too much power and finesse for Shore, although Frank gave him one of the closest matches the two have ever played Barney evidently was not out to see how one-sided he could make the match, for he seldom used his cannonball service, deciding rather to conserve his energy for future matches.

Murphy, the dapper little fellow who once was good enough to push the top-ranking players of the country and to win the Longwood Bowl tournament, never played better locally than in trouncing Breese, who had been rated the slight favorite in some quarters. Murphy, who accounted for defending champion Johnsen in the third round, had perfect control of his shots. So accurately did he hit the lines that you could have sworn the ball was attached to a string.

Breese, a tremendous man standing about 6 feet 4 and weighing in the neighborhood of 235 pounds, presented a striking contrast with Murphy, who is well under 6 feet and scales only about 150. It was Jack and the Giant Killer and Murphy, in the role of Biblical sling shot, was perfectly cast.

He outplayed and outsmarted his towering rival from start to finish. In all justice to Breese, it should be said that he never quit. He tried every type of attack within his range, but none availed against the sharpshooting Murphy.

When Breese lumbered to the net in an effort to utilize his great height in an overhead game, Murphy coolly caught him flatfooted with passing shots that hugged the side lines. And when Breese stayed near the base lines to trade smashing forehands, Murphy teased him into desperation with a drop shot salvo which had Breese looking like the man who just missed the streetcar.

SINGLES RESULTS

Quarter-finals—Barney Welsh defeated Frank Shore, 6—3, 6—4; Dick Murphy defeated Bill Breese, 6—2, 6—0.

DOUBLES RESULTS

Second Round—Lieuts. Jimmy Farrin and Bill Howard defeated Shore and Lawrence Egbert, 6—0, 6—1.

Metropolitan Bank Wins

The National Metropolitan Bank ten outslugged the league-leading Washington Loan & Trust Co. softballers yesterday at the Lincoln Memorial Field to win by 9 to 8 in a Bankers League game.

It was the first loss of the season for Washington Loan. Wahler and Gahan led the winners' attack with three hits each. Griffith, Berry and Gibson played well for the losers.

Cleveland Park Wins

The Cleveland Park Y. M. C. A. baseball club defeated the Clippers, 8-2, yesterday behind the one-hit pitching of Dick Gravely. He struck out seven men in going the six-inning route.

Reliance Life Nine Trounced By Cameo, 15-0

Winners Advance To Within Half Game Of Leading Heurich

Cameo's baseball club advanced to within a half game of The Washington Post-Industrial League leading Heurich nine yesterday with a 15-0 slaughter of Reliance Life on the East Ellipse.

It was a double occasion for cheer on the part of Manager "Connie" Wyche, for not only did the furniture nine bear down at bat, but Ed (Giggle) Adair, big righthander, was right in the groove with a four-hit game.

Not a single Reliance hit went for an extra base, and Adair didn't give up a walk in going the six innings before the game was called because of darkness.

Catcher Jimmy Schwab's homer in Cameo's eight-run fourth-inning splurge was the highlight of a batting attack which netted the Furnituremen 18 hits and drove Toby Bright, George Washington University pitching star, off the mound. Jack Redinger came in, but Cameo hopped on him for more hits before calling it quits.

Noble Kizer, Famous Grid Coach, Dies

Kidney Ailment, High Blood Pressure Fatal To Purdue Sports Head

By the Associated Press

Lafayette, Ind., June 13.—Noble Kizer, who had put a successful football coaching career at Purdue University behind him although only 40 years of age, died today of a kidney ailment and high blood pressure. He was taken to a hospital only last Monday.

The same illness forced Kizer to quit coaching in July, 1937, and take a vacation of a year and a half. He resumed his duties as athletic director at Purdue in 1939, but relinquished the football coaching position to Mal Elward.

Played at Notre Dame

Kizer was a guard on Notre Dame's national championship "four horsemen" team of 1924. The team was coached by the late Knute Rockne.

Purdue teams played 68 games and lost only 13 in the seven years that Kizer was coach.

The 1931 eleven tied for the Western Conference championship. Kizer's team was unbeaten the next year and won the Big Ten title. The Nation's fans picked Kizer in 1934 to coach a college All-Star team that tied the Chicago Bears, national professional champions.

Only Weighed 165 Pounds

Kizer entered Notre Dame in 1921 and won letters in football and basketball although he weighed only 165 pounds. He was graduated in 1924, became assistant football coach at Purdue in 1925 and head coach in 1930 when Jimmy Phelan went to the University of Washington.

Kizer's funeral is at 1 p. m. (central standard time) Saturday in the Central Presbyterian Church. Burial will be at Plymouth, his birthplace.

Bill Ackerman On Fishing

ACKERMAN

Last week-end we said hardhead fishing is now good everywhere. It seems we were mistaken, for the area from Holland Point to Sandy Point is anything but productive of the kind of fishing we should be getting at this season. Why this should be so is more than we know, because above and below that stretch the catches run up in the hundreds.

However, we believe this week-end will be different. We think the fishing off Thomas's Point and West River, as well as Herring Bay, will be as good as any place along the western shore with the exceptions of Solomons, where the fish have moved off into the deep water at the mouth of the Patuxent, and from Point No Point to the Middles. Those are grounds fished by St. Jerome's Creek boats and as productive right now as they ever will be.

At the latter place there is the added attraction of sea trout, which seem to hit on the Middles several weeks before they supply any worthwhile fishing at any other point. Capt. Taft Tippett has been getting from six to a dozen almost every trip out during the past ten days.

He also caught four blackfish, or tautogs, several days ago. That is rather an oddity in this section at any time, although the bottom in the vicinity of the Light is very much to the liking of blackfish.

The vanguard of the American Heating and Ventilating Engineers, meeting here next week, is starting out with its pleasure first, for, leaving Wardman Park Hotel at 8:30 a. m., they will journey down to Capt. Bud Phipps at Deale for an all-day fishing jamboree.

Capt. Bud, for those of his many friends who have missed fishing with him during the last several years, is back at his old stand this season with a new boat.

For ocean fishing any place from Cape Charles to Ocean City will supply good going for even the most choosey. The bass, so far as we know, are not in the surf at Fox Hill Levels, but they are being taken offshore at Cape Charles and Wachaprague. The first point is probably the better of the two with the catches running eight and ten to the boat.

The trout, porgies and sea bass on the wrecks are just about as plentiful as they have ever been. Ocean City boats are fishing the wrecks up toward Fenwick Shoals with the same results.

Don't forget the tidal bays and coves down the Potomac are under the jurisdiction of the Inland Fish and Game Commission and require a license just the same as do Virginia waters above the ebb and flow of the tide.

Gunston Cove, reached by way of the gravel road branching off U. S. No. 1 just below Pohick Church, is the nearest and probably the best close-by bass fishing. There are largemouth bass as well as smallmouth in these waters.

Above Washington, jurisdiction of the Potomac is vested in the State of Maryland and the bass season does not open until July 1.

Occasional stripers have been caught in the mouth of Eastern Bay on the Maryland Eastern Shore and in the Choptank River, but the best catches we have noted so far anywhere in the bay country were those made by Capt. Dick Rogers, of Piney Point, and Capt. Walter Cheseldine, of River Springs. Both of them fishing the shell beds, off Tall Timbers.

Two years ago the early striped bass fishing in this locality was the best we have ever seen, but these fish are like bad pennies—one never knows where they are going to turn up.

Cooper Bakeries Ten Beats Gas Light, 14-4

Cooper Bakeries trounced Washington-Suburban Gas Light ten, 14 to 4, in the first game of the second half of Prince Georges County softball league game yesterday at Magruder Park.

Sunday the winners will play Greenbelt, first-half champions, at 3 o'clock on the Edgewood field.

'Ladies Night' Flops, Turner Studies Folding

It was ladies' night at the rassles last night—the only trouble was that there weren't enough ladies. In fact, things were so discouraging at Griffith Stadium Promoter Joe Turner says he's going to take one more chance and fold up for the season if the fans don't come out.

In a conversation punctuated by anguished groans from the ring, where a character known as Zim Zam Zum was chewing on the left ankle of Jack Hader, the unhappy Turner broke down and told all.

"Look at this house—six or seven hundred maybe. I've never played to such a house in the ball park," Joe lamented.

"You know what, I think this war thing has got the people sitting at home by their radios. If this happens again next week I'm going to close up for the season."

The card was dotted with stellar actors from the Jack Pfeffer Studio—Zum and The Swedish Angel, namely. But it was no go. Joe says he thinks maybe the people are tired of the rassles.

"I remember back in the depression even," Joe says. "When did Roosevelt come in—yeah, 1932, why that year I paid Clark Griffith $12,000 in rent alone, at 15 per cent you know. I had three shows that totaled $50,000. Things were tough, too, then. I think the people came out to get all excited and get their minds free."

Jack Hader defeated Zim Zam Zum, 36 minutes; Swedish Angel defeated Michele Leone, 20 minutes; Felix Slovikowski defeated Luisi Baciealupi, 8 minutes; Irish Angel defeated Hans Westergort, 14½ minutes; Juan Olosuivel and Lou Farino, draw.

Where to Go—What to Do This Week End

Braddock Heights

Continually grow in popularity is Washington's own mountain resort, Braddock Heights. Just 15 minutes west of Frederick, Maryland, its accessibility makes it ideal for local residents who wish to confine their vacation traveling to a minimum. Braddock Heights Park is maintained for the benefit of the summer guests and the casual visitor and offers varied diversions including a fine mountain swimming pool, tennis courts, shuffleboard courts, dancing and a playground for the children. Equally attractive are the open fireplaces and the picnic tables. The visiting golfer may secure greens privileges at nearby Cacotin Country Club. Numerous hotel, bungalow and cottage accommodations are available.

For fishing points along the Eastern Shore Maryland, Route No. 50 to Annapolis and cross on Annapolis-Matapeake Ferry. Follow down Route No. 213. For Ocean City, Md., follow Route No. 404, No. 18 and No. 113.

For Cape Charles, Wachapreague and Chincoteague, Route No. 213 to Salisbury, then Route No. 13.

Shadyside and Herring Bay reached by way of Marlboro and Route No. 4. Herring Bay, North Beach and Seaside by turning right just beyond Hills Bridge on the new Route No. 416. Follow on down No. 7 for Western Shore of Maryland. Solomons Island and Brooms Island. Breezy Point Beach best reached by following through Seaside.

Note: The above predictions give the times of high and low water and not the time the curve changes (slack water). In Chesapeak Bay, middle channel, between Chesapeake Beach and Annapolis, slack water occurs about 2½ to 4½ hours after high and low water by the shore. At other places given in the table, slack water occurs from one-half to 1½ hours after the times of high and low water.

Times given above are for Baltimore and Washington. Subtract or add the number of hours a the various points for time of tides at these points.

Jane Waugh's Vendor's Lien Wins Charles Town Feature

Jockey Kelley Rides Victor; Pays $6.20

Winner Takes Third Purse at Track by Three Lengths; Little Harpist 2d

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 13.—Jockey Willie Kelley, recent bridegroom, sat in the jockeys' room all day to ride one horse, and the move proved a good one. He had the mount on Jane Waugh's Vendor's Lien and the 4-year-old gelding turned in a smashing race to take the Dr Luke Purse, featuring the Thursday program at this point.

Vendor's Lien in winning his third purse of the meeting in six tries, finished three lengths in advance of J. E. Crider's Little Harpist, with J. E. Murphy's Palkin third in a field of eight going 6½ furlongs. The victor paid $6.20 for each $2 ticket.

Among the disappointments in the event were Schley Goree, which finished fourth, and Frank Brooke, which failed to get up little more than a gallop.

Kelley had Vendor's Lien off silently, made him dispose of Pandormant going to the back stretch and then easily held off the opposition. Little Harpist had a rough trip going to the first turn and made up ground on the leader to midstretch, but hung thereafter.

The track was fast for this race and at is best for the first time in several days. The winner was clocked in 1:19 4-5, one three-fifths of a second over the track mark held by Royal Cross.

Apprentice Jockey Martin Bletzacker and the Washington-owned Randle's Queen showed sensational form in the fifth race to win at a $16.40 mutuel. "Blitzkrieg" hustled the Espino filly to the front and kept her there all the way to hang defeat on Vanelder and Walter Light among others.

Daily double stock soared to a sizable $209.80 pay off. Never Home, under Jockey Buddy Root's handling, took the second race at an $18.80 mutuel, and Eltonhead, well handled by Jockey Cardoza, took the third race at $10.40.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GINSENG, $4.20, $3.40, $2.30; BACK BAY, $3.40, $3.00; SINGING CONNIE, $2.40.

GINSENG was rushed up on inside to take command after being off slowly and held away to end under strong handling. BACK BAY had good speed from start and was held safe while under pressure. SINGING CONNIE raced greenly and closed willingly. MISS SOOT was forward factor throughout. GALLO DIPPER could not keep up.

SECOND RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:02. Off 3:03½. Winner, J. B. Huyett's gr. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—NEVER HOME, $18.80, $5.30, $3.00; MAN AT ARMS, $2.80, $2.40; CUT EMERALD, $2.80.

NEVER HOME, under good handling, came up on inside of CUT EMERALD'S pace to take command and was kept to drive to hold MAN AT ARMS safe. The latter was in tangle directly after start, responded to urging and was closing on winner at end. CUT EMERALD had been early speed and faltered. KING DOMINANT could not keep up. TOBIAS had early speed and tired. SNOBBISH LADY had a rough early trip.

THIRD RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:28. Off 3:28½. Winner, W. P. Mink's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ELTONHEAD, $10.40, $3.60, $6.00; WAM, $4.00, $3.00; ANN GROUCHER, $4.20.

ELTONHEAD was taken back after getting to front early, responded willingly when placed to drive and wore down WAM to win going away. WAM was hard used to get to ANN GROUCHER, ran that one into submission and had nothing left for winner. ANN GROUCHER saved ground, went to front, forced WAM'S pace and weakened. BLIND TALK closed some ground. IVONIA was held safe while strongly handled.

Daily Double, NEVER HOME and ELTONHEAD, Paid $209.80

WEATHER, CLEAR. TRACK, FAST.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:54. Off 3:54½. Winner, Mrs. A. M. Call's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAUGH SCOUT, $5.60, $6.00, $3.00; MISS PILGRIM, $17.00, $6.40; ROYAL VEIL, $4.00.

WAUGH SCOUT could not keep up early, came wide for racing room and, under strong handling, was up in concluding strides. MISS PILGRIM was sent between horses to get to front at first turn, withstood repeated challenges of BEACON QUEEN, drew out approaching stretch and was tiring under strong handling at end. ROYAL VEIL lacked speed to stretch, saved ground and closed with bold rush. JUSTA JIMMIE went evenly throughout. WALE SIGNAL trailed to stretch and closed a gap.

FIFTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:21½. Off 4:23. Winner, U. S. Randle's b. f. (3), by Espino—Glorify. Trained by E. K. Auld. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:16⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RANDLE'S QUEEN, $16.40, $6.20, $3.20; VANELDER, $15.00, $4.60; WALTER LIGHT, $2.40.

RANDLE'S QUEEN was hustled into lead at once, was steadied while setting pace and responded to vigorous handling to hold VANELDER safe. The latter, always close up, responded to driving tactics to be gaining on winner at end. WALTER LIGHT could not keep up early, came wide for racing room and closed gamely. SATIN ROYCE was hard ridden while in thick of early contention and faded. WAYRIEL had a rough trip. GROUCHY GIRL could not keep up. STAR STREWN was made much use of while racing forwardly and stopped. ACE CHANCE showed nothing.

SIXTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:48½. Off 4:49¼. Winner, Jayne Waugh's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—VENDOR'S LIEN, $6.20, $3.60, $3.40; LITTLE HARPIST, $11.40, $6.80; PALKIN, $9.00.

VENDOR'S LIEN disposed of PANDORAMINT to get to front, drew out and was not threatened while winning with some speed in reserve. LITTLE HARPIST was in close quarters early, worked way clear, saved ground to better position and was held safe. PALKIN was hard ridden throughout and showed good effort. SCHLEY GOREE showed dull effort. FRANK BROOKE was placed early and failed to rally. REMOLINE could not reach serious contention. LENA GIRL was outrun. PANDORAMINT set early pace and stopped.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:14. Off 5:18. Winner, J. E. Crider's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KENNER, $13.20, $10.60, $6.80; LYDE, $12.80, $7.40; TEPIN, $3.00.

KENNER, first to get underway, saved ground while setting pace and was placed to drive in stretch run. LYDE saved ground close up, came to outside when straightened in stretch and closed gamely. TEPIN was rated close to pacemaker, but weakened when placed to drive. LUCRE LUDE was in close quarters directly after start and rallied mildly. BUBBLEWORTH was held safe. COUNT ME was poorly handled. STUCK UP was outrun. TIMETTA was fractious at post and stopped early.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:45. Off 5:48. Winner, A. S. and D. H. Garthright's b. g. (6), by Petee Wrack—Sandchatter. Trained by A. S. Garthright. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:53⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PETE SAND, $36.20, $9.00, $4.80; JUDGE'S BID, $5.00, $3.20; TRIXIE LASS, $4.00.

PETE SAND took lead at once, drew out and was put to drive in midstretch to hold JUDGE'S BID safe. The latter was closest to pace from start and held on gamely under pressure. TRIXIE LASS was held safe while under vigorous handling. FOREION LEGION closed gamely. BRIGHT CHANCE was forwardly placed early and faded. CHIEF EVERGREEN had no excuses. The others were outrun.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

I have been asked to settle an argument. Most handicappers figure a fifth of a second to a length. Looks as if Delaware Park will have to show more respect for Charles Town horses. Cy Butler shipped West Sea up there and knocked off a purse in Wednesday's last race. West Sea paid $85 in the mutuels. That's a lot more than he would have paid for winning here. Going into yesterday's program, Jockey Sammy Palumbo and Tony Vessell were tied with 25 winners. John Hernandes is closing in on the pair and has 21 to his credit. T. W. Willingham, who made a nice claim in Butterman put a check for $800 in the box and took Best Policy. The jockey colony has increased by one with the arrival of A. F. Martinez, a hustling Cuban boy. There are so many jockeys in Cuba by the name of Martinez that it was found necessary for them to use two initials instead of the usual one. C. M. Feltner, of Berryville, Va., continues to top the trainers at the meeting. Racing Secretary Fred Burton has lined up a good feature race for Saturday in the Milton O. Rouss Handicapp. Rouss was the State Senator who sponsored the racing bill under which this track operates. Caidon, Dulie, Sandy Belle, Consistent, Sunny Rose, Frank Brooke and others, 14 in all, have been named. Cream Cheese, which got off badly last out, has been added to Starter John Morrissey's schooling list. Herman Whitely arrived from Maryland with the horses Miss Anderby and Hot Wrack. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First Race—He Rolls has been consistent over this route and deserves the call. The Johnston entry of Clay Hill and Delhi Dan is formidable but the last named and Chief Reliance is a doubtful starter. Mayfern is good and will be a contender.

Second race—Machilla must have a fast track, I believe. Has shown me enough to warrant a top selection in this kind of company Custer turned in a nice effort last out. Cora Kay has been improving.

Third race—Princess Lady has good general form and appears capable of handling the 115-pound assignment. Brain Child has had many chances and remains a threat. Nay Nay should go well.

Fourth race — Shanteh appears best suited of those gathered for this sprint. Likes a fast track. Miss Wing and Run Out are possibilities. I am going to pass up Walli, which might be the signal for improvement.

Fifth race — Happy Miracle was never better and would have won that last with better racing luck. Looks like the best bet of the day. Autumn Echo turned in one sizzling effort and then showed dull form. Could turn another form flip flop. Asterisk for the minor award.

Sixth race—Red Idol was a galloping winner last out and gets in this event with 105 pounds. Appears to be the right spot. Quick Vine has plenty of speed now and may save the place from the unpredictable Ravenhurst.

Seventh race—Tuleyries Star gets in light and meets the right company in this distance affair. I see no reason for mistakes. Counter Pass and Extra Good, a pair of "also eligibles," will be close if sent postward.

Eighth race — Goldun ran in a somewhat similar start in his last race here and seems to be the class. Chrome has been juggling around for a spot and is good now. Hastings View for the show end.

Substitute races—If No. 1 is used, I'll take Regal Sun, Adhelmar and Blue Prelude. If No. 2 is used, I'll take Super John, Eblis and Col. Hatfield.

Best bet—Happy Miracle.

Sharp Slump Strangulates Grain Trading

Prices Reach Pegged Lows; Floor to Be Removed Today

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 13.—Selling that that lowered wheat and corn prices 2¾ to 4½ cents a bushel today caused a virtual deadlock in grain trading here on the eve of abolishment of the minimum "peg" which has checked the decline of cereal values for more than three weeks.

Liquidation that reached its climax in the second hour of the session and was blamed largely on disquieting new. from Europe reduced prices of all grain products except July corn ao the minimums, established May 20 to halt the collapse that occurred during the first stage of the German invasion of western Europe, because there were no buyers at prices below the minimum levels, trading practically was at a standstill the final two hours.

"Peg" Lifts Today

Under present plans of the Board of Trade, announced Tuesday, these minimums will be lifted tomorrow, but limits on daily price fluctuations will remain in effect. These limits prohibit net changes of more than 10 cents in wheat and rye, 8 cents in corn and soy beans and 6 cents in oats in any single session. After the close exchange officials said there was no intention of changing the Tuesday order.

All closing prices, except July corn, were at the minimums, with wheat 3½-4½ lower than yesterday, July 78½, September 78¼; corn 2¾-4¼down, July 59⅝, September 58½, oats unchanged to ⅞ off; rye unchanged to ⅜ off and lard 20 to 25 lower.

While disquieting war news attracted most attention, pit brokers said the early decline caused numerous stop-loss selling and when the market receded further traders began to even up accounts in order to await market action tomorrow. It was the first time since the minimums have been established that all wheat contracts had reached these levels.

Hedging to Increase

The board of trade's decision to lift the minimums was taken because grain merchants had complained that restricted market operations restrained commercial transactions due to difficulty in placing hedges in some cases. Hedging of wheat is expected to increase soon as the marketing of the new crop gets under way although much new wheat probably will be stored under Government loans.

Because of the technical situation all other trade factors were virtually ignored. Spot wheat fell 2 to 3 cents and corn 1 to 4 cents with No. 1 yellow corn quoted up to 67¾ or 8¾ cents over the July close. Shippers sold 85,000 bushels and handlers booked 68,000 to arrive. Early in the day yellow corn was quoted 3-4¼ over July and white 13¾ over.

Lard declined with grains and in sympathy with weakness of hogs, despite reports that the Government had bought 22,500,000 pounds for relief. The cold storage report showed domestic June 1 stocks were the largest on record, totaling 283,844,000 pounds.

Bank of Mexico May 'Peg' Peso

Mexico City, June 13 (AP).—Foreign Exchange traders said today they expected the Bank of Mexico to "peg" Mexican currency to that of the United States at a rate of 5 pesos to one dollar.

Officials of the Central Bank said the institution had retired from the Foreign Exchange market in order to permit the dollar and peso to find a "free" relationship before attempting the pegging operation.

The dollar fluctuated around 5.25 pesos today in quiet transactions, mainly intended to meet business needs.

Exchange Market

New York, June 13 (AP).—The British pound fell 3⅛ cents, in terms of the United States dollar, today, carrying the French franc .01 of a cent lower. At the same time the Canadian dollar gained ⅜ cent, rising to 90⅝ United States cents.

The officially controlled German mark made one of its rare changes, rising .1 of a cent. The Swiss franc closed at the previous day's level.

Food Distributors' Group Reports Mor Than 900 Members

Offices have been opened and a full-time executive secretary employed by the Independent Food Distributors of District of Columbia, Inc., which reports a paid membership of more than 900 retail grocers, manufacturers' representatives and commission merchants and warehouse managers.

Headquarters of the I. F. D. are in the Tower Building, Fourteenth and K streets northwest, and the newly appointed executive secretary is Aaron Levin, formerly advertising manager of a group of grocery stores in Baltimore.

The I. F. D., which is affiliated with the National Association of Retail Grocers, acts as a clearing house for problems of food distribution. Discussions are held periodically on such matters as taxes, licenses and unemployment insurance. Special services are provided on auditing, accounting, credit information, collection of debts, etc.

Monthly meetings are held, ideas exchanged and the association seeks to act as a unit on legislation.

Officers are Isaac Jacobson of the District Grocery Stores, president; Fred A. Dodge, of Nationwide Service Grocers, Inc., vice president; David Abraham, of United Food Stores Corporation, treasurer; David Hornstein, secretary and counsel.

Macauley Again Heads A. M. A.

Detroit, June 13 (AP).—The Automobile Manufacturers Association announced today the reelection of Alvan Macauley as president and election of George W. Mason, of the Nash-Kelvinator Corporation as treasurer to succeed the late Frederick J. Haynes.

All other officers and directors were reelected.

Robert F. Black, chairman of the association's motor truck committee, reported to the closing session of the annual meeting that he expected a truck production of approximately 800,000 vehicles for the calendar year of 1940. Factory sales of trucks during the first four months of this year totaled 297,953 units, compared with 272,872 for the similar period of 1939.

Liverpool Resumes Trade in U. S. Cotton

Liverpool, June 13 (AP).—Directors of the Cotton Association announced trading in American cotton would be permitted, beginning today, within daily maximum declines or advances of 25 "Liverpool" points. Since May 17 exchange of contracts has been permitted only at the settlement prices of May 16.

In addition to daily limits, fixed minimum prices have been established for subsequent sessions. They correspond with closing values of May 17 and are as follows: July, 7.00; October, 6.86; December, 6.76; January, 6.74; March, 6.69; May, 6.64.

Week's Auto Output Drops to 86,649

Detroit, Junt 13 (AP).—Automotive News, in its weekly report of production activities of the motorcar industry, today estimates this week's output at 86,649 cars and trucks. This compares with 87,556 last week and 81,733 this week a year ago.

It adds that June production probably will total not more than 350,000 cars and trucks.

Sulphite Pulp Price To Rise $11 a Ton

Montreal, June 13 (Canadian Press).—Increase of $11 a ton in the price of unbleached sulphite pulp to $63.50, effective for the three months beginning July 1, was announced here yesterday by Canadian International Paper Co.

The announcement said the price was for 2,000 pounds of air-dry weight, based on United States Atlantic ports. It was understood the increase was prompted by increased demand.

Home Building In May Reaches 11-Year Peak

Contract Volume At $328,914,000, F. W. Dodge Reports

By the Associated Press

New York, June 13. — Residential building contracts let in May in 37 Eastern States were the largest for any month since August, 1929, F. W. Dodge Corporation reported today.

"Gains in contract volume were continuous through the month," the building statistical firm said, "showing no diminution after the German invasion of the Low Countries."

The May total of all construction contracts in the area reporting was $328,914,000, largest monthly total thus far in 1940. This was 9 per cent ahead of April and nearly 7 per cent better than May, 1939.

The residential portion of this was $145,912,000, or 9 per cent better than in the comparable 1939 month.

Commenting on the showing in May, Thomas S. Holden, vice president of the firm said:

"Three possible factors might change the current upward trend to private building. They are: 1, panic; causing private investors to defer or abandon building projects. 2, a rapid rise in building costs; and 3, imposition of Government controls and restrictions, in order to give priority to construction essential to the national preparedness program.

"No one of these three things has happened yet."

Chain Store Sales Increase in May

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, June 13 (AP).—Sales in the chain store field in May continued to show substantial improvement, according to the current review by Chain Store Age. Total volume, as measured in relation to the 1929-1931 average for the month, reached a new high level.

The publication's index of May sales advanced to 117.0 from 115.0 in April. During the corresponding two months of last year the index remained unchanged at 110. Based on the index figures, the indicated sales increase in May this year over 1939 was 6.3 per cent as compared with 4.5 per cent in April.

The index figures by commodity groups for May were as follows:

	May, 1940.	April, 1940.	May, 1939.
Grocery	111	106	101
Variety	121	119	115

Bank Clearings Slump in Week

New York, June 13 (AP).—Bank clearings in 22 leading cities in the week ended June 12 dropped sharply below the preceding week, which contained a holiday, and the comparable 1939 period, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

A decline in New York clearings to $2,289,531,000, or 25.2 per cent less than $3,061,811,000 a year ago, explained the year-to-year drop.

Latest turnover for all centers of $4,365,043,000 represented a decline of 12.3 per cent from $4,930,000 last year and was $388,831,000 below the preceding holiday week.

Clearings at cities outside New York advanced to $2,075,512,000 from $1,914,119,000 in the like 1939 week, an increase of 8.4 per cent.

Chicago Stock Mart Reelects K. L. Smith

Chicago, June 13 (AP).—Kenneth L. Smith was reelected for his second year as president of the Chicago Stock Exchange by the board of governors yesterday. All the other officers of the exchange were also reelected.

At the same time the board endorsed the exchange's existing policies in regard to its system of trading in dually listed issues, and in connection with its rules affecting specialists and odd lot dealers.

Building Purchased

The United Mine Workers of America, it was announced yesterday, has purchased the building at 1523 I street northwest, adjacent to their office building, to insure against the possibility of a taller structure being erected on the site and shutting off light and air from their offices.

Boston Wool Market

Boston, June 13 (U. S. Dept. of Agricul.) (AP).—A moderately active demand was being received for several kinds of domestic wools in Boston today. Mills were showing a great deal of resistance to the recent advances in prices. Some buying, however was in progress at the advanced prices. Good French combing-length fine territory wools, in original bags, were bringing from 85 to 87 cents, scoured basis. Graded lines, fine territory wools, were selling at 83 to 84 cents, scoured basis, depending upon length, ranging from short to good French combing. The demand was moderate and prices were steady at 38 to 39 cents, in the grease, delivered for country-packed three-eighths and quarter blood bright fleece wools.

General Setback Ends Two Days of Strength In Security Prices; Traders Depressed By War News and Weak Grain Market

New York, June 13.—War news was not to the liking of the financial community today and there was a general setback after the two previous days of sharp recovery. Although the French counter-attacked, the situation as far as Paris is concerned was not greatly changed. What unsettled the markets was not the status of the battle for Paris but the surprise commercial agreement between Turkey and Germany, raising some doubts as to the quality of the ties between Turkey and the Allies, and also an early rumor, which had no justification, that a separate peace between France and Germany threatened.

Rumors Sway Moves

It was true of the World War and it is just as true of this one that rumors find a more fertile field than is the case during normal times of peace. The markets are more subject to hearsay, and they can change their course with rapidity. This was noted in the case of wheat today.

Weakness in the grain markets had a depressing effect upon securities. While the big board opened irregularly higher, the trend soon weakened, influenced in part by profit taking. The close, judged by the composite average, was off .52 point. All groups of stocks joined in the trend, but the largest losses were sustained by the issues which recently were in the forefront on the advance, such as the steels, aviation and equipments.

Loft Moves Higher

There were a few special issues which stood out against the reaction. In this category, Loft was a feature. It was the day's most active stock and in the face of a discussion before Congress of a soft drinks tax, Loft held firm to higher. At one time it was up more than a point and it closed with a small fractional advance.

Other active stocks, however, carried minus signs, with steel off 1⅛, Republic ¾ and Bethlehem 2¾. Curtiss Wright continued to lead the aviations, and was down a good fraction. Even the paper issues softened, despite the removal of Scandinavian competition. International Paper closed off 1⅛. Baldwin Locomotive was the most prominent of the reawakened equipments, and closed off a major fraction. In addition to the prospect of sharing in the armament business, these companies are finding a renewed demand on the part of railroads for new equipment.

Business news was generally on the favorable side. There was a sharp comeback in carloadings after the Memorial Day holiday. The automobile outlook was improved by the reported placing of a French order for 10,000 trucks with General Motors and Chrysler.

A. T. & T Holds Firm

Among investment issues today, American Telephone held firm. Declines of 1 to 3 points were sustained by such leaders as Smelting, Chrysler, duPont, General Electric Nickel Plate, Standard of New Jersey, United Aircraft and Westinghouse.

Listed bonds were irregular today, with the undertone firm in most departments. United States Treasury issues again moved forward, and gains also were recorded in almost all high-grade corporate bonds. The foreign dollar division showed continued wide swings in both directions. Speculative railroad securities remained in fair demand, and a few other groups likewise did well. Turnover was $4,940,000, or considerably less than the previous session.

The advance in long-term Treasury issues was impressive as it carried levels up a half point in some instances. Some dealers gained the impression that the buying was predicated largely on an expectation that further issues of Treasury securities would be taxable, as against the motley of partial and complete exemptions of present obligations. But best rated utility, railroad and industrial bonds joined the upswing, and these are currently taxable, which indicates that the taxation feature had nothing to do with the advance.

In the foreign section Italian bonds dropped 1 to 12 points, with almost all issues at lows. Some buying appeared in German government bonds, but other German securities were weak. French 7s held just over par, notwithstanding the threat to Paris. Australian and Canadian loans continued to rally, and advances were the rule also in Norwegian, Danish and Belgian bonds. Southeastern European issues were weak. The Latin-American section displayed a better tone.

Private Awards Double in Week

New York, June 13 (AP).—Private engineer construction awards in the week ended today topped the preceding week by 103 per cent and last year by 173 per cent, Engineering New-Record reported.

Total awards, however, were below last week due to a drop in public construction volume, but held about even with a year ago. Details follow:

	This Week.	Last Week.	Year Ago.
Private	$28,923,000	$14,241,000	$10,586,000
Public	27,718,000	50,726,000	44,859,000
Total	$56,641,000	$64,967,000	$55,435,000

This week's volume brought total awards for the year to date to $1,258,461,000, or 15 per cent under $1,474,781,000 in the comparable period a year ago.

Buyers Fear Pinch, Rush For Materials

Heavy Industries Push Demand for Raw Goods

By the Associated Press

New York, June 13.—Many raw materials, especially those used in heavy manufactures, have faced within the last week a steadily enhanced demand, trade sources indicated today.

Oils and their products and wholesale buying for the retail trade are yet much involved in the accelerated pace, these sources said.

Reflecting demands of warring Europe, neutrals, and United States rearmament, buyers have sped into the market in "anxiety to be on the books" against a pinch such as developed during the war 20 years ago, one prominent steel source said.

"Whether that was from fear of United States priority rights or foresight we cannot say," said the steel spokesman, "but the steel industry rapidly is approaching a 100 per cent operation, with some plants now producing that figure."

The past week's buying of raw materials was called "quite a rush" and stocking up was said to have continued this week in undiminished force.

Speeding up of production of goods in the United States inevitably would be reflected in call for oil and its products, said a spokesman for that industry, but, he added, oil had not yet benefited from a quickened pulse.

An increased demand of 5 per cent had been anticipated in 1940, he said, but so far the figure had reached only 1.2 per cent. Orders for bunker oil for ships had dropped to negligible figures with few foreign ships calling at American ports and United States ships barred from Europe.

No marked rush has developed in wholesale goods for the retail trade, and retailers have been advised to go slow at this time, it was stated.

Ladies' ready-to-wear clothing is being cut but July normally is the month for ordering finished garments, with the usual competition expected then. However, nearly 100,000,000 yards of unfinished cotton goods was sold yesterday and today. Textile production remains about 15 per cent below that of last January, when gradual curtailment of mill activity began.

Heavy buying of copper and reduced imports of rubber have attracted attention and there appeared to be a growing shortage in some chemicals.

Returned Goods Seen Cutting Nets Of Retail Stores

New York, June 13 (AP).—The typical department or specialty store made a small profit for the fifth consecutive year in 1939 and might have earned a larger income but for the continuing returned goods problem.

The 1939 profit was 1.6 per cent on net sales as against a barely above the red inkline of three-tenths of 1 per cent in the previous year. Returned goods reached the highest ratio in five years, however, at 9.2 per cent of gross sales in 1939, as compared with 9 per cent in 1938.

The figures were shown in the 1939 departmental merchandise and operating results study of the Controllers' Congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, compiled from information submitted by stores throughout the country and announced today.

The returns ratio was smallest in the stores in the smaller volume group, said the study, "leading to the conclusion that 'consequently it must be that large stores either make more mistakes, do a poorer selling job or do less to discourage returns'."

U. S. Lists Relief Purchases of Pork

The Agriculture Department announced yesterday additional purchases of 72,556,16 pounds of pork products for relief distribution under a program designed to relieve market surpluses.

This brings to approximately 172,000,000 pounds the purchases of pork products since the program was authorized last December.

Big Board Seat Sells At Low Since 1914

New York, June 13 (AP).—A membership in the New York Stock Exchange was sold today for $36,000, a new low since 1914 when the price sank to $34,000. The last sale was made at $40.000 on June 10.

The 1940 high was established on January 18 at $59,000. The record high was in 1929 when prices reached $625.000.

YOUNG MARRIED MAN

I need an energetic and responsible young man to associate with me in business. I prefer a married man over 21 years of age; a man who will do the things that I have done for the last few years can build his income up gradually to $5,000 per year or more within a reasonable length of time; the work itself is pleasant and puts you in contact with a great many people whom this service will benefit; the man who qualifies will be given the benefit of my experience and cooperation and actual field training, if he wishes it; no investment of money, only consistent and serious application to work that will pay worthwhile returns; you need not have sales experience to start, but the right kind of character references will be necessary.

Call at 1010 Vermont ave. nw., Room 205, 7:30 sharp, Friday evening.

Today's Radio Highlights

12:15 p. m., WMAL—Queen Elizabeth of England broadcasts to the women of France in French. An English translation from New York will follow.

5:05, WRC—American refugees fleeing Europe are interviewed as they board the S. S. Washington at Galway, Ireland.

6:30, WJSV—Newspapers, entertainers always tell us, are crazy places. Well anyway, Al Pearce, too, has decided to have his say on this trying matter.

7, WJSV—Eugenie Leontovitch, celebrated European stage star whose career has been limited to the footlights in this country despite the fact that her husband is screenland's Gregory Ratoff, has finally made her bow on the screen in "Four Sons." Tonight she replaces the England-bound Laurence Olivier on the Kate Smith variety bill.

7:30, WOL—Schumann's Symphony No. 4 from Tragig is programmed by Alfred Wallenstein's Sinfonietta.

8:30, WOL—Tamara Geva, with her looks and her elusive beauty should be well equipped to play a spy as play she will on tonight's Command Performance in "Lady Spy."

9, WRC—Don Ameche and Claire Trevor play-act as a quarrelsome couple.

9, WJSV—Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson addresses the alumni of the Harvard Business School on "Lessons from Abroad."

9:15, WOL—Should your name be Averill, Ainsworth, Lockhart, Dempsey, Frost, Cheney, Darby or Darling, Who Are You?, might interest you. This Mutual feature offers the low-down on most anyone's genealogy.

9:30, WMAL—Attorney General Robert H. Jackson talks before the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia on "Untapped Resources of American Democracy."

Forty-eight million people heard President Roosevelt's address Monday night from Charlottesville, Va., according to a nationwide survey conducted during the broadcast by the radio statistical firm of C. E. Hooper, Inc. The figures were released by the Columbia Broadcasting system.

Check-ups made between 6:15 and 6:40 p. m. disclosed that 16,000,000 families had tuned in on the broadcast, with an average of three persons listening in on each family set. This does not include persons who may have heard rebroadcasts of the talk, such as WJSV and other stations put on Monday evening.

Indicating the intense and widespread interest occasioned by the talk, which came on the very heels of Italy's entrance into the war, was the fact that the radio audience was more than three times the normal total listening in at that hour on other Monday evenings.

"The 'Fifth Column' in the United States and Civil Liberties."

This is to be the provocative subject under discussion during the "People's Platform" broadcast over WJSV tomorrow at 6 p. m. Lyman Bryson, chairman of CBS's Adult Education Board, will preside.

Guests joining in the "People's Platform" discussion will be:

George Britt, of the editorial staff of the New York World-Telegram, a Scripps-Howard newspaper; Arthur Garfield Hays, widely known liberal lawyer; Dorothy Kenyon, former municipal judge of New York City, and Maj. A. P. Simmonds, U. S. Army, retired.

"Orphans in Love"

Marion White

Ellen Carlan has loved Peter Storm, since both were children. John Abbott, prominent attorney, gives Peter a job. Mr. and Mrs. Abbott decide if Peter married Millicent Abbott, they could return without publicity his property which they had administered since Jonathan Tucker died, without known heir. Ellen has been promoter to a dress designer. She and Peter return to the orphanage for Christmas, and later go to the old Tucker house. Ellen finds a letter from Paris dated 1813 in a Bible, which reveals Tucker's only heir, a two-weeks old son. Millicent announces her engagement to Peter. He sees the real Millicent when he accidentally tears her formal gown, and then appreciates Ellen. Ellen sees the engagement announcement and since Peter is to be Abbott's son-in-law, she destroys the letter concerning the Tucker heir. Kenneth Hall, whom Millicent formerly loved, asks her to forget her engagement and marry him.

Chapter 39

HE TOOK HER in his arms again, spoke to her very gently. "I was a fool, darling. I was jealous and crazy. I wanted to be a hero in your eyes. I wanted to climb the highest mountain in Tibet, and have my picture in all the newspapers in the world, so that you'd think I was a tin god."

"You'll do it again. And again. If it's not Tibet this time, it will be the north pole. Or the Arabian desert."

He smiled. "Not either of those. Next time I'm sailing up the Amazon, farther inland than any white man has ever gone. . . ."

Pulls Her Back

She tried to break away, but he pulled her back within the circle of his arms. "But you're going with me, Pudgy. We'll be heroic together—we'll make motion pictures of ourselves and we'll be crowned king and queen. You'll be Queen of the Amazons. How would you like that?"

She smiled feebly through her tears. "I won't go. You're a lunatic."

"You will go. And I'm not a lunatic. I'm crazy, but only crazy about you."

She lifted her chin, assumed a pose of dignity. "You're forgetting Peter. I'm engaged to marry him."

"We'll fix that."

"We can't. How can we?" Thus she wavered. Peter seemed very far away.

"We'll tell him the truth. What else is there to do?" He reached down under her chin, tilted it upward. There was no laughter in his eyes now, and his voice was suddenly grave. "Darling!" he whispered very softly. "I couldn't let this happen. You know that, don't you?"

She did not surrender immediately.

Fond of Peter

"There's father, too," she pointed out. "He's terribly fond of Peter. He seems to have his heart set on our marriage. I don't know what he will say."

But John Abbott, for several days at least, said nothing whatsoever. That afternoon he was brought home unconscious. A heart attack, the family physician informed them gravely. He had been stricken in the courtroom, at the height of a very impassioned plea to the jury.

For five days John Abbott lay between life and death, unable to speak, unable to recognize the members of his own immediate family.

"Don't try to speak to him, Mrs. Abbott," the doctor persuaded. "He's completely unconscious."

She shook her head, wondering, and her heart was heavy with fear and dread and uncertainty. "I'm not sure that he is, Dr. Rhodes," she murmured. For although the blue lips did not move, not even with the almost imperceptible effort of his breathing, and although his eyes, whenever they did open, were glazed and dull on the surface, she read a deep, terrible entreaty in their depths.

She knew that her husband had some moments of consciousness, and in those moments he struggled with every spark of life within him to convey some appeal to her.

"Is there nothing we can do, doctor? Nothing at all?" It was the age-old plea of the well and strong when they must sit by, facing the inevitability of death and the futility of human power, and watch some loved one fight the last desperate battle alone.

Pats Shoulder

The doctor's shrug was professional, but there was sympathy in the way he patted her shoulder. He had known her for many years.

"We can only wait—and pray, my dear. He's a young man, comparatively. And strong, no doubt of that. By every reason he should pull through. Still I don't understand. Something has been undermining his vitality, pulling him down mentally more than physically. Overwork, I suppose. Only rest and quiet will help. And the relaxation of any cares . . . ."

He smiled ruefully. "However, we know there's nothing really serious to disturb his peace of mind. No financial worries . . . no grievous problems . . . ."

She nodded absently. No grievous problem. None at all, except that which had robbed him of peace for so many years. But now—Now that old trouble could not bring him to this. Now the final solution was in their hands.

"He'll be all right, then. Everything will be all right." She spoke softly, tremulously, more for the need of assuring herself than to answer the doctor.

She went back to the little rose damask chair beside his bed.

Gets Late

"It's getting late, Miss Palmer," she reminded the nurse on duty. "Have your dinner. I'll call you . . . ."

"He's quiet now, Mrs. Abbott. There'll be no change for several hours."

She left the room with the doctor. The door closed quietly behind them. Cora moved her chair closer to the bed, out of the direct light of the lamp, so that she might observe her husband's face more clearly and catch any slight change of expression.

Throughout these past days, she had seldom left his side, except for a few minutes at a time, to take her meals, or to make the attempt which the doctor demanded of her.

At night, when there was no sign of his wakening from the coma which held him, she slept fitfully for a few hours in the chaise-lounge near the window. But she was beside him, day and night, helpless though her presence was.

Efficient trained nurses carried out the doctor's orders; she was not even granted the comfort of small service.

She would listen to the dull, labored pounding of her own heart, until every nerve within her body quivered in dreadful expectancy, and she was bathed in cold, clammy perspiration.

No Sign

There would be no sign of life in the still figure on the bed, no vestige of warm color in the parched, gray face, no comforting rise and fall of the thin chest in normal, regular breathing.

She would watch, hypnotized and terrified, until she would almost shriek out her fear. But at the instant when her anxiety reached its pitch, she would straighten in her chair, knot her icy hands into determined, white-knuckled fists, and summon every defense to a new, desperate hope.

Now, once again, the fear gripped her. She leaned forward, whispered his name over and over in a frantic effort to break through the mists of unconsciousness which enshrouded him. "Everything is all right now. All right John . . ."

She took the thin, lifeless hand upon the counterpane, rubbed it within her own in a wild, passionate endeavor to instill some of her own life into him.

"John! Stay with me! Stay with me!"

When she dropped the hand in sheer exhaustion, it fell upon the white sheet with the dull, lifeless plop of some boneless, inanimate object.

The profile of his face waxen and insensible against the dim shadows of the room, might have been a graven effigy.

Tears of absolute frustration filled her eyes. In five long days, there had been no moment of promise.

She did not hear the door open slowly. Not until Millicent stood alongside of her did she realize that someone had entered the room.

"Rest a while, mother," the girl pleaded. "I'll stay with him."

To Be Continued.

Father's Day Is This Sunday, June 16th

NO matter what you call him, whether it's Dad . . . Father . . . Sire . . . Pater . . . Governor . . . Pop . . . or Papa, this Sunday, June 16th, is HIS DAY. It's the biggest "Male" day of the year. The day everybody pays homage to the "bread and butter" of the family. And your opportunity to reciprocate.

DAD isn't the kind of fellow who expects a costly gift on Father's Day. He's a considerate sort of cuss. But we feel sure that he'll expect his gift, no matter how large or small, to be a practical one. His mind and his actions are sound. That's why he'll appreciate a useful gift from The Hecht Co. MAN'S store. The store that caters to his wishes.

OUR MAN'S store executives are fathers themselves. They know, from every day selling experience, what other Fathers want. They've hand-picked every item on this page. Look them over. See what's here. Then come in this morning or Saturday to select Dad's gift. Hundreds of other nationally famous gifts ready for you today.
